Instauration

MAY 1978

THE RACIAL BASIS OF TYRANNY

Whoever walks a mile full of false sympathy walks to the funeral of the whole human race — D. H. Lawrence.
In keeping with Instauration's policy of anonymity, communicants will only be identified by the first three digits of their zip code.

☐ Panamanian story a spellbinder. Who is the author?

☐ My letters come on too strong. True, no doubt, but they are for me rather like the practice of the fellow who composes violent letters in anger only to consign them to the wastebasket, some of his anger assuaged. Not that Instauration is a wastebasket.

☐ Happily, there is a deep vein of conservatism in the membership of Mensa. When gun control was advocated in a letter to the Bulletin, the outpouring of "con" letters was amazing, so much so that Isaac Asimov was moved to complain about it. Ditto on hunting.

789

☐ A twenty-gun salute to Begin and Sadat—at point blank range!

366

☐ That tidbit in "Literary Jottings" re the Jews fleeing Nazi persecution in 1938 across the Siberian-Manchurian border sounds most phony. Russia and Germany did not go to war until June 22, 1941. They might have been Polish Jews deported to Siberia by Stalin after the Red Army took over two-thirds of Poland in September-October 1939, which is still too late for this yarn to make historical sense. The esteemed Gospodin Begin is supposed to have been in the Stalinist gulag in Siberia in 1939 for a short spell before going to Palestine. I suspect those Jews fleeing Siberia were far fewer than 20,000 and were escaping agricultural work for the fleshpots of Manchuria and more rewarding opportunities in Harbin and Mukden.

☐ You may be interested to learn of the experience of Malvina Hoffmann, the sculptor, in Africa some years ago. Her party was using the camp of an English hunter, on the edge of the Ituri forest, who had been trading with the Pygmies. Upon leaving for a hunting trip, he locked his chest of trade goods, mainly salt and chocolate, but left the key in the lock. Shortly the Pygmies appeared and tried to open the chest. Finally, after several days they gave up and returned to the forest. Immediately, a few monkeys dropped out of the trees. Within a few minutes they opened the chest and devoured its contents.

☐ The account of Hamsun was sober and a welcome revision of the loathsome minority smear. But a much worse smear was made against Vidkun Quisling. Norway's only genuine hero in three generations. (Even Molotov thought the Norwegians were too harsh on him.) Someone should do a review of the book by Ralph Hewins, the relapsed British newspaper liar who helped invent the epithet "quisling." In his book, Quisling: Prophet Without Honor (John Day, 1966) he recounts how the whole thing was stacked, rigged and framed against Quisling, a man he grew to respect mightily. Hewins writes, "For twenty-five years a network of Norwegian, British, German and Russian vested interests has blackened Quisling's name with almost every imaginable crime from murder and theft to high treason, until his character and career have become completely distorted in history and in the popular imagination at home and abroad."

111

☐ A quick and low-priced Nicaraguan canal (I suppose Brown and Root or Bechtel could build it in three months) would really cause a global upheaval and leave the New York City gang holding a lot of worthless Panamanian wallpaper bonds, probably about as good as Israeli pounds.

☐ Here in multiracial England church, state and Jewry encourage cohabitation between English people and the black races. They think that eventually when all inhabitants are coffee-colored (in body and brain) this will bring to an end the strife now disrupting our society. Strangely enough, the Asiatic Indian and Pakistani immigrants are generally opposed to such mixed marriages. But the Negroes advocate it as proof of their "equality."

☐ When George Will was writing columns for the National Observer, they more often than not tended to be fairly well thought out, and for the most part, supported the conservative point of view. It was with some surprise that I first noted he sold out to the powerful media mogul, Katharine Graham. I'm sure Graham will give Will high marks for his ad hoc philosophical obscurantism.

☐ In his True Believer Eric Hoffer makes the point that the extremes of the political spectrum have more in common with each other than with the uncommitted middle. It's strange, but by physically twisting a paper model of a linear political scale into a Möbius strip, the extremes are no longer poles apart, but rather back-to-back.

606

☐ I place a high value on Instauration, although as one of my black coworkers says, "It's a bit over my head."

661

☐ What do you think of bumper stickers asking the question, "What If The Racists Are Right?"

720

☐ I feel as tho' I'm living in a nightmare that has no end. It simply isn't possible to be pessimistic enough about the folly and suicidal madness of the whites in this country.

Let us not be so naive as to believe that we have freedom of speech in this country. Dr. Arthur Butz spent several years researching and documenting his exposure of the six million myth. He was invited to appear on a WFAA radio talk show in Dallas, but because of Zionist pressure was denied the right to speak. But NBC has shown a four-night TV movie “Holocaust” that spouts forth racist hate against Germans. In the U.S. only Zionists and other nonwhites have the right to be race-hating bigots.

Gloom and doom here at the moment. There seems to be an awful glut of Ph.D.’s in the Humanities and Liberal Arts. The Chronicle of Higher Education—a fortnightly journal which lists every academic opening in the entire nation—advertises less than one vacancy in European History per issue. Average number of applications resulting: 600.

Menahem Begin is due out here in May for a ceremony at the Hebrew Yeshiva University in Beverly Hills. How nice it would be if someone who was a survivor of the King David Hotel atrocity would show up to ask him questions.

Rothbard and the New York City crowd control Libertarian Review and Inquiry. Reason is led by a different lot, and has just run a long column by the TV catcaller Edith Efron (niece of old Stalinist hack Joshua Kunitz) which really puts down Rothbard and his coterie. It should lead to some interesting hair-pulling.

Is the CIA responsible for that uprising in Nicaragua? Very, very suspicious timing, as Carter and Linowitz manage to sell us the say about the French personalities involved.

Your article, “The Bastard State of Panama,” was excellent. I cannot help wondering who the author is. Whoever he is, he has first-rate literary and polemical talent. It’s a great pity that this article can’t be distributed freely to the public. So help your morale to hear a hearty word of approval from a fellow Nordic.

“Survival Squads” (Instauration, Jan. 1978) is an excellent article and I like the idea very much, although the word “survival” in itself is negative (when you mention survival you are implying that a situation might develop in which you might not survive). However, the idea itself is positive and constructive and right down my alley. I keep telling people that until we can manage to organize social activities we cannot expect to attract the general public. We need to get our kinfolks together in a friendly atmosphere, just talking, dancing, playing bridge, or whatever. Who wants to talk philosophy all the time, discussing the Protocols or Jimmy Peanut’s latest outrage. All this is fine and there is a time and place for it, but there should also be somewhere a guy can take his girl without getting into all kinds of talk about liberal corruption or black atrocities.

Too bad our dominant dummies don’t all bellow for another canal in Nicaragua. It would be such a welcome respite from the two packs of liars at work on our sensibilities re Panama.

Rafael Lemkin, the refugee Polish Jew lawyer who invented the word “genocide,” first used it in his book Axis Rule in Occupied Europe, which was published in December 1944 and not in 1943, as both Rassinier and Hoggan say. Even the American College Dictionary, 1958 edition, credits Lemkin with “coining” the word in 1944.

You have all heard about Michael Douglas who tried to change his moniker to 1069. The judge, praise be, turned him down. But do you know his occupation? What else than social studies teacher.

“Run, Sammy, Run” and “Death of a Salesman” probably turned more young Majority students from following a business career than any other factor. How convenient for those who are not intimidated by their own writings.

Now that Norman Lear has led our children to the depths of misery, despair, drugs and sordidness, Portnoy has no complaint!

I am basically an introvert and cannot successfully discuss our racial beliefs with others. But your magazine has created a personal instauration for all my suppressed thoughts and emotions. I am not pretending that my belief in your work will help our plight in any significant way. But it might help your morale to hear a hearty word of approval from a fellow Nordic.

A sad aspect of our race’s situation is the fall from greatness of today’s descendants of old, aristocratic, capable Americans. I get my name from the Lees, who today seem to be a tired, worn-out Virginia family and nothing more.

If it’s any help, keep in mind that there are quiet readers of Instauration who fully support you even if they rarely tell you so.

I would like to point out why the intelligent Russian people (not the “clever” ones) are apprehensive about Zionism. They are convinced, and rightly so, that Zionist leaders were at all times hostile towards Russia, caring absolutely nothing about the regime there. When they ceased to play the leading role in the country, they at once became an irreconcilable opposition and campaigned against imperialism, anti-Semitism, totalitarianism and so on.

It is commonplace that when a minority is arrested for anything it is not just a question of the guilt or innocence of the suspect. When a Majority member finds himself in the hands of the police, that’s that. His case is cranked through the criminal justice system without further ado. But the more vocal minority criminals carry with them not just the usual presumption of innocence, which goes with Anglo-Saxon law, but a presumption of persecution. The fact is that minority members charged with a crime are considered less guilty than their Majority counterparts because of the racial discrimination factor. Just being a minority member automatically casts doubt on the grounds for arrest. He may have committed a crime. On the other hand, the white pig cops may be up to their old tricks.

The inexorability of the “discovery” of a philosophy by Jewish intellectuals “proving” that Marxism (i.e. the Soviet Union) is inherently reprehensible was only a matter of time, since Zionism and Bolshevism ended their love affair. A dialectic had been embarrassingly lacking justifying the wholesale desertions by the Jewish intellectual elite of the pro-Soviet camp, in view of the latter’s anti-Israeli position. Lest the preference for Israeli Zionism instead of international communism appear an act of petty bourgeois provincialism, a cosmopolitan whitewash of highest humanitarian motivation was essential.

The excellently timed appearance of the “New Philosophers”—Levy, Glucksmann & Co., therefore has all the spontaneity of a march in Peking’s Peoples Square. Their polemics are a not very convincing attempt to cover the withdrawal of the remaining international Jewish forces from pro-Soviet association as gracefully as possible under a screen of merde.
Many men who find themselves in situations where normal sex is impossible, such as at sea in the Navy or in prison, may engage in homosexual acts. They then suffer from what is known as "inversion." However, if they have adequate normal sex before their period of deprivation to stabilize their inherent sexual response, they usually have little difficulty falling back into normal heterosexual activity afterwards. Homosexual exposure when there has been little or no normal sex is particularly dangerous and it can result in irreversible perversion.

Blacks and Chicanos are so heterosexually promiscuous from earliest puberty that homosexuality has less of a chance to gain a foothold among them. Increasing white male homosexuality is most certainly the main reason why ever larger numbers of white women are taking up with nonwhites. Women outnumber men in all age categories above 18, and male homosexuals outnumber lesbians by about twenty to one. There are many places in the world, particularly in America and Britain, where homosexual prostitutes flagrantly work gay bars with impunity while female prostitutes are arrested for soliciting in a non-gay bar a block away.

I disagree with your article "Tabula Rasa" (Instauration, Dec. 1977). You say that such things as the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, etc., may be our tombstones. True, but if we organize in time they will be the very symbols of white unity. Don't you realize that the pious our ancestors took to form this nation would be thrown by the wayside if we allowed the establishment of Majority and minority states?

I'm glad to find out that Instauration's editor is dipping into Spenser's Faerie Queene. It is the most majestic, if difficult, work—a book that repays one's attention with compound interest. I'm sure that as you read it the pattern of inspired racial mysticism that infuses the whole work will become only too apparent.

The growing chorus of abuse of the Soviet for cracking down on its Jewish troublemakers if kept up much longer will make even an ancient enemy of the U.S.S.R. such as myself metamorphose into a supporter, at least on this issue. The sharply stepped-up spate of anti-Soviet stuff is based on the firm conviction that the Jewish people everywhere have the gawd-given "right" to create disorder, social disintegration and chaos in all lands at all times, except in Israel, and that anyone who tries to cool them anywhere is impinging on their "human rights." Hence the whining attempt of these birds for the last 6,000 years to blame it all, not on their penchant for maximizing misery and disorder, but on anti-Semitism growing out of Gentile enviousness of their bounteous gifts of every kind of superiority (vide Weyl, Possony, et al). As long as the Jew conducts his headlong flight from country to country to country ad infinitum, and upon achieving a haven, promptly repeats his ancient trick of infuriating his hosts in still another caper, he might as well prepare to use his track shoes for indefinite thousands of years to come. His six millennia of flight so far are just the beginning folks.

I hope you like NASA's new astronauts. Well, we have already put a monkey into space and the Russians used a dog. Maybe you had better lobby for an end to the U.S. space program before NASA sends minorities all over the universe and ruins thousands of advanced civilizations instead of just ours. Just think, galaxies of ghettos!
THE RACIAL BASIS OF TYRANNY

In the nineteenth century some anthropologists noted a surprising fact. Superimposing a religious map of Europe over a racial map of Europe, they discovered that the two were practically identical. Protestantism was detected to be confined to those regions of Europe inhabited by the Nordic race. Catholicism and the Eastern Orthodox church were largely restricted to countries occupied by the Mediterranean, Alpine or mixed races. The division was so neat that Bismarck’s Kulturkampf could be seen as a racial blow up between predominantly Nordic (and Protestant) North Germany and mostly Alpine South Germany and Austria (both Catholic).

In the twentieth century a similar phenomenon is evident. If a map of Communist Europe is superimposed over a racial map of Europe, Communism will be seen confined to areas inhabited by the Alpine and Mediterranean races. Moreover, it is currently posing the greatest threat to those non-Communist countries of predominantly Mediterranean or Alpine race that still remain outside the Brezhnev Orbit—Italy, Portugal, Spain, Greece and France. The nations with large Nordic components remain non-Communist, without an appreciable Communist party in any of them and none threatened from within. They also have no other totalitarian political parties worth mentioning.

Why is this? Is the reason buried in some innate resistance to political or religious absolutism on the part of Nordics? Is there an instinctive passive resignation to authoritarian force, physical or psychological, on the part of Alpines, Mediterraneans or mixed peoples? If Germany had been an entirely Nordic nation instead of having a mixed Nordic-Alpine population, would it have submitted to the autocracy of Hitler? Likewise, is it possible to imagine a Nordic Russia bowing to the tyrannical rule of Lenin and Stalin? We find that no Arab nor Moslem country has ever been subverted by Communists, yet such nations are in large measure populated by hybridized Mediterranean and Alpine peoples who exist around part of the Soviet periphery. However, Islam already has within itself a powerful absolutist religious structure supported by primitive but equally absolutist political regimes which employ repressive measures as a matter of continuous policy. Thus Communism, an alien form of cultural despotism, has failed to take a single Moslem country. By contrast, Catholic Cuba fell to internal Communist subversion, a case in which a weakening religious absolutism gave way easily to a stronger, better organized absolutism. But in Spain, where the Catholic faith was more resolute, old-fashioned Catholic absolutism defeated the Communists in the only way that they can be defeated—by military power. In these examples, note that the contests are between different forms of autocracy, which are apparently the only societal structures that non-Nordic Peoples will support.

The case of Russia involves a large, continental, predominantly Alpine population that throughout history has never known other than a dictatorial type of government. The Czarist tyranny was replaced in 1917 by a far worse tyranny. There has never been evidenced, at any historical period, a comprehension by Russians of what constitutes a free government and society. Solzhenitsyn presents in dreadful detail the utterly unimaginable oppressions, to a Nordic, that these people will endure, decade after decade, in the most slavish, abject manner. In modern times in no Nordic country has an internal absolutist tyranny of any type ever succeeded in permanently overthrowing its free institutions. Of the smaller nations of Europe attacked by the Soviet Union, only one, Finland, the most Nordic, has maintained a real measure of freedom. This political condition is so universal that a scrutiny of a national governmental structure is tantamount to a verification as to whether the pertinent country is Nordic or non-Nordic. If a totalitarian cabal exerts despotic rule of its own people, the country has to be non-Nordic. If it has a freely elected form of government and free institutions, the Nordic genes must be dominant. So rigid is this racial predisposition that there is no exception to the rule. Therefore for a Nordic country to permit the entrance of large numbers of non-Nordics, ipso facto, will imperil its democratic institutions in the course of time.

A free Nordic country, in its dealings with a non-Nordic country, has inevitably no choice but to select the friendlier of two rival authoritarian factions who may be contending for power inside the specified state. It is the crassest, most ignorant, and often most brutal and inhuman folly for the United States to remove support from a friendly, relatively mild, local despot in a non-Nordic country, for example, Fulgencio Batista in Cuba, on the grounds that he is “undemocratic.” He has to be undemocratic or he will be replaced by a despot with better totalitarian organization, unfriendly to the U.S., in this case the Leninist Fidel Castro. There can be no temporizing with this ethnic certainty. If a nation consists of a non-Nordic population, it will be unavoidably despotic, as Japan will most certainly be once the pseudodemocratic regime imposed from without collapses. If India and Pakistan are “democratized” by copying Nordic political institutions, we may be sure neither will long remain democratic or free. All Asian nations, all former

CURIOUS ASPECTS OF THE BAKKE CASE

The Bakke case is important because for over thirty years minorities have been winning racial cases before the Supreme Court. The Court has ruled against the best interests of the Majority in housing, school segregation, school busing, nondenominational school prayer, welfare "rights," employment, admission to public parks and playgrounds, public transportation, apportionment of state legislatures, and voting registration—not to mention the rulings on pornography and the rights of criminals, which have severely undermined the nation's social morality.

Bringing all those cases before the Supreme Court was a deliberate minority stratagem. The plan, as outlined by Jack Greenberg, perennial lawyer for the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, and by Martin Meltzer, attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, was to bypass traditional Majority political processes. As Greenberg and Meltzer explained it, federal judges are appointed and their only effective political constituency is the liberal-minority coalition. So when they take their seats on the bench, they remain loyal to their sponsors. Holding their jobs for life, they can safely ignore the wishes of the Majority.

The tight liberal-minority grip on the Supreme Court has worked without serious challenge for three decades because of the Majority's abysmal refusal to fight to uphold traditional American political processes. Everyone seems to have forgotten that the Constitution separated government into three coequal branches, each to be a check and balance on the other. The most significant development in government since World War II has been the Supreme Court's assumption of the very role of despot that the framers of the Constitution sought to inhibit. That the Majority has not yet fully awakened to this awesome fact validates H. L. Mencken's memorable statement that "nobody ever went broke overestimating the ignorance of the American public."

The Supreme Court's drive to obsolete the Constitution's separation of powers did not shift into third gear until the appointment of Earl Warren to the High Bench in 1953. Warren's decisions ushered in the "legal revolution" leftwing legal scholars are so fond of writing about. Congress never effectively fought the usurpation of power by the Court and actually aided the judicial putsch by passing the Civil Rights Acts of 1957, 1964 and 1968.

America's largest population group has acquiesced in the surrender of its political influence by naively believing that Supreme Court Justices are above partisan politics. Incredibly, J. F. Ter Horst, once press aide to former President Ford, has claimed that the Justices "have no political axes to grind and that they are truly independent." Even more incredibly, he recently added:

It is as though the people expect and assume that the Court's decisions will reflect their long-term permanent interests instead of the impulsive or expedient demands of the moment. ... The extraordinary authority of the Supreme Court rests not on blind allegiance of the people, but on their acceptance of the rule of law whenever it is based on the rule of reason.

A Dutchman from the predominantly Dutch congressional constituency of Grand Rapids, Michigan, represented by Gerald Ford for over a quarter century, Ter Horst appears to be unaware of the partisanship of the Supreme Court. Putting judicial robes on politicians has always blinded Majority members to the real character of judges. Most Americans are serene in their belief that lobbying is confined to legislative halls, childishy assuming that a politician astute enough to secure a federal judgeship is immune to outside pressure once he begins to perform the mumbo-jumbo of court ceremony.

The political pressure groups most conspicuous in recent American legal history are the NAACP and, in strong second place, the ACLU (American Civil Liberties Union). In all civil liberties "landmark" cases the American Jewish Committee and usually the American Jewish Congress filed amicus curiae briefs. These organizations themselves were not always visible in these affairs, but their lawyers were. The legal work of these lawyers and their presence in the filing of the briefs were carefully noted by the judges. This is judicial lobbying of the highest degree, but no one ever calls it that.

What makes the Bakke case unusual is that the civil liberties coalition which has ramed through all previous pro-minority decisions is split on Bakke. Recently the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, an umbrella organization of minority groups, acknowledged the split in this official statement:

Sam Dickson may not be the next Lieutenant Governor of Georgia, but he should be.

THE MAN TO BOOST

Instaurationists will have at least one political candidate worth following with deep interest in the upcoming 1978 elections. Sam G. Dickson, a genuine Majority activist, will be a candidate for Lieutenant Governor of Georgia.

People of principle will find his campaign a welcome relief from the banality, triviality and meaninglessness which have long characterized the political scene. Dickson will deal openly and directly with issues of race and ethnicity from the Majority viewpoint.

Dickson is a Georgia native, 30, with a mind as sharp as that of Senator Tom Watson (1856-1922), Dickson’s political father figure and the racial populist whose statue in front of Georgia’s capitol Jimmy the Tooth had the excruciatingly bad taste to box up during the latter’s inauguration as Governor in 1968. What makes Dickson and his candidacy significant is that he is an articulate spokesman for the destiny and interests of Georgians—and Americans—of Northern European descent. At the University of Georgia he acquired a degree in history and political science, and a juris doctor from the Law School. He also served as president of the University literary-debating society, where he developed a skill for oratory and for putting down minority racists.

Unlike the stereotype of illiberals depicted in the news media, Dickson is wise in the ways of the world, having studied in Mexico and traveled widely in Europe. He speaks with some fluency German, Spanish, Russian and French and with more fluency a mellifluous English dialect known as “Southern.”

While qualified by education and training as a spokesman for Majority interests, the young attorney is no ivory tower fantasist. Widespread contacts throughout Georgia give him a reasonable chance of making an impressive showing.

His principal opponent will be the incumbent Lieutenant Governor Zell Miller, who like Dickson will be running as a Democrat. Miller, a former political science professor, was elected as a conservative populist, proclaiming in rural Georgia “Lester Maddox is like a second father to me.” Once in office, however, Miller emerged as the most liberal person ever to hold Georgia’s second highest office. Miller has endorsed the Equal Rights Amendment, stated his support for reverse discrimination and supported unionization of public employees. He was an early supporter of Jimmy the Tooth’s presidential bid when most public figures in Georgia were coyly ambiguous about the Carter candidacy.

Miller is a staunch pro-minority bigot and the personification of the political truckler. When criticized for his support of quota hiring of blacks, Miller called his critic a “redneck” for opposing reverse discrimination. Redneck, we need not be reminded, is an ethnic pejorative for Anglo-Saxon farmers and by using such a term Miller showed himself to be one of those ethno-masochists who apply racial slurs to their own kind, while reacting with moral indignation to anyone using such terms for minority groups.

Dickson’s candidacy will be perhaps the first serious and intelligent Majority-oriented political effort in the United States in recent history. This alone makes his campaign of interest to informed Majority members all over the nation. Georgia is the southern center of communications and Atlanta is the capital of liberal and minority influence in the region. Dickson’s activity will therefore influence events far beyond Georgia and his campaign may serve as a model for others around the country.

Instaurationists interested in lending a helping hand—especially a financial helping hand—may write the Dickson for Lieutenant Governor Committee, Box 1183, Decatur, GA 30031. Dickson, by the way, is the first political candidate ever to be

THE BROCKWAY FILE

The following correspondence from a socialist official in the Falkland Islands, the one British colony that has no blacks, to a desperate Briton who wants to settle there may be imaginary. But nothing presents a truer picture of the mindless anti-white leveling ideology of the present British bureaucracy. The "Brockway File" first appeared in Race and Nation, a publication of the Racial Preservation Society, 35 Hollingbury Road, Brighton, Sussex, England.

Whitehulme, Falkland Islands, Nr. South America September 10th

Dear Mr. Whiteserf,

Thank you for your letter. I have placed your application for settlement on this island before the Socialist Housing Trust, of which I am the Secretary, but I'm afraid I cannot offer much hope of its success.

I note that you describe yourself as a "typical British working man." Please don't think me snobbish but I have to tell you that ours is a rather exclusive development intended for Socialist millionaires and Marxist entrepreneurs; bankers, property speculators and the like. It is possible that you would feel rather out of place here.

I also note that your letter had a somewhat racist tone. This is not the "last outpost of white civilisation" and I do not accept your description of Britain today as "a banana republic without bananas!" I think I should tell you that I happen also to be the Secretary of the Tierra Del Fuego Anti-Apartheid Movement.

Sincerely yours,
Imogen Brockway

Whitehulme, Falkland Islands

Sept. 30th

Dear Mr. Whiteserf,

I am in receipt of your letter. I resent your suggestion that any of our Socialist millionaires are "on the run from the law" or that they left Britain "to get away from the blacks." In fact, many of our millionaires are titiled people, some of whom received their honours from Sir Harold Wilson himself.

It is true that our population is entirely white and our schools as well, but this is merely because no black people have ever lived here.

This, however, had no influence on our decision to settle here since we all believe that Britain's future lies in the mingling of the races and are firm in our commitment to the eternal Brotherhood of Man.

I regret to inform you that your application to settle here has been rejected by the Board as they do not consider you to be the right type.

Yours sincerely,
Imogen Brockway

Whitehulme, Falkland Islands

October 21st

Dear Mr. Whiteserf,

I have received yet another of your whining letters, my view of which is not improved by the fact that I have been out all night assisting our Socialist Peace-keeping Force in repelling an attempted invasion of our island by a boatload of white racist refugees from London.

Just what is this nonsense about your wife and daughter being afraid to go out at night? Really Mr. Whiteserf, they must forget all this Victorian nonsense and be prepared to rough it in the Brave New World as it is.

I see no point in your moving from Birmingham. It may be that as black people they take their proper place in society, white racists in the United States may well move out into new suburbs, but then they have plenty of space to move into. If you move out of Birmingham you will merely be colliding with white racists moving out of Leicester or Wolverhampton. Better stay where you are and take your medicine.

The fact that the Great Miscegenator, Mr. Mark Bonham Carter, has a manor in the heart of Sussex is quite irrelevant as is your suggestion that it is many miles away from the nearest coloured immigrant. It is true that Mr. James Callaghan has a large estate close to Mark and that Dennis Healey has a large mansion not far away but I consider your description of the area as a "Hypocrites' funkhole" to be grossly insulting to fine men whose dedication to the Great British Melting Pot is beyond question. You would do well to remember that these men have positions to keep up. Mr. Callaghan has important relatives in the Diplomatic Service and Mr. Dennis Healey is an associate of International Bankers, albeit in a mental capacity.

In answer to your question: no, Mr. Whiteserf, the Board will not reconsider your application for residence on this island.

Yours,
Imogen Brockway

Whitehulme, Falkland Islands
November 14th

Dear Sir,

Not again! I do not agree with you that the new Commission for Racial Equality is "a kind of sooty Ku Klux Klan," that its Chairman, Mr. David Lane, is a "swarthy bugger," or that, in his former role as Conservative M.P. for Cambridge, he was "the nearest thing to a statutory black that the Tories could get elected."

I do not think that Mr. Clifton Robinson, the Deputy Chairman and a fine West Indian gentleman was trying to "raise the colour" when he married the young white lady. She is, after all, merely atoning for the past wrongs inflicted on coloured people by white racists like you and he is merely implementing the stated policy of the Commission by mingling with the races.

In fact it is my opinion that the Commission for Racial Equality is the most ambitious project of its kind since the Spanish Inquisition though, apart from a little Mohammedanism, a trifle of Hinduism and a soupcon of voodoo, it has no religious connotations. I am sure Mr. David Lane will know how to deal with racist heretics like you.

Unlike you, I am glad that this year's Tory Conference had more black delegates than Labour and Liberal put together. I only wish that Mrs. Thatcher could have worn the blue sari that she says suits her so much and thereby demonstrated her contempt for Tory racists.

Once again I must insist that your application for entry will not be entertained. Ours is a Socialist Housing Trust and the fact that we have no coloured residents is due simply to lack of suitable housing. Please don't bother to reply.

Yrs.
Imogen Brockway

Whitehulme, Falkland Islands
December 7th

Sir,

This correspondence must cease. I am not interested in your opinion of Mr. Merlyn Rees as "the IRA's best friend since William Whitelaw" nor do I see any connection between Mr. Rees's failure to suppress the IRA and his determination to suppress the National Front. There is, furthermore, nothing to be gained by calling Mr. Whitelaw a "putty-faced Tory swine."

I do not believe that the presence on the Commission for Racial Equality of Mr. Bashir Maan, Mr. Pranlal Sheth, Mrs. Anowara Jahan and Dr. Preetam Singh will worsen race relations as you allege or that they will be "lording it over the whites."

Yes, I have observed that Bashir Maan and Pranlal Sheth are part-time Deputy Chairmen of the CRE and I do not know what they do with the other part of their time. Your suggestion that it may be used for "smuggling illegal immigrants, drug peddling or brothel-keeping" is quite grotesque.

RACE AND ATHLETICS
(PART II)

No Instauration article has produced as much feedback as “Race and Athletics,” which appeared in the January 1978 issue. Disapprovers outnumbered approvers by at least ten to one. Since the correspondence is too voluminous to put in the “Safety Valve,” we decided to collect it all together and run it as a second part of the original article.

Instauration exaggerated the influence of black racism in sports. It is hard, for example, to find any enterprise in the world so completely dominated by whites as hockey, both at the college and professional level. I doubt if there is a single black in any of the eighteen teams of the National Hockey League. In the NHL and college hockey games I have attended, even very recently, I can't recall seeing one black among the spectators.

The sports steadily infiltrated by blacks are baseball, football, basketball and boxing. All others have either no blacks at all, or just a token black, as in tennis and golf. I speak here only of professionals. It is only in the last few years that soccer has moved into the consciousness of sport lovers. It has few Negroes, even if its most celebrated professional is, or was, Pele, a Brazilian black. The games shown on public TV rarely include a black player.

Is there a connection between sports being taken over by blacks and Jewish ownership? Certainly there are far more franchises controlled by Jews than those mentioned in the Instauration article.

What is the relationship between Jewish owners, blacks, professional sports and gambling? Are pro sports fixed? Not perhaps in the sense of “throwing” games as Chicago threw the 1919 World Series. But there are such things as relaxed performances, point-shaving and many other ways in which the outcome can be determined. How many pros are on one or several kinds of dope? The tough and outspoken Tom Duggan, for years host of a TV talk show on Channel 13 in Los Angeles, maintained all pro sports were fixed. He had been run out of Chicago by the mob, which controlled boxing at the Stadium, where he charged fixed bouts were being put on as a matter of course. I am inclined to believe that two sports are definitely fixed—basketball and boxing. Much that is funny also goes on in pro football games.

Why are blacks clustered in just a few sports? When and how often does even a passable black quarterback appear in pro football? How many blacks are prominent in anything but the short-distance running events of track? When is the last time there was a black decathlon champion or a marathon winner? How often is there an outstanding black catcher or third baseman?

Why have Jews disappeared so completely as participants in sports and steadily concentrated on control and ownership? Fifty years ago there were still quite a few Jewish pro boxers. Are there any today? There once were a few excellent baseball players from Jewish ranks—Hank Greenberg of Detroit and Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles—but no more. Has this any significance?

To what extent have sports been altered and adapted to the presence of blacks? The basketball played today is the black version of the sport developed in ghetto schools and playgrounds, a very rough and physical contact game compared to the game devised by Naismith 85 years ago. In the 1930s, the center jump was eliminated after every point or points scored, basketball was still not a contact sport, and any body contact detected by a referee resulted in a foul. Today the pushing, shoving, holding, elbowing and various forms of modified mayhem have become an accepted part of the sport.

And how about platooning in football, which makes it possible to use specialists for just a few minutes in an entire game? In oldtime football if you made the team, you stayed out there all day, both in offense and defense. How many of today's pros could do that? There was an All-American team 50 or so years ago which had only ten men. Bronko Nagurski of Minnesota made it in two positions, fullback and tackle.

What about baseball? Now they play with gloves which are modified washtubs compared to what players had in the generation when no blacks were around. Baseballs are acting more and more like golf balls. When hit solidly they fairly leap out of the park and sail halfway out of town. Night baseball and air travel have increased pressures on players and ended the more leisurely train rides and days off between games. (How many fifteen-year-men are in baseball today, and how many play that long in a professional career?) There is far more substitution now, far more use of pinch hitters who never field, and pitchers who never hold a bat.

As for playing conditions, football and baseball are increasingly being played on carpeted surfaces. Basketball takes place in fabulous enclosures which far exceed concert halls in opulence, lighting and spectator comforts. The difference in salaries might also be mentioned. There are now people in pro sports drawing down ten to twenty times Babe Ruth's take-home pay. The doubling of the nation's population in the last half-century should have doubled the number of qualified performers, but that has not happened. One of the crying necessities in pro sports today is enough good players to go around to staff the expanded number of teams. After a handful of outstanding stars, the roster trails off very quickly to journeymen, and in some cases there are little more than warm bodies to fill out the necessary spaces.

I am not inclined to concede that blacks have a racial advantage responsible for their “superiority.” I don't care how heavy their bones are or how bulging their gluteus maximus. They are not that good. Even in modern baseball, the only game they really dominate, I think the best players have been and are white. The pro champs, the
Haley was wrong by 300 years, his critic by 200

THE ROOTS OF ROOTS

Alex Haley, who recently received the ADL’s Torch of Liberty award for his bestseller, must be pronounced guilty of first-degree historical dilettantism for writing that no white man appeared in his hero’s town of Juffure prior to 1767. Mark Ottaway, the British reporter, although he predates the white presence by a century, also seems to be wide of the mark. White settlements existed in Gambia well before 1661.

The subject of early colonialization of Gambia was thoroughly researched by Dr. E. Andersons, in his volume, Seti Plivoja Kurzemes Karogi (1970), which

The first European explorers to reach the Gambia river were the Portuguese. In 1455 Henry the Navigator dispatched a Venetian sea captain by the name of Cadamosto to find the river’s outlet into the Atlantic. That same year he also sent the Genoan captain Antaniotto Usi di Mare with two ships on a similar mission. The two decided to join forces, accomplished their mission and sailed away after encountering hostile natives.

In 1456 both captains returned with three ships. This time finding no resistance they proceeded eastward up the river, near the mouth of which they found an island shaped like a flatiron, where they disembarked to bury a deceased sailor. The sailor was called Andrew, and the island was given the name of his patron saint. In later years hundreds of Europeans, Portuguese, Dutch, French, Courlanders and English found their resting place there.

A backward glance at some long-range nuclear strategy

WHY AND HOW

CHINA GOT THE BOMB

On January 30, 1933 a Certain Person took power in Europe. The U.S., which had no diplomatic relations with Communist Russia, was then visited in June 1933 by one Maxim Litvinov. Roosevelt had consented to recognize the Soviet Union. The visit by Litvinov would formalize things and get the show on the road.

The First World War, if it did nothing else, proved that no European military combination would be able to defeat Germany. It took U.S. power to tip the scales. But in 1933 the U.S. did not recognize Russia and a military alliance between these two powers was the only means the liberal-minority coalition could depend on for victory over Germany. Therefore, there was a lively communication, not for the first time, across the capitalist-communist frontier. We know that Napoleon’s Continental System was penetrated daily by enemies. So was, and is, the Iron Curtain.

The mood in 1933 among the New Dealers was desperate. Could the U.S. be armed in time? The question of timing was paramount, for if France and England went down in a fast blow, and the Germans turned eastward, and Russia went down, the United States would be paralyzed, repeat, paralyzed. Nazi Germany would be in control of the resources and manpower of all Europe—and allied with Japan! Something was needed besides a tenuous Russo-American alliance.

Now we all have learned about the frantic international cooperation by physicist after physicist, minority members nearly to a man, in the intense search for a practicable nuclear weapon to use on the Germans, a search inspired by the doubt that America could be geared for World War II in time. If such bombs could be developed and produced, Germany could be destroyed even with France, England and Russia prostrate. The feverish nature of the research is evident to anyone who has studied the individuals involved. Einstein was the key go-between in delivering the data from the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute to the U.S. and the affair was considered so crucial that only minority members were deemed trustworthy to carry it out. The trio in charge was Morgenthau, Lilienthal and Oppenheimer. In the Soviet Union, Landau and a whole string of minority scientists were receiving all the “secret” bomb plans.

Harry S. Truman stated that as vice president he did not know of the existence of the Manhattan Project, the U.S. atomic bomb assembly line. If he, the #2 man in Washington did not know of the project, imagine what he knew about what was going on earlier in the 1930s—that is, from January 30, 1933 on.

What nobody knew, or even knows now, was that the liberal-minority coalition was setting up a second nuclear bomb project for China. All that one can deduce logically is that if France, England and Russia collapsed and America finked out in one of its Congressional fits, the Chinese, preferably the Chinese Communists, would have a nuclear weapon for use on a Certain Person.

The source for this deduction is The China Cloud, America’s Tragic Blunder and China’s Rise to Nuclear Power by William L. Ryan and Sam Summerlin (Little, Brown, 1968).

The top eighty Chinese nuclear physicists received their training in America, primarily at the California Institute of Technology, but also at M.I.T., Harvard, Yale and the universities of Chicago, Michigan, California and Columbia. These eighty men are the ones responsible for setting off the first Communist Chinese hydrogen bomb on June 17, 1967, over the Takla Mahan desert in Sinkiang. Tsien Hsue-shen, the chief missileman in this successful test, received his
The Cultural Catacombs

The Dictionary As Political Primer

For those whose curiosity leads them to search for the meaning of certain political terms used extensively in the U.S., a logical start is the dictionary, The New American Webster Handy College Dictionary, published by Signet at 75¢, graces the desks of many college students, as well as many other categories of citizens, due no doubt to its nominal price and prestigious name. A search in this book produced the following definitions:

democracy: 1. government by the people.

2. political and social equality in general, in belief in this.

democrat: 1. a believer in democracy.

2. one who treats all others as his equals.

republic: a nation whose government is wholly elected, having no king.

republican: 1 being, pert. to or favoring a republic (adj). 2. one who favors republican government (noun).

Next, let us look at how the ideologies of our foreign friends are defined.

communism: a social theory that the common people should own all property and means of production.

socialism: ownership of exploitable capital and means of production by the government, not by individuals or by private enterprise.

fascism: a strongly nationalistic regime characterized by regimentation, rigid censorship, and suppression of opposition.

Someone who is unfamiliar with the operational aspects of these terms and who is a strict dictionarian might reason that communism is not too different from democracy, that socialism is the opposite of communism, and that fascism is the only kind of government that is repressive.

Three other interesting definitions are:

conservative: 1. opposed to change.

2. moderate, not extreme.

3. protecting from loss, waste, or injury.

liberal: 1. favoring progress and reform in social institutions, and the fullest practical liberty of individual action.

2. tolerant.

3. not strict.

radical: (noun/politics) an extreme liberal in politics.

We could write pages about these definitions, but we won’t. They speak eloquently for themselves. We will only leave our readers with the puzzling thought that, according to The New American Webster Handy College Dictionary, all radicals are liberals. In other words, there can be no such thing as the radical right.

Mutual Backscratching

Bantam Books has a proud new offering, The Jewish Connection by M. Hirsch Goldberg. It comes with the enthusiastic endorsement of such prominent literary lights as Sam Levenson and Harry Golden. It is, as they say in the trade, a significant book.

Author Goldberg has many things to tell us: the Star of David only became the emblem of the Jews in 1897, when it was adopted by a Zionist convention; Jews invented the telephone; Jews invented the telephone; Jews were the original discoverers of petroleum.

He goes on and on, but we hope that Messrs. Golden and Levenson will forgive us if we cut off Mr. Goldberg before he is given more space than he deserves.

The Eagle’s Drooping Pinions

Nothing is more risible than polls that show Americans are shifting to the right. A recent Gallup sampling reported that 47% of those queried described themselves as “right of center,” 32% “left of center,” 10% “middle of the road.” What does this division of opinion really signify? Merely that the political distance between the ruled and the rulers is widening. Consequently, the rulers in upcoming elections will have to be more careful to see that the ruled will have even less chance to vote for a candidate that even remotely represents their wishes and interests. Such polls also give standing notice to minority leaders that they should redouble their efforts to take over the right. That this campaign is on schedule is proved by the recent effusive comments in the mass media about the “intelligence” and “coherence” of neo-conservatives. Even Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., the well-known Unitarian, has some good words to say about them. Why not? Quite a few leaders of the New Right were leaders of the Old Left. As Kevin Phillips writes, “Many prominent neo-conservatives are Jewish, prompting law professor Isador Silver to contend in a recent article in The Nation that neo-conservatism is ‘a reaction to one major trauma—the fear of anti-Semitism.’”

The American eagle was quite a bird. But when he dies, as happens to all birds, both his right and his left wings die with him.

Rehabilitating the Red Man

Robert Conquest, the Britisher who was one of the first to come out with an irrefutable exposé of Stalin’s Great Terror, has now turned his probing mind to the intellectual terror rampant in the West. In a recent column in the London Daily Telegraph he reports that the Nebraska Historical Society has withdrawn from display a famous painting by George Catlin, which depicted a traditional Pawnee Indian ceremony. Catlin had drawn the ceremony from life. It began in the evening when amid solemn religious chants a captive maiden was bound to a wooden framework. At the first appearance of the Morning Star, an Indian brave shot her dead with an arrow. The painting, the Society explained, had been taken down at the request of local Indians.

Conquest also referred to a memorial in Santa Fe, New Mexico, which celebrated an army regiment’s victory over “savage Indians and traitorous Indians.” The “savage” has now been gouged out of the stone.

What, asks Conquest, is to be done about the Declaration of Independence, with its reference to the “merciless Indian Savages, whose known Rule of Warfare, is an undistinguished Destruction of all Ages, Sexes and Conditions”?

Being vs. Doing

Mother Alexandra is the abbess of the Orthodox Monastery of the Transfiguration in Ellwood City, Pa. Like the salad days of Sts. Francis and Augustine, her early life was not as austerely celibate as her present position would suggest. The youngest daughter of King Ferdinand and Queen Marie of Romania, she married Archduke Anton of Austria and bore him six children, which she saw through to adulthood in a world not too sympathetic to royalty. Then she entered an Eastern Orthodox monastery in France. She will probably end her days in Pennsylvania, the state founded by members of a religious denomination which is the polar opposite of her own.

It is a rare treat to hear authentic voices from an old, authentically different culture. Here is Mother Alexandra's answering the query, "What does your monastic community do?"

"That's such an American question," she replied. "It's not what we do that's important; it's what we are. In our tradition, we emphasize being more than doing. It's what I am that makes what I do worthwhile."

Propaganda Lag

Fascinating, extremely fascinating, is the slow percolation of good or bad ideas upward or downward. As an example of the "bad down" category, we point to the October 8, 1973, issue of Awake!, the Jehovah's Witnesses' publication, which claims a circulation of 10,125,000.

The issue was entirely devoted to racial differences. On page 3 the thesis was "Races are Strikingly Different." For the next 24 pages the reader's mind was blitzed, bewitched and befuddled with the antithesis. The whole magazine might have been written by Franz Boas, who started promulgating his equilitarian anthropology some 60 years ago at Columbia University.

It took more than half a century for Boas' propaganda to cross the East River and reach the main office of Jehovah's Witnesses at 117 Adam St., Brooklyn.

Robert F. Carroll, the first black vice-president of the City College of New York, has been indicted for grand larceny in connection with the disappearance of $86,172. Carroll was a leading advocate of lavish federal subsidies for urban colleges with large minority student bodies. The missing cash could have provided a lot of scholarships.

Leslie Fiedler, the Jewish literatus who once accused Shakespeare of being a bigot, has a new theory. American literature, he asserts, is dominated by the theme of a unisex relationship between white men and "men of color." He cites Natty Bumppo and Chingachgook in Cooper's Leatherstocking Tales, Ishmael and Queequeg in Melville's Moby Dick and Huck and Nigger Jim in Mark Twain's classic. It seems Fiedler, who likes to see his family smoking pot, will never be happy until he proves that America's greatest literature is no more than Freudian corn salted with some Portnoyish porn.

Fred Silverman, the television "genius" behind "Roots," "Soap," and "Me and the Chimp," will move over to NBC this summer as president and chief executive at a reported salary of close to $1 million a year. Edgar W. Griffiths, the Majority president and chief executive of RCA, NBC's parent company, engineered the deal and was exultant. For sending the American cultural gradient off on another deep dive, the renegadism of Griffiths is more to be blamed than the congenital throwbackism of Silverman.

A recent Carnegie Commission study states that there are now 50,000 full-time Jewish professors in American universities and colleges. Jews, moreover, represent 17% of the faculty in the 17 leading universities. Twenty-five percent of them teach law; 22% medicine; 20% biochemistry; between 15% and 20% psychology, bacteriology and economics; 14% physics, chemistry and math.

Last year President Carter awarded the National Medal For Science to fifteen men, prefacing the ceremony with a short speech on the decline of American science. Of the medal winners six were Jews and six were Majority members, one of the latter being Edward O. Wilson, who received his award not for his pioneering work on sociobiology, but "for studies of insect societies." The remainder were racially unidentifiable.

The Title VII program, which pours federal money into special educational projects for blacks and other minorities, has been going on in the Champaign-Urbana, Illinois, area since 1973. The project has failed miserably. No matter how much money is spent and how much extra attention is lavished on black students, they continue to score well below whites in achievement tests and grades. Nevertheless, the district is now seeking $620,000 more from HEW to continue the program in 1978-79.
Trashing Mozart

Jean Raspail in The Camp of the Saints has a character say of the music of Mozart, "What was there in the world more Western than Mozart?" Probably no other music is so perfect, so flawless. In the orgy of perverting the West's musical masterpieces, it was only a question of time before the culture vultures turned their attention to Mozart.

Last December the Nevada Opera Company put on a performance of Mozart's The Magic Flute that, according to critic Jack Neal of the Nevada State Journal, "found itself in an orbit more closely attuned to the Star Wars odyssey than to the Viennese fairytale Mozart thought he wrote. Set and lighting director David Agress created a multimedia scaffolding set which reached upward to the heavens, bursting into a kind of golden medallion. The superstructure supported five large screens on which projections were flashed highlighting the symbolism of music."

Who was behind this nonsense? To quote Neal again, "In Reno, Nevada impresario Ted Puffer has the kind of clout that it takes to attempt the outrageously avant-garde. For better or worse, he used that clout to blast Magic Flute into the Space Age."

Neal's commonsense review irritated the critic of the Reno Evening Gazette, Mark Oliva, who in a front-page, eight-column story, said that Puffer's revision was "the most important and revolutionary new production idea to come forth in more than a decade." Gazette theater critic Neal Metal joined Oliva by calling Jack Neal's remarks "unimaginative." The controversy stimulated a national wire service story, and the consequent publicity attracted large audiences for the second performance.

"Ultimately," Jack Neal wrote, "production failed because theatrical exaggeration swamped the subtle Mozart score with gadgetry. Gone was the Magic Flute's raison d'être—Mozart's deep and abiding sense of humanity. No one noticed the wonderful warmth of the music because they were too involved ogling the busy-ness of the show."

In the good old days such outrageous distortions were traditionally blocked by the conscience and inherited artistic taste of the producers, directors and composers. Today, unfortunately, few Majority members are willing to defend that most valuable legacy of Western culture, the works of Mozart, whose cultural and racial affinities were not by a long shot those of the people who are taking over his—and our—music.

National Referenda

If there is one thing professional democrats cannot abide, it is the initiative or referendum. This is pure 24-carat democracy. It actually allows the ordinary man in the street to cast his vote directly on vitally important issues.

Some 23 states permit the initiative in one form or another, among them California. Right now one initiative is being prepared by a California group to keep property taxes at 1% of assessed value. Politicians are going wild in their efforts to defeat it, and keep the old cornucopia overbrimming.

In Congress, Senators Abourezk and Hatfield have introduced a bill providing for a national initiative which would have the power to make or annul laws in all areas of legislation except Congress's right to make war, raise troops and propose constitutional amendments. To get a referendum underway, the major requirement would be the gathering of signatures in a period of 18 months of 3% of the voters in the previous presidential elections.

Once the signatures were validated, the referendum would be held in the next even-numbered year. If it passed by a simple majority, Congress would retain the right to amend or repeal the law within three years by a two-thirds vote and after two year by a simple majority vote.

The congressional restrictions take a great deal of the sting out of the sting. But the greatest enemy of the referendum, the greatest enemy of any genuine attempt at genuine democracy in this country, is, and will remain, the judiciary—the same judiciary which continually thwarts the popular will in the matter of forced busing, affirmative action, foreign aid, etc., etc.

Some years ago Californians triumphantly supported a referendum against open housing by a two-thirds margin. Swiftly and efficiently, the state Supreme Court knocked it down.

Canine Racism

A London black, David Rechas, recently complained to the Commission for Racial Equality that a dog named Toby barked viciously at him and other Negroes. Toby, however, never bothered white passersby. The dog's owner, a white Londoner, admitted this was true. "He never bites them," he said. "We didn't train him that way. It was only after a few weeks that we noticed his prejudice."
Menahem in World War II

The Associated Press has reported that in World War II the Nazis occupied Brest Litovsk in Poland and killed Begin's father, mother and sister, throwing his father into a river with a rock tied to his neck. Then the Russians who replaced the Germans sent Begin to a Siberian labor camp from which he was freed "two years later." The press report says he arrived in Palestine in 1942.

The chronology is somewhat confusing. The story seems to date the "atrocity" in 1940, when there were no Nazi troops in Brest Litovsk, which was in Russian-occupied Poland and whose greatest claim to fame is the treaty signed there in 1918 by various Bolshevik leaders—hardly any of them authentic Russians—when they gave away some of the most valuable parts of the Russian Empire. The Nazis only spent four days in the city (Sept. 18-22, 1939) at the very end of the Polish campaign. But since they were on the wrong side of the Russian-German demarcation line, Guderian's crack troops hardly had time to evacuate their own wounded and damaged tanks to make way for the partition-happy Russians. Could it be that a Commissar, not a Gauleiter, committed the holocaust of the Begin? After all, Russians, apparently under the command of a Soviet Gulagist named Blatt, did liquidate 15,400 Poles in Katyn and parts north.

Is He or Isn't He?

Let all Doubting Thomases take heed. There is such a thing as kosher conservatism. In fact, it seems to be the dominant conservatism in the world today—the model regime being Menahem Begin's government in Israel.

But aside from Zionists, are there kosher racists? Are there kosher advocates of racial differences, such as Shockley and Jensen?

Some would convince us that there are. The examples furnished are Hans J. Eysenck and Richard Herrnstein. The latter is obviously Jewish, but he has never stated anything about racial differences per se. His idée maîtresse that intermarriage among intellectuals will eventually widen the IQ disparities that divide the lower from the professional and academic classes says nothing about blacks and whites.

As for Eysenck, many commentators believe he is Jewish because he keeps harping on the fact he left Hitler Germany at the age of 17. An interviewer in Britain, however, has quoted Eysenck directly as saying he is not Jewish. During his recent visit to Australia, where he was routinely hooted off several speaker's platforms, more news came out about his background. Eysenck claimed he left Germany to escape joining the SS, membership in which he said was required at that time for entrance into German universities. He then added that his mother was clapped in a "French" concentration camp because her second husband was Jewish, and that his grandmother died in a concentration camp.

All this is rather contradictory and confusing. No one was accepted in the SS if he was Jewish. A mother in a French concentration camp with a second husband who was Jewish does not mean that Eysenck himself is a Jew. But what about that grandmother?

The question remains, Is He or Isn't He?

Sitting on SAT

We bought On Further Examination: Report of the Advisory Panel on the Scholastic Aptitude Test Score Decline (College Entrance Examination Board, N.Y., 1977) to see how the sharp and continuing fall of SAT scores would be explained. Since Willard Wirtz, a Kennedy liberal and former Secretary of Labor, was chairman of the panel and Harold Howe II, Ford Foundation bigwig, was vice chairman, we had no illusions. Objectivity was obviously going to be in short supply.

In 1962-63 the study admitted that only 1%-2% of those who took SAT tests were black. In that school year the SAT-verbal score mean was 478, the SAT-mathematical score was 502. In 1972-73, when 8% of the test takers were black, the SAT-verbal score mean had fallen to 443, the SAT-math to 481. In 1976-77, when more blacks were taking the test, the SAT-verbal score mean was 429, the SAT-math 471.

Was race a prime factor in the decline? Mr. Wirtz, predictably, denies it. The decline, his panel affirms, was "not that more minority members now take SAT, but that despite statutory guarantees of equal opportunity the society has not yet developed either the educational means or the mores that will bring children with different racial roots to a parity of aptitude—as the SAT and other test measure it—by the time they reach the 12th grade."

The panel also found no racial reasons for teachers giving their pupils 25% more A's, for the scourge of truancy (even 25% is not considered unusual for some big city schools), for students being promoted to the next grade after failing all their examinations in their previous grades, for homework being drastically reduced, for textbooks being "written down," for the fact that, all in all, educational standards through out the public school system have come crashing down in the last ten years.

The substantially lower score mean (445) of the females taking the SAT-verbal test, compared to the male score mean (497), was blamed on "traditional sex stereotyping."

Finally, it was acknowledged that negative effects on education had been found where there were large-scale disruptions due to forced busing. But these disruptions, Mr. Wirtz and company reassured us, were "of short duration."

Strange Fruits

Preachers are a strange lot, and an increasingly queer lot. Everyone has heard about the pious pederasty of the Reverend Billy James Hargis (after performing one marriage he propositioned not one but both of the spouses). Now we are being told about the lechery of Garner Ted Armstrong, the radio-TV evangelist and president of Ambassador College. A recent publication called The Ambassador Report, put out by some of the college students, contained an article "In Bed With Garner Ted—America's Playboy Preacher," presumably based on an interview with a coed who was getting her lessons by the pillow method.

Preachers in Germany have a different claim to fame. Four of the most notorious German terrorists—Ulrike Meinhof, Gudrun Ennslin, Joerg Lang and Christine Kuby—were the offspring of ministers.
European possessions in Africa have demonstrably gravitated into military, Communist or other dictatorships. To be free, as Uganda, Guinea, Ghana, Indochina, Indonesia, Algeria, Egypt, Libya and Angola claim to be, is to be enslaved. To sever their connections with European rule, as with Lebanon, Syria, Cambodia, Nigeria, Laos, Congo or Palestine, is to invite massacre, dispossession of the indigenous peoples or continuous war. The close association between Nordicism and individual liberty makes it certain that China could never be remade into a democratic society. The Chinese have bowed their heads to despotic regimes for ages. When the dictator Chiang is deposed, the dictator Mao will replace him. If U.S. support is withdrawn from an autocratic regime in South Vietnam, we may be sure that the successor government will be another tyranny.

Those Majority members, and there are many, who have long believed Jews to be fundamentally Communists have been under an ethnic delusion for many years. Still another set of Majority worries see the Jews as primarily addicted to capitalism. The views are obviously not reconcilable and the truth is entirely different from both concepts. The Jews are not, as Toynbee said, the remnants of a fossil civilization. No ethnic strain is more up-to-date, more current and tuned-in to the daily zeitgeist, and the Jews in Israel can be seen to be neither Communist nor capitalist. They radiate, indeed, an aura of democracy in the Middle East and for a very real and timely purpose: The Jewish goal throughout the ages has been ethnic Elitism, first, last, all the time. The historic Jewish mission is not democracy. No Magna Charta, no Bill of Rights, no Nordic-style Constitution, no Virginia Declaration was ever issued by the Jews over the millennia, only authoritarian, absolutist law, not arrived at by the ballot box. The historic Jewish state was a theological despotism. Democracy, capitalism, Communism, Fabian Socialism, Marxism, Freudianism or whatnot are regarded by the Jews as tools to be used in the achievement of ethnic Elitism. If racial survival and advancement can be attained on Monday through capitalism, capitalism will be the Jewish party line. If, on a Tuesday, Communism seems to be the tool, Communism it will be. If on Wednesday Fabian Socialism appears to be a handy implement in a particular place of endeavor, that "ism" will be employed. If on Thursday to acquire American financial and military support it is necessary to arrange a U.S.-style "popular rule" nation in the Middle East, the Jews will come forward with it, even if it is necessary to expel a million Arabs from Palestine to do it. If on Friday imperialism looks like a promising device, imperialism will be used. If, on the sixth day, the Jews somehow temporarily arrive at a steady-state condition, they revert naturally to the political institution that they have conducted undeviatingly since the dawn of human history—ethnocracy, which is never what Americans call democracy.

A fundamental misunderstanding underlying the racial overtones of autocracy by decision-making personnel of the American government continues. Although the introduction of political democracy and independence to each former European possession in Africa has necessarily resulted in a despotism in each, the pressure on Rhodesia and South Africa continues lunatically to a point where two authentically democratic Nordic peoples are urged to subject themselves to something far transcending ordinary governmental tyranny. We are referring to black savagery. No "majority rule" in countries where Negroes outnumber Nordics can ever result in "majority rule." Only in the brutal domination by a semi-idiotic political minority—as in Haiti. Each such country without exception will revert by racial imperative to despotism.

The insensate, ignorant and tragic insistence on political precepts peculiar only to one specific race by American politicians, most of them drawn from the ranks of unsuccessful lawyers, without even a basic knowledge of the history and psychology of the non-Nordic races has since 1917 assisted vitally in the take-over of half the planet by the most efficient brand of modern tyranny—Communism. The racial and genetic origins of absolutist rule, and thereby Communism, are fixed and immutable by natural law. No State Department can change them. Yet each successive U.S. administration, composed of or goaded by an adroit coalition of liberals and minority racists, continues to blind the country and the world as to the biological realities of modern politics.

Because of the controversial nature of the above article, the author was asked to elucidate some of his principal thoughts. The following is his reply:

Eastern Germany is not a Nordic land and has not been so for many centuries. Its original inhabitants, the Borussians, were Slavs (Alpines). The Alpine race mixture in eastern Germany actually extends west of Berlin. Nazi claims to the contrary, the German nation is predominantly Alpine, not Nordic, and the German population that can be anthropologically identified as Nordic is found mostly in the northwest adjacent to Holland and Denmark, both Nordic countries. Nordics represent a minority in the German population. The only enduring autonomic democratic political structure ever developed in Germany was the Hanseatic League and this sprang up in the authentically Nordic area of the extreme north, Hamburg, Hadeln, Ditmarsh, Lubeck, mostly the maritime towns. Lubeck was the principal member and was the meeting place of the elected deputies who governed the League.

Germans, for purposes of national unity and pride, will go as far as to admit that the "Teutonic" (a philological term) race has absorbed Alpine elements. They would use a series of shifty and deceptive terms, the favorite being "Aryan," which is also meaningless except as the identification of a very generalized linguistic group. Another term was "Dinaric," which, although it specifies an authentic anthropological mixture between two Caucasoid races, does not identify a distinct race.

Among the Germans this sort of ethnic study became somewhat esoteric and understandably was soft-pedaled by the 1933-45 German government. Prior to that period the Kaiser's regime deliberately employed the same vague, unscientific and misleading nomenclature and attitudes. What was as humorous as it was redundant was the discovery in the 1800s that the German aristocracy in many parts of Germany was Nordic in racial type, while the middle class and proles were mixtures of Nordic and Alpine. This situation, which also existed in other parts of Europe, was caused, of course, by Nordic conquests of Alpines. The Nordic aristocracy, in marrying others of equal rank, did so for class reasons. Since class paralleled race, they unconsciously preserved their own ethnic type. Meanwhile, the Nordic bourgeois and proles mixed, ultimately over the centuries, with the conquered population and produced modern hybrids.

Many people are puzzled by Alpines and Nordics, which they do not identify as races. Obviously one of their senses, visions, is not functioning. All one need do is to compare Charles Lindbergh and Hubert Humphrey or Prince Philip and Khrushchev.

The German ideologists, in the interests of national unity, suppressed scientific information on their true

Organizations that have long been allied in the fight for civil rights, including the undersigned, find themselves on opposite sides of the case. It has been suggested in many quarters that the differences among us are evidence of an irreconcilable rift that foreshadows the end of the coalition that helped bring about the civil rights laws and advances of the past two decades. We reject all such predictions. Our differences on the merits, as well as on the ultimate impact of the Bakke case, are deep and not to be minimized. But neither should they be permitted to obscure the shared goals that still unite the American Jewish Committee, American Indian organizations, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and others.

The statement was issued under the auspices of Marvin Caplin, staff director; Arnold Aronson, secretary; and Joseph Rauh, Jr., counsel. The aged satellite businesses. If quotas are to be continued, they may lose a predominant influence in one of the nation's fastest-growing industries.

It is true that some of the prime movers of the civil rights movement, the American Jewish Committee, American Jewish Congress and Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, are behind Bakke. Why? Well, for one reason Jews are very conspicuous in the medical profession and many of its satellite businesses. If quotas are to be continued, they may lose a predominant influence in one of the nation's fastest-growing industries.

In North America and Western Europe the Nordic race is presented with a problem that seems to be insoluble, for there has grown up a population accepted by Nordics as Nordics. However, they are not Nordics in spite of a quasi-Nordic appearance. The Turk can readily be identified as an Alpine, and of the leading Communist in Germany under Hitler could invade it—we have here 80,000,000 against a Nordic trait, is a prepotent Nordic-Alpine hybrid. Strehler, the leading American and British armies. When they pulled out, the government will revert to republican. Germany was overrun by the leading Cardinal, and was backed up in this by a converted Kremlin, somewhat like Clovis in France, the Communists could talk Spain tomorrow “Adore what thou has burned, and burn what thou has adored.”

The greatest danger to its existence is the Alpine race. Not the Alpine race advancing sword in hand, but with a marriage license. Of the Northern European countries, only Britain and Scandinavia, cut off by water, escaped general brachycephalization or Alpinization. Meanwhile, a majority of the Mediterranean race, by intermarriage with Alpines, may also disappear as a distinct physical type in time.

However, they are not Nordics in spite of a quasi-Nordic appearance. The Turk can readily be identified as an Alpine, and of the leading Communist in Germany under Hitler could invade it—we have here 80,000,000 against Nordic-Alpine peoples, reveals that they are extremely submissive to authority. Rurik, who could not exert a despotic rule among his own Vikings, was invited to do so in Russia. As for the Mediterranean race, it follows the same pattern as the Alpine, with an extra helping of religious absolutism. In the case of the mixed Mediterranean-Alpine-Nordic peoples such as the Irish, there is a visible schizophrenia in which they bow down to religious authority, but are exceedingly rebellious politically. Certain Irishmen in Philadelphia could be observed to be in a perpetual, feverish state of hostility toward almost any authority, absolutely without fear, but would blanch with terror when the parish priest stopped at their house for the “block collection.” “Sure, father, yes, father, right away, father, I’ll do it, father.” If the leading Communist in Spain would permit himself to be converted by the leading Cardinal, and was backed up in this by a converted Kremlin, somewhat like Clovis in France, the Communists could talk Spain tomorrow “Adore what thou has burned, and burn what thou has adored.”

Biologically, the greatest menace to the Nordic race is not the Negro, the Semite, the Mongol, the Malay, the American Indian or the Mediterranean. The greatest danger to its existence is the Alpine race. Not the Alpine race advancing sword in hand, but with a marriage license. Of the Northern European countries, only Britain and Scandinavia, cut off by water, escaped general brachycephalization or Alpinization. Meanwhile, a majority of the Mediterranean race, by intermarriage with Alpines, may also disappear as a distinct physical type in time.

However, they are not Nordics in spite of a quasi-Nordic appearance. The Turk can readily be identified as an Alpine, as can also the Bulgarian, Croat, Slovene, etc. But how does one classify the blond, round-headed Frenchman, Irishman and Iowan?

The ethnic basis of despotic, cruel or oppressive governments has been obvious to the observer for all of recorded history. Try to imagine Attila, Genghis, Kublai Khan, Napoleon, Stalin or Hitler being concerned about a voting electorate. The Nordic, Nelson, who was probably the greatest sea fighter of them all, was a personally declared enemy of all tyranny “You do not ever deal with tyrants,” he remarked. “You simply go at them and wipe them out.”

Most non-Nordics, and we can add to them the untutored, unimaginative, or ignorant American politicians, have never realized the extent to which the British Empire brought a free society to large areas of the earth. Just as power is commonly mistaken for strength, which it is not, so independence is mistaken for freedom, which it is not. No one has ever counted the number of dead from tyranny since the U.S. State Department, backed by the Treasury Department, talked the British out of their empire beginning in 1945. No one has tallied the victims of tyranny since the U.S government refused to support the British against the Bolsheviks in 1917. If the definition of intelligence is the ability to learn from experience, one’s own or another’s, the IQ level of a long succession of U.S administrations must be extremely low. Recently, it has become abysmally low, for, from pursuing a policy that merely results in the removal of free institutions from one country after another, Washington is now moving into a danse macabre in southern Africa of a singularly gruesome nature, as horrible in its potentialities there as it will be later when there will be a rerun in the American metropolitan areas.
In their Bakke brief, would it be possible that Jewish organizations deplore the imposition of racial quotas in medical schools not because of constitutional principles, but because quotas would inevitably lead to black doctors treating black patients, Chicano doctors treating Chicano patients, and so on. This might be extremely embarrassing financially since Jewish medicals have a quasi-monopoly on treating blacks and other poor minorities in the big inner-city clinics. There is next to nothing in the way of satisfactory controls over Medicare and Medicaid payouts to doctors, who frequently make a half-million dollars a year in such fees. Then there are the doctors' profitable tie-ins to drugstores, laboratories and medical supply houses.

On the other side of the Bakke case, defending the already firmly established racial quota system in medical school admissions, are the Americans for Democratic Action, NAACP, National Education Association, Urban League, ACLU and the United Automobile Workers.

It is interesting in view of all this legal turnover to go back to one of the Supreme Court's decisions that effectively established racial quotas for school admission—Swann vs. Mecklenburg (1971). The Court, in a decision written by Chief Justice Burger, agreed unanimously: 'The District Court could properly take affirmative action in the form of remedial altering of attendance zones.' What was affirmed was the Charlotte (North Carolina) Federal District Court's order to modify attendance zones, 'so that the percentage of Negroes would range from about 9% to about 33% in each junior high school.' That, in plain language, is a quota system, and it sets a precedent. It will be fascinating to see how the Supreme Court is going to get around it.

Another curious aspect of the Bakke case is the appearance of lawyers on the anti-quota side who successfully advocated the imposition of racial quotas for school admission in Swann. These include James M. Nablut III, the ever present Uncle Tom front man, supported by Norman J. Chachken and Jack Greenberg, Adam Stein, the local (Charlotte) legal beagle, and Anthony Amsterdam, who once thought quotas were so important he came all the way to Charlotte from Stanford University, where he teaches law when he isn't meddling in civil rights matters.

Jewish advocacy of school admission quotas in North Carolina junior high schools, while contesting the same legal principle in California medical schools, might be considered inconsistent if not hypocritical. But perhaps it fits into a 'higher plan' that is invisible to the Majority lower orders.

The following are a few of the many unpleasant facts about Zell Miller.
1. Miller has endorsed the Equal Rights Amendment. This amendment would do nothing to achieve equal pay for equal work, but would only help the women's libbers, homosexuals and lesbians at the expense of the traditional values and protections currently enjoyed by the women of Georgia.
2. Miller has called publicly for the approval of the Panama Canal treaties.
3. Zell Miller has endorsed quota hiring and reverse discrimination, which would give jobs to blacks at the expense of better-qualified whites.
4. Miller has endorsed the Equal Opportunity Commission. Everyone knows that such agencies only promote discrimination against better-qualified white workers in favor of blacks and harass white businessmen.
5. Miller has endorsed legislation to require a specified percentage of state contracts to be awarded to black firms, even if these firms are unable to compete equally with white firms.
6. Miller has raised money for black-only voter registration drives. He has never raised money for white-only voter registration drives.

At last report the Dickson campaign was going well, except for the almost total media blackout which can only be countered effectively by expensive TV spots.

I have had enough. The fact that he had only one month’s service is irrelevant since many black people are absolutely brilliant.

I have no doubt that your son was disappointed at not being able to obtain a labourer’s position with a nationalised industry despite being a Bachelor of Science. Rather than express racist bitterness towards the Commission for Racial Equality, he might have done better to have ingratiated himself with a coloured employee of the company so that he might be recommended for a place on the waiting list.

I shall not stoop to comment on your hysterical abuse of the Commission for Racial Equality, all British politicians, and our own Socialist Housing Trust.

Dear Whiteserf,

I regard your refusal to acknowledge Mr. Tom Jackson as “a real white man” with complete indifference and I do not care if his union prevented you sending a letter to your brother in South Africa. You should be ashamed to have a brother living there.

As for your offensive remarks about Mr. Peter Hain, words fail me! How dare you say such things about a young man who fled racist S. Africa to pursue his missionary work in Britain. I believe he did the British a favour by refusing to allow them to be exposed to the corrupting influence of S. African rugby, cricket and croquet teams and his recent success in preventing S. Dear 17426 Whiteserf, May 10th

I was delighted to receive your letter and extremely gratified to note that your new address is the Heretics Wing of Brixton Scrubs Prison.

At least you have the consolation of knowing that you are living in the last all-white area in Britain where, I am sure, you will have a wonderful time swapping coarse racist jokes with your fellow heretics.

No, I will not intercede on your behalf! This correspondence is now closed!

him a distinct advantage at the high school level.

The better Negro football and basketball players go on to the college ranks and the best of the college players go to the pros. The nation, which suffers an acute television fixation, witnesses thousands of black bodies prancing up and down football fields and basketball courts each year. The minority-obsessant media take the cue and stipulate that blacks have superior athletic gifts.

The white can run with the Negro at any distance. However, the only race a Negro could win in swimming would be a race to the bottom. The white is fast on both land and water.

We are constantly reminded of the great jumping ability of Negores. It certainly seems that they are well suited for bouncing like bunnies on the basketball court and certainly no argument shall be made about their ability to jump bail. However, high jumping has largely been the province of the white man, who can hurl himself over a bar more than seven feet high.

Despite much talk about Negro muscles and strength, whites dominate weight-lifting. In other sports where strength is crucial—in track and field, shotput, discus, hammer throw and javelin—the record holders are almost all white.

If Negores are so fast, so strong and so limber, one would think they would have no competition in the decathlon. If Negores are so limber, one would think that they would make excellent gymnasts or great wrestlers.

Negro contributions to the Olympic Games have been much exaggerated. Only a tiny fraction of the medals have been won by blacks. America has earned a great many of her medals in events which are totally void of black participation.

"Race and Athletics" treats an important topic, but the author has missed the point entirely. I agree that athletics should be segregated, just as all our institutions should be, but certainly not for the reason that the author suggests—that blacks are generally superior in athletics to whites and therefore whites can't compete. The ever growing number of blacks in football does not mean that they are better players than whites anymore than the dominance of Jews in television means that they are more creative than non-Jews. Nor does the fact that our armed forces are becoming blacker signify that blacks have superior athletic gifts.

Integrated that Southeast Conference teams have lost their winning edge against good intersectional opponents. These days, thanks to Carter-type southerners (scalawags), one is apt to find more blacks on southern teams than Negroes. The exact opposite is the case! It is since they themselves have

The fact is that probably 90% of the blacks now playing are not academically qualified to be in college. Thus, favoritism not merit, has brought them to college in the first place, and the same favoritism often insures that they will play in the place of white players who are better athletes. These facts should not be surprising to anyone who is aware of what has been going on in our country for the past several years.

Any real football fan knows that, contrary to the drivel we are given by sportswriters and sportswriter coaches, the quality of football, both professional and collegiate, has gone down steadily over the past twenty years, in direct proportion to the influx of blacks into the game.

It may be that blacks are superior in some areas of athletics, but I would not agree that they have overall superiority or dominance. In the Rome Olympics both the 100 and 200 meter dashes were won by whites. In the Munich Olympics eight out of ten of the individual foot races on the flat were won by whites, five of them blonds.

Perhaps the most popular sport in the world is soccer, which has many black players. The current world champion, however, is West Germany. In the Munich Olympics an all-white Russian team defeated a black American team in the basketball finals. In boxing, Russian teams have defeated predominantly black U.S. teams in all nine meets. To my knowledge no black has ever won a gold medal in Olympic wrestling, which in the ancient Olympic games was considered the highest criterion of athletic performance.

A team full of blacks can be a distinct advantage at the high school level.

Early in the present season, Los Angeles basketball star Kareem Abdul-Jabbar threw a sneak punch at Milwaukee's Kent Benson, sending him to the hospital. Another Laker, Adrian Dantley, rushed into the Milwaukee dressing room after a game to throw a punch at Dave Meyers. Finally, Kermit Washington, then playing with the Lakers, threw a brutal sneak punch at Rudy Tomjanovich of Houston, sideling the Houston star for the rest of this year, and raising doubts about whether he would ever play again.

Benson, Meyers and Tomjanovich are white; Abdul-Jabbar, Dantley and Washington are black. Abdul-Jabbar was given only a five-game suspension and a $5,000 fine. Dantley was suspended for only three games, Washington was suspended for sixty days without pay, and is now playing again. Tomjanovich, on the other hand, may never play again.

If this type of intimidation and terror is tolerated in professional sports, imagine the similar incidents that take place in high schools and colleges. Officials, players and sportswriters would all undoubtedly deny that there was an attempt to destroy whites from playing these sports. But it may be symbolic that the top high-school basketball player (white) in California a few years ago, chose to go into minor league baseball rather than continue his basketball career in college. Baseball has a lower percentage of black players.

The excess of blacks in basketball has served as an impetus to other young black athletes. The Sporting News, in an editorial a few years ago, discussed the relatively low percentage of blacks in minor league baseball. Taking the Baltimore Orioles as an example, the paper asked why there weren't more blacks coming up from the minor leagues? A team official explained that black athletes were concentrating more on football and basketball.

All those devoted to the integrationist philosophy seem determined to stamp out any remaining vestiges of all-white accomplishments. For example, in South Boston before the busying order went into effect, the all-white South Boston High football team was the city champions. After the busying program started, the team was duly integrated. This past year, South Boston was badly defeated in the championship game.

In 1969, President Nixon was heavily criticized for proclaiming the University of Texas the No. 1 college football team before the official decision had been made. The stated reason was that Nixon was being unfair to the other teams vying with Texas for the honor. Unstated, however, was the fact that Texas was the last all-white college football team to win the national championship. Since then, Texas has followed the pattern of other southern schools in recruiting black athletes. This year, despite being ranked No. 1 all year, Texas was crushed by Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl.

Several seasons ago, the black players on the Syracuse University football team charged the coaching staff with racism and refused to play. The team had been losing, suddenly went into a winning streak, and many white players were quoted as saying that the black players weren't wanted as the team was doing better without them.
Manimansa, the ruler of Kantora. It was the Europeans' primary interest.

Gambia turned out to be devoid of the chief and over 100 of his subjects, and carried them off into slavery. Only the church was built at this time in San Domingo. Some French ships reached the mouth of the river. Their crews captured a local Mandingo in 1458. The Portuguese followed the Spanish. In 1491 the Portuguese Rodrigo Rodriguez signed a trade treaty with King Manimansa, the ruler of Kantora. It was mostly a waste of time because Gambia turned out to be devoid of the gold, ivory and other treasure which were the Europeans' primary interest. During this period, however, numerous Portuguese settled in Gambia, intermarried with the natives and became vassals to the local rulers.

In 1458 the Portuguese captain Diego Gomez made an arduous journey to the land that forms the easternmost part of Gambia. The priest Soto de Cassa disembarked and introduced the local inhabitants to the Christian religion at Nomimansa (considered to be either the modern Niumi or Barra). It is possible that the first Christian church was built at this time in San Domingo (see map). Consequently, Mr. Haley's date for the first appearance of Europeans in "Kunta Kinte Land" can be moved back more than 300 years.

The Spaniards followed the Portuguese. In 1475 three Andalusian ships reached the mouth of the river. Their crews captured a local Mandingo chief and over 100 of his subjects, and carried them off into slavery. Only the chief eventually regained his freedom after the personal intervention of Spanish King Ferdinand V.

In 1491 the Portuguese Rodriedo Rebelo signed a trade treaty with King Manimansa, the ruler of Kantora. It was mostly a waste of time because Gambia turned out to be devoid of the gold, ivory and other treasure which were the Europeans' primary interest. During this period, however, numerous Portuguese settled in Gambia, intermarried with the natives and became vassals to the local rulers.

The first Englishmen set foot in Gambia in 1553, arriving in two small ships with a Portuguese navigator. In 1560 some French ships from Dieppe dropped anchor in the Gambia river and began a series of visits that continued for the next thirty years. The Portuguese, however, continued to consider Gambia as their special domain and in 1570 two of their vessels attacked a French trader's vessel. In the following years when disorders erupted in Portugal and the country was annexed to the Spanish Empire, the Portuguese Francisco Ferrera led two English ships to Gambia. Although these ships returned to England in 1579 with a large supply of furs and ivory, the English were unable to continue the trade effectively. In 1598 Queen Elizabeth I granted a new charter to Charles, Earl of Nottingham, and Sir John Stanhope to carry on trade on the Gambia river, but these gentlemen were also unable to make the venture pay, due to the hostility of the blacks and the resident Portuguese.

In 1612 the French cavalier de Briqueville arrived with the intention of building several forts and support facilities for trading in Gambia. However, illness and numerous deaths caused by the severe climate of the rainy season forced the Frenchmen to abandon their mission.

From 1619 to 1621 the English again undertook several ventures under a charter from King James I. These visits were unsuccessful and proved costly in human lives lost in battles with the Portuguese and mulattoes. "Gold fever" was responsible for several British deaths in the upper reaches of the Gambia river. The native chieftains, incidentally, had an inordinate fondness for English alcoholic beverages, for which they offered black slaves. To one such offer an English captain called Richard Jobson is quoted as replying, "We are people who don't deal in this merchandise. We do not buy or sell anything that has human form."

Whites don't need special sports programs as called for in the article "Race and Athletics." White children should compete against black children. Stiff competition brings forth greater achievements with regard to physical skills. As a physical education teacher I realize that sports necessarily don't have to be the No.1 goal of a white child's life, even though it should be a priority. Blacks can put sports as their No.1 goal and education as No.2. Then we'll see who will ultimately do best in life.

But the athletic department surrendered to pressure, reinstated the black players and persuaded Coach Ben Schwartzwalder to resign. Today, the team is once again fully integrated.

Athletic departments allow black athletes to play even though they are academically unqualified for college. According to Michael Novak in The Joy of Sports, "some 30% of athletes apparently never [get] their degrees." A symbolic case is that of Tony Dorsett, football player with the Dallas Cowboys. Dorsett went to the University of Pittsburgh and, when a senior, won the Heisman Trophy as the top college football player of the year. After the football season ended in January, Dorsett didn't bother to return to Pittsburgh to finish up his last semester.

The Russian team captured the Olympics in 1976. But even more astounding was the performance of the East German team, which finished third behind the U.S.S.R. and the U.S. In fact, if the East German and West German totals are added together, Germans won 129 medals, the U.S.S.R., 125 and the U.S., 94.

In watching the Soviet and other East European teams compete against Americans, I was surprised at their superior attitude toward American blacks. Under the barrage of propaganda put out by the media, white American athletes often seem to develop an inferiority attitude when competing with blacks. The importance of race to the Russians was demonstrated a few years ago when a Russian basketball team was touring the U.S. One of the first questions the Russian coach asked was whether Bill Walton, the basketball superstar who would be competing against them, was white or black.

The myth of Negro physical superiority must be dispelled. But let us not forget the myths of omission as well as those of commission. I refer in particular to the legend of Jesse Owens as "hero" of the 1936 Olympics. What is never mentioned is that Nazi Germany won the 1936 Olympics, the only time before or since that a nation other than the U.S. or the U.S.S.R. has won the games. It might also be pointed out that the postwar decline of the U.S. in Olympic competition (winning 4 of 8 postwar games versus 10 of 11 prewar) coincides with the rise of integrationist practices.

education at Cal Tech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory. Like most of the rest, Tsien got his training free from funds contributed by the U.S. from its share of Boxer Rebellion indemnities.

Oddly enough, reading between the lines of The China Cloud, which is necessary in order to understand the factual information presented, one observes that the people working in the federal government and in the state government of California had no comprehension of the forces at work about them. But two Los Angeles detectives did. Their names were Bill Hynes and William Ward Kimple. Hynes was head of a "Red Squad" office (his idea) and Kimple was an undercover man who at first failed to get into the Communist apparatus. "Most were New York Jews," he would say in later years, "and I couldn't get into the Party."

Nevertheless, Hynes and Kimple penetrated into a most complex net centering on the training of the Chinese at Cal Tech as early as 1933. On page 44 of The China Cloud we learn that the Chinese, ostensibly not Communists, were placed in Cal Tech specifically for nuclear physics research. Theodore von Karman had assigned Tsien, mentioned above, to Cal Tech's JPL. Von Karman, a Hungarian Jew, was the great gathering point for data on possible missile delivery systems. He and Tsien were cooperating closely as early as 1935. A typical bit of chitchat by Von Karman, "I remember that Professor Paul S. Epstein of the Physics Department, a great theoretician, once said to me: 'Your student, H.S. Tsien, is in one of my classes.' 'Ja, he is good,' I replied. 'Tell me,' Epstein said with a twinkle in his eye, 'do you think he has Jewish blood?'

What Hynes and Kimple apparently ran across was Dr. Sidney Weinbaum's Community Party Professional Unit 122. Pasadena Section, which was formed in 1936 or 1937. Tsien was in contact with Weinbaum. Coming in and out of the homes where Professional Unit 122 met was the brother of J. Robert Oppenheimer.

The authors of The China Cloud at no time provide evidence that they quite understand what their assembly of facts indicate. One could never prove before a Congressional committee that the Red Chinese were placed in American schools of physics and rocket propulsion so that when the Chinese Communists overran China (1948) they would have a ready-made team to create a nuclear stockpile and delivery system. Neither could it be proved that the movement of each Chinese into a key college course was greased by minority members. But rest assured, it was. The pattern of coincidence, if it were argued to be a coincidence, would have arrayed against it the most astronomical odds imaginable.

The prevalence of minority physicists (and agents, organizers, technical directors, and espionage operators) in wartime atomic research around the planet has never been properly evaluated. When noticed at all, the phenomenon is attributed to some sort of "genius" absent in other physicists. The peculiar circumstance of minority members all along the path of nuclear development—even to the proprietors of rooming houses used by various conspirators—is not understood. For such a dense mass of minorityites—almost without end to them—to appear in coordination at a given time and in a given place would presuppose a powerful motive. The motive was a Certain Person, who had them literally desperate, working on a time schedule that was giving practically all of them a nervous disorder. The number of them who knew about what was going on in the U.S. probably included even the inmates of Miami Beach homes for the elderly. However, Truman says he didn't know.

Something of a similar nature is probably taking place now in regard to other technical developments. We may wake up one day and find out that not only the vice president knew nothing about it, but that the president was equally ignorant. This time the data will not be dispatched to Moscow—there's some sort of Russian revivalism going on in the Socialist motherland—but to a computer near Mount Zion.
Chicago: At Northwestern University, the Department of History has officially sponsored a series of lectures to denounce fellow faculty member, Professor Butz, and convince that more credulous students of the veracity of the six million saga. One would not be astonished, of course, if this had been done by the Department of Education or the Department of Superstition, both of which naturally back out whatever spell they think good for their business, but it is disconcerting to see this done by historians, who are supposed to have some concern for facts. One can sympathize with the American members of that department, who, like their institution’s president, lowered before the minority boot, but their slender submission is nonetheless demoralizing and disgraceful to a supposedly academic institution.

Detroit: It’s hard to believe, but we recently received a xerox of page 8 of a small Catholic publication in Detroit, St. Raymond’s Life and Worship, which proposed that priests in their next sermon demand $500 billion in reparations from Negroes. The money would be used to repay the cost of educating blacks and “the damage you have done to us and to our nation.” The article reviewed the state of blacks when they first arrived in this country 350 years ago. Their language was described as being hardly “above the chatter of monkeys.” Their soil food was insects and the flesh of their own people, and their homes were dens made of broken sticks and mud. They did not know that water could be used for bathing as well as drinking.

Blacks were also criticized for creating slums and for turning the nation’s capital “into a cesspool of filth and corruption that is not fit for a worm to live in.”

Aside from the truth or untruth of the above charges, this is hardly the material for a priestly sermon—unless Detroit Catholics are vastly different from members of their denomination elsewhere, or unless a few dying embers of the oldtime religion are being stirred up again in some hardened religious arteries.

Michigan: Sami Esmail, a U.S. citizen and a graduate student at Michigan State University, was arrested last December 21 at the Tel Aviv airport when he flew in to see his dying father, who lives in the Israeli-occupied West Bank of Palestine. Esmail’s brother and his attorney state he was later tortured, forced to sign self-incriminating documents and is now being “prepared” for one of those secret Gulag-type Israeli trials. The university sent a delegation to the State Department, which stated that the U.S. “cannot interfere in the internal judicial processes” of a country “unless they violate human rights.” Since Esmail bears the double burden of being an American of Arab descent, whatever happens to him will obviously be well outside the selective parameters of Carter’s human rights. A young Texan, Jerry Flenner, 23, of San Antonio is also languishing in an Israeli jail on “spy” charges. But no one cares. She is not a Soviet Jewish dissident. She’s an American...

New York: United Air Lines is hiring pilots for the first time since 1970. As the result of a 1973 lawsuit by the Department of Justice, United is now deep in the affirmative action swim. The mathematics are as follows. If 5% of the pilot applications come from women and 10% from minorities, United Air Lines will have to hire 10% of the women applicants and 20% of the minority applicants. Greyhound should be pleased.

If we have to have minority priests shepherd us from place to place, we believe quotas will produce better bus drivers than jumbo jet pilots. Next time, we’re afraid, a lot more people will be taking the bus.

Washington, D.C.: Along with such industrial giants as Johnson and Johnson, Volkswagen and RCA, Ann Pincus and Shirley Annowitz have reserved some rather expensive space in the space shuttle. Why? Because, says the Washington Post, “They want to be the first women to put something in space.”

Patricia Harris, Secretary of HUD, announced that municipalities should press hard for the abolition of zoning laws so they and the poor can move into better neighborhoods. She warned that the city fathers should not wait until the courts intervene against “majoritarian intransigence,” a HUD euphemism for community survival.

London: The National Front is getting so prominent that it provoked a major BBC-TV polemic from Prime Minister James Callaghan, whose political temperature was probably raised a little higher than usual by the memory of his Jewish grandmother. No equal time was provided for the defendants. The press also took after the NF in a series of front-page smear articles. But the most telling blow was struck by Conservative party leader Margaret Thatcher, who came out strongly against immigration and spoke glowingly of the necessity to preserve the “British character.”

Some of her words could have been written by an NF ghostwriter. Let us hope that any Conservative or Labour attempt to preempt the National Front program will fail dismally. The British electorate should easily be able to see through the hypocrisy of any such Flight cemented late as Mrs. Thatcher. Meanwhile, the National Front has cranked up a campaign against the monolithic Marxist-majority presence in British education. A quarter of a million copies of a booklet published by the Young National Front and entitled “How to Combat Red Teachers” have been printed and distributed to students, urging them to think for themselves and resist the simpering sylllogisms of Leninist-Marcusean dogmatic. Among the many references books recommended by the authors of the booklet, none is given a higher mark than The Dispossessed Majority, more than a thousand copies of which have already been sold in Britain.

A new study of Britain’s all-powerful trade unions revealed that an average of 70.5% of their huge income from membership dues is spent on administration and only 9.43% on members’ benefits.

The main supplier of British rent-a-mobs, whose mission is to break up meetings and marches of the National Front, is the Socialist Workers Party. The behind-the-scenes head of the SWP is Tony Cliff, who for some reason or another is not too proud of his real name, Ygal Gluckstein. He managed to remain in Britain by marrying Chanie Rosenberg, the daughter of a wealthy South African businessman. Another SWP bigshot is Steve Jeffries, whose family comes from South Russia. Paul Horborow (Horborowitz) and Danny Phillips fill out some of the remaining slots in the SWP ruling junta.

Austria: Austria’s living standards have risen rapidly over the past ten years. But now there is a huge, continuing budget deficit à la U.S.A., and the schilling looks shaky. The high-living left, including the Jewish Prime Minister, is becoming more nervous, less sure of the answers, while kosher conservatives look glum and the unions are trying desperately to prevent the now certain rise in the hitherto low unemployment figures. Against this background, it is interesting to watch the very dedicated, fanatical, small rightist groups, who say that Austria cannot maintain decent living standards without closer links with Germany. It cannot, for example, have a successful export-oriented auto industry because it lacks a sufficiently large home market to cushion the bumps. What is more, the South Tyrol problem cannot be solved without calling upon German power.

Australia: An Aussie correspondent sent us a copy of a new magazine with this note: “Enclosed is our new publication Advance!, which some day we hope will be the voice of Australian nationalism. With the exception of a few trivial differences, due mainly to our political view as opposed to your philosophical one, our aims are one and yours— the physical defense of European man and the rediscovery of his cultural identity. For an isolated, empty continent surrounded by almost two billion Asians this aim can only mean a nationalist mentality. All of us from the National Resistance wish you and yours the best of luck in your endeavors.”
Sometimes a great new book or a great old book is published or reprinted by a big publishing firm yet dies on the vine. The publisher may not have the heart to promote a controversial book and the media may refuse to mention it. As far as the general public is concerned, the book might as well have remained unpublished. To shine some light on these black holes of knowledge, Howard Allen has made arrangements to distribute, at the regular retail price, a few landmark books of other publishers.

The Crowd by Gustave Le Bon. The great, half-forgotten French prophet, who spoke more truly than Cassandra, but was even less believed, jumped the gun on Freud, Ortega y Gasset and Pareto in an epoch-making study of the popular mind. Crowds, wrote Le Bon, do things which the individuals who compose them would never do. They have a personality of their own, more often a destructive personality, and they are the unruly offspring of mass democracy. Le Bon's low opinion of history, his rueful opinion of religion and his high opinion of race cast a fresh and perspicacious look at the social order. Reprinted in 1973 by the Viking Press.

Hereditary Genius by Sir Francis Galton. Inventor of fingerprinting and founder of the science of eugenics, Galton demonstrates the inheritance of intelligence by tracing generations of achievement in eminent British families. Almost a century before anyone ever heard of IQ, the famed British scientist graded nations and races according to their mental ability, while brilliantly marshaling the historical evidence for profound racial differences in intellect, character and temperament. The biological origins of celibacy and individualism are also examined in this epochal work, of which Charles Darwin wrote, "I do not think that I ever in all my life read anything more interesting and original." Reprinted in 1972 by Peter Smith.

Race by Dr. John R. Baker. A world-renowned Oxford biologist has written the definitive work on racial differences. Almost all the available physiological and historical evidence has been assembled to prove once and for all that there are important and measurable intellectual as well as physical disparities between the races. Now, whenever Negro backwardness is blamed on environment and oppression, the argument can be easily refuted by citing chapter and verse from Dr. Baker's encyclopedic study. A Fellow of the Royal Society—and in England the nearest thing to a Nobel prize—Dr. Baker has produced an inexhaustible reservoir of documentation for the ideas of Arthur Jensen and William Shockley. Published in 1974 by Oxford University Press.

A New Theory of Human Evolution by Sir Arthur Keith. The greatest modern anthropologist is almost unknown to the American reading public, and the media monopolists are unabashed. This is Keith's major work and contains the principal threads of his ideas about evolution and the constructive role played by nationalism and prejudice in race building and genetic progress. No book offers a more penetrating rebuttal to the Boas school of anthropology, whose perverse and unfounded assertions about racial equality have dominated Western thought for most of this century. Reprinted in 1968 by Peter Smith.

A New Morality from Science by Dr. Raymond B. Cattell. An internationally prominent social scientist, who has authored 30 technical books and more than 300 research articles, rejects liberalism and racial leveling in a profound and challenging work that searches for new ethical values from the domain of science. A great mind dares to come to grips with the most controversial issues of the age. His eminently sensible proposals for a new evolutionary ethics based on behavior genetics rather than on religious, liberal or Marxist dogma have so enraged the book reviewing establishment that hardly a mention of his work is to be found anywhere. Published in 1973 by Pergamon Press.
