

Election Dirge

By the time most of our subscribers read this cliff-hanging piece on the election, it will be over. Instauration's absolute, last-second deadline is the 15th of the month that precedes the issue's cover date. If the polls are right, we already know the outcome.

The early numbers gave Dukakis a large lead; the later polls, the ones with the most weight, put Bush in front. Though it may seem vital to conservatives that Bush should win and critical to liberals that Dukakis should come out on top, election 88 is not that important. If Dukakis loses on November 8, he or a Dukakis clone will win in 1992 or 1996. Majority voters are not breeding; minority voters are proliferating like E. Coli -- by the process of child-bearing, by legal and illegal immigration and by influxing refugees. Sooner or later, these voting agglomerates are bound to prevail. Sooner or later, we will have not only a Mediterranean president and a black or Hispanic vice-president, but probably by A.D. 2050, a dark president, perhaps a very dark president, will be ensconced in the Oval Office.

U.S. politics is getting so money-ridden and disreputable that no decent, intelligent person would consider running for high office and would never be nominated as the candidate of a major party, even if he was willing to wade around in the muddy electoral waters for the best part of his life. The system is so set up that only second-rate and third-rate Majority members could possibly win the Republican nomination, and only envy-ridden unassimilables will be the eventual Democratic nominees.

As we said before, this particular race was really between George Bush and Dan Rather, with a minor bush-league contest going on between Dan Quayle and the left, lefter and leftist establishment, black and brown voting blocs and the big-city double and triple voters.

Never, since the days of Goldwater, have the media lavished so much time and money on trashing a Republican candidate for national office. The blitz began after Bush was nominated; it went critical in the presidential and vice-presidential media grillings which some reporters and anchormen had the gall to call debates. The verbal thunder fell most heavily on Dan Quayle who, with "the help of a prayer" and his good looks, just managed to keep his head above water. In fact, the TV butchery may have produced a sympathetic echo that cancelled out the points won by Dukakis and Bentsen in the sound bites -- just as Bush's rhetorical fumbling won support from voters who couldn't stand Mike the Greek's rat-a-tat robotic spiel. (In the second presidential debate, Bush was a non-fumbler.) What none of the pundits commented on, either on the air or in print, was how the gender gap, huge and favoring Dukakis in the beginning of the campaign, practically evaporated after Quayle had entered the fray. The experts seemed to have forgotten that a relatively handsome, relatively young politician speaks to female hearts in a stronger language than politics.

It was almost laughable when the media in the grip of its endemic bias wildly applauded the tired old Bentsen, who put on the world's most expensive breakfasts for his special interest groups. Bentsen, a second-generation Dane, went after Quayle for comparing himself to John Kennedy in the amount of political experience he had had before he ran for chief executive. Kennedy may be a hero to Bentsen and his crowd, but he's an anti-hero, a genuine political zero, to anyone with a feel for current history. The Bay of Pigs, the first sizable contingent of troops to Vietnam, the assignments in the White House with a Mafia moll, sharing the shopworn Marilyn Monroe with brother Bobby -- these are some of the great accomplishments of JFK. In the age of the politics of failure, the more you fail, the more you win -- at least in the headlines.

Bush looks like a nice guy, but how nice can anyone be who works his way up that oily, soul-killing ladder of government for 20 or 30 years? Quayle hasn't been around the Capitol long enough to be completely corrupted -- not completely, but give him time. Dukakis knows how to push all the right racial buttons, including the marital one, and the New York Times swoons over his Jewish wife, who left her first husband, was an amphetamine freak for 26 years and then, in one great burst of illumination, discovered her "Jewishness." Somehow, it took Dukakis years and years to find out about his wife's drug habit. But this kind of moral or physical blindness, not exactly the best qualification for the highest office in the land, is easily forgiven when he utters his mantra, "Israel's fate is our fate," and when he makes his pilgrimage to Israel and speaks a little garbled Hebrew.

How does Bentsen explain to his mirror why he wants to devote his latter days to elevating a Turkish-looking Greek with much convex nostrility to the presidency of what used to be the greatest country in the world? If he has any shame left, he says nothing. If he doesn't, which is most often the case with Majority renegades, he smiles wanly.

Anyway, here's to the 41st president of the United States, whoever he may be. We don't envy him next January when he begins to betray his own people (if it's Bush) or boosting the fortunes of his and Kitty's people (if it's Mike). We can even feel sorry for the next president when the country's economy goes bust, as it is sure to do either in his first or, if he is reelected, his second term.

The Big Bust, which will radicalize it out of its political and racial stupor, may be the Majority's last chance. It can't come too soon. One way or another, it will change that aberrational course of American history which began that ill-fated day in April 1917, when President-Professor Woodrow Wilson unloosed a demon in the world, that demon being an interventionist America dedicated to prolonging the world's wars, exacerbating the world's woes and turning a country that had once been an interesting experiment in forward-looking statecraft into a monstrous, multicultural, multiracial blot on the record of human achievement.

The Black Cut

For 30 years, the United Way has been using payroll deductions as a means of raising funds. Apparently, blacks have not been satisfied with their cut. The Black United Fund of Oregon sued the state for equal rights to solicit payroll deductions. Naturally, the Negroes won. But for some reason, Oregon's 45,000 state employees -- mostly white -- are not stampeding to sign up.

BUFO's drive is stalled, but it has a foot in the door. Effective sales pitches can potentially raise both revenues and race consciousness. Now that a black team has run interference for us, Majority members might adopt the same "boffo" tactics to gather funds and disseminate warnings of further dispossession.

Notes from the Sceptred Isle - John Nobull

BACK IN THE SPRING of 1969, Kenneth Clark gave a series of lectures on Civilisation for BBC-TV. It was surprisingly popular, and in due course gained him a peerage (which he deserved a great deal more than most life peers). I was impressed with his approach at the time, and this summer, when I read the illustrated book version, entitled Civilisation (published by the BBC and John Murray in many impressions), I felt impelled to review his achievement in the light of what has happened since the original TV presentation.

During the 1960s, trendiness was more or less obligatory. Hence, Clark's tribute to "young people" and his assumption that "the members of a music group or an art group at a provincial university would be five times better informed and more alert than what used to be called 'top people' before the wars" (p. 346). To anyone who has read Saki or Henry James, the falsity of this claim is self-evident. And, in fact, Clark's message was the very antithesis of that which characterised the 1960s. Just compare Clark's tribute to eighteenth-century music, characterised by "its melodious flow, its complex symmetry, its decorative invention" (p. 221) with the illiterate lyrics ("Yeah, yeah, yeah") and boringly repetitive rhythms of the Beatles. The contrast could hardly be more extreme.

In his first lecture, Clark contrasts the Apollo of Belvedere with an African mask, saying that "most people nowadays" would find the African mask more moving than the statue of Apollo, which is "completely forgotten except by the guides of coach parties, who have become the only surviving transmitters of traditional culture" (p. 2). But, he continues: "I don't think there is any doubt that the Apollo embodies a higher state of civilisation than the mask. They both represent spirits, messengers from another world -- that is to say from a world of our own imagining. To the Negro imagination it is a world of fear and darkness, ready to inflict terrible punishment for the smallest infringement of a taboo. To the Hellenistic imagination it is a world of light and confidence in which the gods are like ourselves, only more beautiful, and descend to earth in order to teach men reason and the laws of harmony" (p. 2). Here "we" and the Negroes are contrasted, and it doesn't take much intelligence to see that "we" are people of European origin. There can be no reasoned denial of such an obviously true argument, only some mindless slogan, such as, "Ho, ho, ho, Western culture's got to go."

It is soon evident that Clark supports the view that our civilisation, far from being "Judeo-Christian," derives from ancient Greece. It is hard to escape from such a conclusion if one agrees with the great twelfth-century Abbot Suger of St. Denis, that the absolute beauty of God is perceived through precious and beautiful things: "The dull mind rises to truth through that which is material" (p. 50). Hardly surprising, therefore, to find Clark emphasising that twelfth-century Chartres was a centre of both Platonic and Aristotelian studies, and that the statues of kings and queens outside the Cathedral derive their drapery from ancient models, though their "refinement, the look of selfless detachment and the spirituality of these heads is something entirely new in Art. Beside them the gods and heroes of ancient Greece look arrogant, soulless and even slightly brutal" (p. 56).

Clark is firmly on the side of creative aesthetics, opposed by implication to the iconoclastic moralism of the ancient Hebrews. A reverence for the European tradition implies that we derive our mores from reflecting on the past history of our kindred tribes and value the messages conveyed by our supreme works of art. The Second Commandment, on the other hand, expressly forbids all likenesses of any living things, whether we worship them or not. To be sure, Clark does not make this last point openly. Indeed, he is very careful on the subject of the Jews, dwelling on their human qualities as portrayed in Rembrandt's paintings and even comparing the face of Einstein to that of Rembrandt in old age. (I see little resemblance, myself.) But the point is clearly implied in Clark's condemnation of those most Hebraised of Protestants, the Calvinists of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, who smashed the beautiful stained-glass windows in the lady chapel at Ely, knocked the heads off statues representing the Virgin Mary and her companions, destroyed church organs and forbade all music except the psalms intoned through the nose. He quotes Erasmus on one such group of religious extremists: "I have seen them return from hearing a sermon as if inspired by an evil spirit. The faces of all showed a curious wrath and ferocity" (p. 156).

To be sure, Clark pays tribute to Luther's love of music and singing (he had a sweet tenor voice) and also of painting (he was often painted by his friend, Lucas Cranach of Wittenberg). Clark records how the nominally Catholic Savonarola induced the Florentines to make a huge bonfire of all their "vanities," including a picture by Botticelli, which has thus been lost forever.

Clark shows that the early Christians were hardly friendly to literature. St. Gregory the Great, who sent the second St. Augustine to convert England in the year 597, "is credited with having destroyed many volumes of classical literature, even whole libraries, lest they seduced men's minds away from the study of holy writ. What with prejudice and destruction, it's surprising that the literature of pre-Christian antiquity was preserved at all" (p. 17). He might have added that few statues from the ancient world found before the Renaissance have come down to us intact, the outstanding exception being that of Marcus Aurelius, which was only preserved because it was believed to be that of Constantine. No wonder Gibbon said in his Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire that he had described "the triumph of barbarism and Christianity."

But what of that other orgy of destruction, during the French Revolution, which Clark records but does not attempt to explain? All he offers us as inspiration for the Revolution are the cult of nature as expounded by Rousseau and the cult of Republican Rome. He feels that the concerted oath-taking gesture of the Horatii brothers, in David's famous painting of that episode from Plutarch's Lives, represents a "unified, totalitarian gesture . . . like the kinetic image of a rotating wheel" and "has an almost hypnotic quality" (p. 263). The brothers are, in fact, giving the Roman salute, later popularised again by Mussolini, and "the kinetic image of a rotating wheel" is no doubt a coy reference to the sun-wheel, or swastika, which is not in the picture. But, stern as Plutarch's Romans are, do they really explain the Parisian mobs rampaging through the streets, egged on by the Jacobins? What in Plutarch inspired them to destroy the great gold altar of Abbot Suger at St. Denis, or his gold crosses, one of them twenty-four feet high, inlaid with precious enamels by Godfroix de Claire (p. 49), or the partial destruction and looting of eleventh-century Cluny, the largest complex of buildings in France and probably in Europe (pp. 35, 296-7)? And what about Marat's September massacres of 1792, which began the Terror in earnest, a Terror by no means confined to a few thousand in Paris but resulting in the deaths of about half a million people throughout France?

There is another picture by David, also reproduced by Clark, which could have provided the starting point for a more convincing explanation. It shows the horrible Marat dying in his bath, knifed by the beautiful Norman girl, Charlotte Corday. Was this a case of one revolutionary being mourned by another? Adam Weishaupt, the gray eminence of the Jacobin conspiracy, had enlisted the aid of the Jews a few years before the Revolution, and they had responded with enthusiasm. The systematic, wholesale destruction perpetrated by the mobs can only be explained as a further outbreak of iconoclasm inspired by the fanaticism of the Old Testament and Talmud.

As we approach the bicentenary of the Revolution, Instaurationists should ponder the words of Lord Clark: "When the Bastille fell in 1792 it was found to contain only seven old men who were annoyed at being disturbed" (p. 306). Not that that prevented the mob from massacring the fourteen superannuated members of the Swiss guard who acted as gaolers. It is also high time to re-read the books of Nesta Webster, which have never been confuted, but merely ignored by liberal historians. At the very least, those interested should consult the Encyclopaedia Britannica, which confirms that Weishaupt founded not only the Jacobins but the almost equally sinister Carbonari as well.

Before Weishaupt teamed up with the French Revolutionaries, many of them Jews, in the early 1780s, the American Revolution had already taken place, equally inspired by Plutarch's Lives but without the typically Semitic iconoclasm. About Houdon's famous statue of George Washington, Clark has this to say: "Houdon saw his subject as that favourite Roman republic hero, the decent country gentleman, called away from his farm to defend his neighbours' liberties; and, in moments of optimism, one may feel that, through all the vulgarity and corruption of American politics, some vestige of that first ideal has survived" (p. 266). Far from destroying works of art, the Americans created them. Jefferson's Monticello was inspired by Palladio, as was his design for the University of Virginia, while his design for the capitol at Richmond was based on a model of the maison carrée at Nimes.

It is perhaps unjust to condemn Clark for failing to sketch in an important part of the background to the French Revolution, of which he may have been unaware. He does, after all, say much else that is not in tune with the Zeitgeist and is therefore much to be commended. For instance, in his BBC lectures, he states baldly: "All great civilisations, in the early stages, are based on success in war," and again, quoting Ruskin, he makes the following admission: "No great art ever yet rose on earth but among a nation of soldiers."

Clark regards barbarians as "embodiments of will," contrasting this will-power with the superior strength of the imagination as wielded by civilised men. But he does not deny that all civilised men were originally barbarous (even the ancient Greeks in their Mycenaean phase). Nor does he deny that barbarians may have a culture. In fact, he emphasises that the aristry lavished upon jewellery and ornaments by the Germanic tribes provided a line of transmission which leads on to the true civilisation of mediaeval Europe. Civilised craftsmen owe much to a long line of barbarian predecessors.

The achievement of the Franks is Clark's prime example of a civilisation based on success in war. He claims that "our whole knowledge of ancient literature is due to the collecting and copying that began under Charlemagne, and almost any classical text that survived until the eighth century has survived till today" (p. 18). I think this judgment ignores the number of texts discovered in the libraries of Italian city states, but there can be no doubt that the Frankish conquerors were much greater friends to literature than the Christian fanatics who preceded them. Yet it was the Franks who destroyed the pagan Saxon culture, driving many Saxon refugees into Scandinavia and thus provoking the Viking onslaught which began at the end of the eighth century. Nevertheless, one cannot help admiring the wonderfully handsome golden head of Charlemagne, which is reproduced in Clark's book. As Clark says elsewhere, "good faces evoke good artists -- and conversely a decline of portraiture usually means a decline of the face, a theory which can now be illustrated by photographs in the daily papers" (p. 56).

Clark's disapproval of the Germans puts him in a quandary, in view of their great contribution to European art in every major field. Thus, on page 220, he argues that "the non-existence of a clear, concrete German prose has been one of the chief disasters of European civilisation." Yet, on page 159, he has stated: "Luther translated the Bible into German -- noble German, too, as far as I can judge . . ." Well, I would agree that it is much more difficult to write clear, concise prose in German than in French, for example, but the contradiction here is glaring. He also finds "a vein of hysteria" in German painting and tells us that "the German mind that produced Dürer and the Reformation also produced psychoanalysis" (p. 155). Again, I would agree that German painting in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries reflected the breakdown of mediaeval certainties, but the charge of hysteria, an implied link with Nazism, is ridiculous in view of Clark's own tribute to the greatness, balance and symmetry of eighteenth-century German music and architecture. Also, it is not logical to claim Dürer as a product of the German mind while at the same time describing his father as a "Hungarian" (p. 148). The fact that mediaeval Germans settled in Hungary no more makes Dürer's father a Hungarian than Franz Liszt. I would be the first to agree that the Reformation involved iconoclastic excesses, but much more on the part of the Calvinists than the Lutherans -- and Calvin was a Frenchman. As for psychoanalysis, it was invented by Freud, who was a Jew, not a German Austrian. But one could hardly expect a popular modern opinion-former to mention such a fact except in the most laudatory terms and in the most flattering context. Again, Clark quotes with approval Walter Pater's dictum that "all art aspires to the condition of music," without emphasising (as Houston Stewart Chamberlain did) that the Germans are preeminent in music (see p. 237). Still, he does have the grace to deplore the senseless destruction of so much German art and architecture. Thus, speaking of many eighteenth-century buildings which "were erected simply to give pleasure," he records that "we managed to destroy a good many of them during the war including the Zwinger at Dresden, the palace of Charlottenburg in Berlin and the greater part of the Residenz at Würzburg. As I have said, it may be difficult to define civilisation, but it isn't so difficult to recognise barbarism" (p. 240-241).

There are many insights of value in Clark's Civilisation, and any number of illuminating little details which could only have been introduced by a man who really knows the subject. He is particularly good on the subject of women, showing how the cult of the Virgin Mary really took root in the twelfth century, exemplified in the devotion of St. Bernard and in the dedication to her of several major cathedrals. We see how this led to such works as Vita Nuova, in which Dante is led into Paradise by Beatrice, or the Roman de la Rose, Jean de Meung's long paean to courtly love. Clark reproduces some truly charming works of art, in which women appear to great advantage, such as the statue of St. Modeste on the north porch of Chartres cathedral, Donatello's Annunciation, and Bernini's Ecstasy of St. Teresa. He also celebrates the achievement of women in creating the salons of eighteenth-century France. I agreed wholeheartedly when he says: "I think it absolutely essential to civilisation that the male and female principles be kept in balance" (p. 251). The closely related subject of good manners also receives its fair share of attention, whether in the high Middle Ages, the court of Urbino or the salons of Louis XV.

Insights on the subject of music include Clark's statement that "the towering polyphony [of Johann Sebastian Bach] has the quality of Gothic architecture," and that the characteristics of baroque music are reflected in baroque architecture. Of course, in making this last remark he is thinking more of Haydn and Mozart than Bach and Handel. I like the story of Handel in England holding his leading lady out of the window during an operatic rehearsal and threatening to drop her if she did not sing in tune. Some things are even more important than good manners. I also find it interesting that Haydn "wrote for Prince Esterhazy over forty quartets, over one hundred symphonies, and many hundreds of occasional pieces" (p. 238). (A friend of mine once met a member of the Esterhazy family who had become an Australian citizen, and asked him why he had chosen that particular nationality. "But of course," said Janos, "it is just like Hungary -- all those wonderful simple people!")

Clark is particularly good on the late eighteenth-century cult of nature, which grew into the Romantic movement and came into conflict with the horrors of the industrial revolution. In this connexion, I appreciate his bon mot on page 283: "In the eighteenth century a solitary walker was viewed with almost as much suspicion as he is in Los Angeles today."

Finally, there are his judgements on modernity, such as: "It must be conceded that the future of civilisation does not look very bright" (p. 346) and "The moral and intellectual failure of Marxism has left us with no alternative to heroic materialism, and that isn't enough" (p. 347).

Ponderable Quotes

Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly, all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long series of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government.

Declaration of Independence

The happiest day that might be foreseen for the American taxpayer is that on which his miserable representatives in Government begin to live in physical fear for their lives and persons and give some consideration to the constituency for whom their contempt is commensurate with their availability to looting. An American Congressman fleeing from a mob of taxpayers while his house burned would be the heartening sight of a lifetime. An election every four years isn't as effectual as would be the assassination of a legislator every four minutes, because the enemy isn't only in Moscow. He's much nearer at home.

Instaurationists have a hard time living in a society that, culturally speaking, is about as healthy as someone with an advanced case of AIDS. However, we do have one consolation. When we watch TV, especially TV political reporting, we usually see much more than the ordinary viewer. Our heightened political and social awareness, honed by our monthly magazine's refresher course in clear thinking, permits us to see through all the clichés, all the verbal boilerplate and shrug off the media agit-prop. We view the antics of the anchormen, reporters and mediators diagnostically. We not only watch the tendentious spouting; we delve into it in order to understand what the mediocrats are trying to pull off. The tube presents us with pictures in two dimensions. Sound adds a third dimension. The messages, super- or subliminal, represent a fourth dimension. Instaurationists, accordingly, are television's only 4-D viewers.

The 1988 presidential election, which will have ended by the time some Instaurationists read these words, was in many ways not a race between Bush and Dukakis but a shouting match between Dan Rather and George Bush. Television-slanted reporting of the contest, particularly at the two conventions, was almost laughable in its non-objectivity. A Gallup Poll indicated that 20% of the TV audience ended up with an unfavorable impression of Dan Rather. By a ratio of three to one, respondents thought he favored the Democrats.

A year ago, Dan Rather's negatives were only 10%. Owing to his anti-Bush tirades, his new 20% negative ratings are triple those of Tom Brokaw and Peter Jennings. Dan's almost total partisanship obviously had to have the approval of Laurance Tisch, whose CBS network is the only one of the Big Three controlled top to bottom by Jews. Being a Jewish organization, CBS is very "sensitive" to anti-Semitism, meaning that it looks for the Jewish angle in the news whenever and wherever it can be found or fabricated.

When a scurvy Jewish publication called Washington Jewish Week came out with a story that Bush had some ethnic campaigners who didn't believe the Holocaust story in its entirety, CBS hopped on it with all its electronic might. Injun Dan couldn't contain his rage at Jerome Brentar, a Cleveland ethnic, whose grievous fault was that he believed in the innocence of the railroaded "war criminal" John Demjanjuk. Even worse, he had once attended an IHR Holocaust Conference in California. A few years ago, when the CBS Evening News was all-powerful and Walter Cronkite, the uncriticizable paragon of Majority renegadism, was riding high, the Brentar smear might have cost a Republican presidential candidate a couple of million votes and lured an extra couple of million dollars out of the pockets of Jewish fatcats for his Democratic rival. Today, however, with its pro-Demo bias flying like a red flag, the Rather-CBS bag of dirty tricks hardly made a dent. Even the most brainwashed are beginning to wise up to the routine charges of anti-Semitism by the liberal-minority coalition (media branch) in election campaigns.

One irrefutable proof of network bias, aside from the media overkill of Quayle, was the totally skewed and unbalanced handling of the two conventions. The Demo gabfest was interrupted by only one interview with a high Republican campaign official. At the GOP Convention, however, the networks dragged in such hostile Demo critics as Jesse Jackson, Lloyd Bentsen and Susan Estrich to comment on the proceedings. In the same lopsided treatment, TV reporters and anchors put 47 loaded questions to Demo delegates in Atlanta. Compare this to the 119 loaded questions thrown at Republican delegates in New Orleans. At the Demo Convention, the networks only brought up one Party sore spot -- Dukakis's prison furlough program. At the Republican Convention, Bitburg, Iran-Contra and GOP sleaze were mulled over 32 times, not to mention the 125 comments and interviews that tried to make Dan Quayle out to be some sort of slinky, semi-bigoted, archconservative airhead. On a rating scale of zero to 80 for fairness, the Media Research Center gave CNN 48, NBC 47, ABC 43 and CBS 25.

As if there were not enough black and brown faces on TV these days, the Federal Communications Commission has promulgated a new two-tier plan to ensure that radio and TV stations hire more minorities. Broadcasters will have to submit an annual employment report to the FCC, stating the number of blacks, Hispanics, Asians, Indians and women on the payroll, together with a second poopsheet detailing what the station has done to guarantee equal opportunity for minority jobseekers. Quotas, quotas, everywhere, but not a slot for whites!

Blacks scream for the protection of the law whenever they get into trouble. But no one has ever made a greater mockery of the law than the Negro conmen who have been staging and directing the Tawana Brawley affair. This particular media campaign reached comic opera proportions on the Morton Downey Jr. show in August, when the black Roy Innes sailed into the black Rev. Al Sharpton in full view of the audience and a few million boob-tubers. Innes, like practically all sane Americans and a New York grand jury, believes that Tawana was lying when she said she had been abducted and raped by a gang of whites. When Sharpton called Innes a bigot, he received a shove that sent him reeling out of his chair and onto the floor.

It was a TV ratings triumph for Morton Downey, the son of the famous Irish tenor of the same name. It was also a triumph of vulgarity. Since Mort plays the role of the sock-it-to-'em Reagan Democrat, he occasionally says things that drive liberals up the wall. But he makes up for these lapses by humiliating Majority activists. During the appearance of David Duke on his show, Mort told him to shut up several times and at one point turned to the audience and practically urged blacks to come up and "kick his ass" -- and do the same to any other white supremacist they might chance to meet.

Mort is right-wing enough to earn the title from the left wing, but not right-wing enough to stop catering to minority racism.

Mort says his heroes are Mother Teresa and Billy Martin. He boasts of his dope-taking days, of his AIDS-stricken brother, of his sister's frontal lobotomy and of his third wife (23 years younger than hubby), who was once a heroin addict. He is sad that his daughter, one of three, was raped by two men at age 13 and that his mother, Beatrice, died of alcoholism. All in all, the Morton Downey Jr. show is a daily reminder of the boneheaded philistinism of the average American TV buff. Mort's show may have a certain appeal to the Great Unwashed, but its emetic low IQ format, in a reverse and perverse fashion, may convert more viewers to liberalism than vice versa.

MISCASTING #1. In the sad-sack serial, Beauty and the Beast, the beast is played by Ron Perlman, a Chosenite who is festooned and partially beautified by a blond wig. Beasts were never blond in Western culture, particularly beasts who sulk in megalopolitan sewers. What may we expect if this new trend continues? That all beasts will soon be blond and all whites will soon be beasts?

MISCASTING #2. The Austrian government presented 81-year-old Leon Askin (geboren Leo Askenasi), the unlook-alike Jew who played the bumbling SS general in Hogan's Heroes, with a gold medal.

MISCASTING #3. John Randolph, who took the Fifth back in the days when Stalin was still worshipped by leftist psychopaths, will play a "conservative" in a new Mary Tyler Moore series scheduled for this fall. The original John Randolph, a member of one of America's earliest and greatest families, was born in Virginia, not in the Bronx, as was the fellow-traveling Jewish actor who stole his good name.

It's not only dangerous for WASPs to ride the New York subway; it's dangerous to wait on the platform. This must have dawned on Donald Carswell, NBC's senior vice-president for finance, when he was pushed from the platform of the Times Square station early one evening last August as an IRT train was approaching. Some altruistic New Yorkers, an endangered species, yanked him up from the tracks just in time. Earline Cofield, described as a mentally deranged black woman, was the person who tried to kill Carswell.

It's been run to death, but it still evokes a wan smile. I'm speaking of that "nuts 'n' honey" commercial, which, complains the Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation, is not at all funny. Craig Davidson, the queers' executive director, limply ratiocinates, "Our view is that there is a social attitude that affection between men is improper or even disgusting and that violence is an acceptable response." Davidson is whining about the cowboys who pull guns on the cook after asking him what's for breakfast and getting the answer, "nuttin', honey." Fags and dykes apparently believe cowboys are burned up when they're addressed as "honey." They might be madder when told they won't be receiving any grub to get them through a tough morning roundup.

Black radio firebrand Cathy Hughes (WOL-AM, Washington, DC) was outraged recently over "emerging Japanese racism." What irked her was a new Japanese advertising campaign for "Sambo Sportswear" that featured the celebrated darkie in classic red livery. In response to widespread criticism over the campaign's "insensitivity" to black feelings, one Japanese businessman reportedly commented, "Oh, come off it. It's all in good fun!"

Cathy didn't think so. She went on the air with the command that local blacks make a huge bonfire of Japanese electronic products in front of the Washington Monument. "We ain't gonna buy no mo' Japanese TVs, VCRs and radios, no how!" Probing further into the world of international economics, Cathy expressed outrage that "these foreigners" continue to buy up American property at alarming rates. Stated Hughes, "We jes' can't let de' foreign element get hold of ours resources!"

Ralph Bakshi, of indeterminate racial origins, was the creator of Fritz the Cat, the first X-rated pornographic cartoon. On the basis of this brilliant feat, he was hired by CBS. His latest achievement was to show Mighty Mouse, the character in a Saturday morning children's program, happily snorting cocaine. Unfazed by the backlash, Bakshi promised that the first episode in the new Mighty Mouse series this fall will be an attack on those leaders of the religious right who want to hold on to traditional moral values. Good old even-handed CBS!

From a viewer with 20/20 hearing: On Sept. 13, on the CBS Morning News, Kathleen Sullivan interviewed Jesse Jackson about allegedly racist remarks addressed to him by Bush. After he had rambled on for several minutes (Jesse was evidently trying to change his image because he wasn't ranting and shouting, but spoke in a low, even voice), Kathleen said, "I'm sorry, Rev. Jackson, but I've heard nothing racist." He replied by saying Bush had referred to him as a "Chicago hustler" and a "three-headed monster." "But I still hear nothing racist," persisted Kathleen. "Those remarks could have been made about anybody." "Well," allowed JJ, "it's veiled . . . contained other negative and mean suggestions . . . diversionary," and wandered off in a cloud of obfuscation. I'm contemplating writing Kathleen a note congratulating her on her courage in challenging -- not once but twice -- the nation's most powerful black on his irresponsible use of the nation's most inflammatory word.

1 out of every 49 Americans now lives on a farm. In 1880 farmers comprised two-thirds of the population; today only 2%. Farm wives, 97% of them white, have an average of 2.03 children, compared to the 1.78 average of non-farm women. Missouri (114,000) has the most farms of any state.

Blacks have done extremely well in the entertainment and sports worlds. Oprah Winfrey, the show-boating talk show hostess, collected $8 million last year. In the last two years Bill Cosby pocketed $84 million; Eddie Murphy, the dirty word specialist, $50 million; Whitney Houston, the black songbird, $48 million; Michael Jackson, $43 million; Prince, $23 million; Marvellous Marvin Hagler, a not very marvelous fighter, $16 million; Sugar Ray Leonard, $14 million; Mike Tyson, the heavyweight gladiator, $13 million. Bryant Gumbel, the darkest morning talk show host, has a new 3-year $7-million contract. The average big-league basketball player gets $515,000 per annum.

The Hebrew Immigration Assistance Society boasts it has expedited the migration of more than 6,000 Iranian Jews to the U.S. in the last 9 years. Before the outbreak of Ayatollah Khomeini's revolution, Iran had 80,000 Jews. Since then as many as 13,000 may have fled to Israel. The question is: How many of the 13,000 were in the U.S.-bound 6,000?

70 books, 150 audio and video cassettes and 270 newspapers, booklets, magazines and pamphlets have been officially banned from entering Canada as of December 3, 1987. Three days before ROBERT SHRUM, one of Ted Kennedy's ex-ghostwriters, was married to Marylouise Oates, a society columnist for the L.A. Times, his friends threw a bachelor's party for him at the home of movie mogul BOB BURKETT, complete with the typical stripper jumping out of the typical cake. Once she was out and had taken off what was left of her clothes, the guests, who included WARREN BEATTY, LEW WASSERMAN, MARVIN DAVIS, ABIGAIL VAN BUREN and PAMELA HARRIMAN (what were these last two doing at a bachelor's party?) sprayed her with whipped cream. Then some of the guests got busy licking it off. The one who licked the hardest was CHARLES MANATT, the former chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

At long last a seven-member BLACK-JEWISH GANG has been indicted for 1983 bombing of the Capitol in Washington. Damages totaled $265,000. The group also bombed six other installations. The defendants possibly had some links with a black goon and a white-trash female found guilty last May of racketeering charges stemming from the murder of two police officers and a guard in the robbery of an armored truck. When all their jail time is added up, it might be interesting to compare it with the 150-year sentences meted out to some members of The Order.

MARC BELZBERG, the crown prince of Canada's billionaire Belzberg family, was convicted in a federal court of making $2.7 million in illegal profits in an attempt to take over the American-owned Ashland Oil Co. The Belzbergs, like that other pillar of the Jewish establishment, inside trader IVAN BOESKY, have lavishly funded the Holocaust huckstering Simon Wiesenthal Center in Los Angeles.

It has to be poetic justice. The WASHINGTON POST, which has banged the drums for affirmative action louder than almost any newspaper, thereby causing innumerable male Majority members to lose innumerable jobs and promotions, was hit by the Newspaper Guild with a class-action complaint that charged the paper with unfair practices in hiring and promoting the paper's minority employees.

The Chicago Jewish Sentinel recently reported that ENRIQUE MUGICA HERZOG, Spain's new minister of justice, is the first Jew to serve in the Spanish government since Ferdinand and Isabella kicked out the Chosen in 1492, some months before Columbus set sail for the New World. From a purely religious perspective, the Sentinel may be right. But scores of Marranos or conversos (Jews and the descendants of Jews who converted to Christianity to escape retaliation and expulsion) held high positions in Spain long after their more stiff-necked brethren had lit out for points south, east, north and west. Mugica Herzog, by the way, is only half-Jewish. His father is Basque. In Jewish racial law, it's the mother's genes that are the determining factor.

LARRY H. MINKOFF, the proprietor of 150 adult bookstores (porn pens), is out on $1,500 bail. The sale netted Jim Wright $6,710. Even Nobel Prize winners for literature never get more than 7½% royalties on paperbacks, yet the House Speaker's take was 55% on each book sold.

Joan Kennedy has apparently fallen off the wagon again. In July she was arrested for driving into a chain link fence in Barnstable (MA). The man who drove her to drink, ex-husband TEDDY, had no comment. He maintained the same diplomatic silence about Senatorial Privilege, whose author, Leo Damore, writes that the Massachusetts senator schemed to blame Chappaquiddick on the late Mary Jo Kopechne by swearing that she was the driver of the doomed vehicle. Of all Fat Face's sins -- and they are legion -- perhaps the worst was calling up airline hostess Helga Wagner, a girlfriend, hours after the accident and before he was finally persuaded to go and report the crime to the police.

LYNDON JOHNSON was paranoid, wrote onetime Jewish aide RICHARD GOODWIN in a belated confessional entitled Remembering America (Little, Brown, 1988). JOHN F. KENNEDY (LLOYD BENTSEN'S dear friend) and brother BOBBY dallied with MARILYN MONROE in a bedroom bugged by gangsters, and she, in turn, dallied with a Stalinist cabal based in Mexico City. So says Arthur Summers in his book, Goddess (Macmillan, 1985). JOHN LENNON was a miscegenating bisexual heroin addict and wife beater, asserts ALBERT GOLDMAN, who received an $850,000 advance for writing The Lives of John Lennon (McGraw Hill, 1988). Funny that none of this came out while these media headlines were alive and kicking.

When GLENN DOUGLAS, 17, and SHAWN PHILLIP, 20, spotted a shiny Nissan Maxima in Queens Village (NY), they stole it, along with the driver, Dwayne Simmons, a young computer programmer from Rochester, who was visiting his parents. The two worked on the premise that "dead men don't report stolen cars" and, instead of letting Simmons go, they pumped nine bullets into him after ordering him to get down on all fours. The executors and the executee were Negroes.

Another Negro with the first name of Dwayne, DWAYNE McMULLEN, a onetime University of Minnesota football star, was arrested and charged with a particularly vicious rape in St. Paul (MN). He broke into the house of a white woman he had been dating, hit her over the head and choked her, preliminary to performing what is becoming a common black-on-unwilling-white ritual.

It was definitely not motherly love. Black Zoo Cityite TOBY FLOOD, 24, and her live-in lover, MAURICE GRAVES, whipped her four-year-old son with a leather strap and broiled his hands in a toaster oven. They explained, "He wouldn't stop crying because he was so hungry." The toddler was hospitalized for several weeks.

Two teachers of Pan-African studies at California State University promised a straight A to every student who sold a $100 raffle ticket in a fundraiser for a private foundation owned by one of them. WILLIE J. BELLAMY and ELEAZU OBINNUA also put on a $25-a-plate chicken dinner for $150 paying customers, but never bothered to pay for the food. The university's Black Studies department was created in 1968 to appease a gang of Negroes who had taken over the administration building.

Next year, the Bronx may have ROBERT JOHNSON for its district attorney. The black lawyer is backed by the Democratic, Republican and Liberal party powermongers. Johnson's qualifications? He was thrown out of the U.S. Navy in 1970 for defiantly sporting an Afro and for going AWOL time and again.

That old Communist Party troubadour, PETE SEEGER, husband to a Jap, has apparently put Marxism on hold in order to concentrate his talents on boosting black racism and black political racketeering. He was arrested with his roly-poly friend, Rev. AL SHARPTON, the erstwhile FBI informer and Tawana Brawley brawler, for disorderly conduct and sent to the jug for 15 days.

With the possible exception of WILLIAM KUNSTLER and MELVIN BELLI, no lawyer is more of a disgrace to his already disgraced profession than MARVIN MITCHELSON. The headline-hustling attorney who invented the palimony suit has now been accused by the California State Bar of mishandling clients' funds and charging "unconscionable fees." But, according to Rupert Murdoch's chintzy Star (July 12, 1988), he may be in much deeper trouble. At least three Hollywood bimbos are thinking about bringing charges against the Jewish shyster for rape or sexual abuse.

On a dark summer evening, ROBERT BIDDINGS, a Negro suspected of 60 rapes, probably all on white women in the Columbus (OH) area, was nabbed by the white parents of one of the victims. The wife acted as a decoy at the same bus stop where her daughter had been attacked a year earlier, while the armed father lurked in his car a few yards away. When Biddings grabbed the wife, the husband jumped out, pulled a gun and ordered the bearded black to "freeze." The frustrated rapist managed to get away, but not before the license number of his car was duly noted.

One of the most despicable crimes of last summer was the dumping of medical waste in the ocean off New York and New Jersey. Much of this filthy flotsam was washed ashore on beaches crowded with tens of thousands of bathers. The law hasn't yet caught up with the criminals, but the man responsible for dumping an uncounted number of hypodermic syringes, 60 loose needles, 25 urine samples, a scalpel blade, 5 petri dishes, a sperm sample and 15 blood vials (two of them containing the highly infectious Hepatitis B virus) in a Brooklyn trash bin has been arrested. He is Brooklynite MARVIN NUMEROFF, head of Universal Diagnostic Labs.

Canada. From a north-of-the-border Instaurationist. Mobilizing under the banner of Citizens for Immigration Reform (CFAR), Canadian Majority activists have launched a spirited counterattack against the multiculturalists' stepped-up attempt to flood Canada with aliens. In recent months, CFAR sponsored two population and immigration conferences in Vancouver and Toronto. The theme in both was "Population Is Destiny." Speakers included CFAR's Paul Fromm, political analyst J. Michael McCutcheon, U.S. author Wayne Lutton, and the irrepressible Doug Collins, North Vancouver journalist and scourge of local Zionists, feminists, fags and minority toadies. Without fear or favor, the speakers spoke the unspeakable -- namely that Canada is a European nation and 80% of its citizens want to keep it that way.

CFAR made the national headlines last summer, when two boatloads of Tamils and Sikhs arrived in Canada. After destroying their passports, the unwanted and unwanted Third Worlders waded ashore and claimed refugee status. Screaming with outrage, Canadians bombarded open-line shows, members of Parliament and newspapers with demands that the illegal aliens be deported forthwith.

A corporal's guard of CFAR supporters took to the streets in Vancouver. Bearing petitions and carrying signs, "Send Them Back," the protestors slowed downtown traffic to a crawl as motorists and bus drivers stopped to sign petitions. In the space of several hours 3,000 signatures were gathered.

A few days later, also in British Columbia, a CFAR organizer set up a booth at a country fair with CFAR literature, a few homemade signs and a petition demanding the immediate deportation of all illegal aliens. In three days, he collected 300 signatures. On the last day of the fair, the CFAR member dropped in on a local watering hole -- one frequented by loggers, truck drivers, construction workers and army engineers. He absentmindedly brought along his petition, which he had attached to a clipboard. Within a few minutes, he was engulfed in a sea of baseball caps, moustaches, tattoos and called "bro" innumerable times. Pints of beer were poured into him until it ran out his nose. His clipboard literally flew from table to table, amid cackles and warwhoops which, if heard in Toronto, would make the folks who run Canada's multicultural industry mighty uneasy. In less than an hour, he staggered out with 60 signatures.

I suggest that U.S. Instaurationists take a leaf from CFAR's book. Your situation in regard to illegals is even worse than ours. Form single-issue organization calling for the repatriation of all illegals. Set up petition drives at local fairs and shopping centers. Seek out your natural ally, the blue-collar worker. Vilified by the media and ignored by politicians, the average American worker has few inhibitions when it comes to expressing his antipathy towards Third World gate crashers. What these guys lack in articulation and formal education, they more than make up for in guts and a solid core of common sense.

Scant wonder that most of us up here prefer the company of bikers to schmoozing around with the local intelligentsia.

If Canada isn't already the lowest-IQ white nation, it soon will be, as the reading matter available to its citizens continues to shrink. Instauration has already reported on the 150 or so books banned from entering the country, and who can forget that idiotic blue-stocking raid on a university library, when two Royal Canadian Mounties marched in and seized Arthur Butz's Hoax of the Twentieth Century and marched out as triumphantly as if they had just discovered a secretly planted Russian suitcase bomb. It was the darkest day for free speech in Canadian history. But there were many other such days -- the arrests and trials of Keegstra, Zündel, Donald C. Andrews and Robert W. Smith, and the persecution of Malcolm Ross (see below). One of the darkest days this summer was the attempt to limit the public's access to a collection of revisionist books in the Edmonton Public Library.

In 1984, after Jews had forced the library to accept some 150 books about the Six Million and related atrocity-mongering by Jewish authors, some local Holocaust skeptics asked the librarian to counter the propaganda juggernaut by purchasing a few volumes that gave a more balanced account of the plight of Jews during WWII.

But balance is a dirty word to Jewish ears. When it found out about the heterodox books, the Jewish Federation of Edmonton demanded that the library quarantine the anti-Holocaust collection in a separate section and label it in such a way as to warn browsers they were approaching books infected with anti-Semitism. As for the catalog, Jews wanted a book like Is the Diary of Anne Frank Genuine? listed under the category, "Holocaust, Jewish, errors, inventions." That might not be such a bad idea, if the library would give similar apartheid treatment to the Talmud, which, together with the Old Testament, might be shelved under the rubric, "Jewish racism."

Equally censorious was the ceaseless attack on Malcolm Ross, the New Brunswick teacher who had the temerity to write a book and a couple of booklets that were both very Catholic and very anti-Zionist.

Although he has never whispered a word about his heretical theories in his classes, the Jews have made it their Project 1 to get Ross canned.

Relying on their usual tactics of poison pen letters, threatening employers and publishers, networking with other Jewish organizations and working behind the scenes in such power centers as Toronto and Ottawa, Jews forced New Brunswick's Attorney General David Clark to look into the matter. After a long and expensive investigation, Clark stated that he had no grounds for prosecution because it is not yet a crime in Canada to write a book, though, as Ernst Zündel has found out to his sorrow, it is a crime to publish a book if it contains "false news." It is a very selective crime, however, since the editors of the mass-circulation Canadian newspapers are never arrested for sneaking columns of "false news" in practically every issue.

When Clark refused to go along with their New Age inquisition, Jews started their own "human rights" investigation to ascertain if any readers of news accounts of the Ross affair had been corrupted, not by what he wrote, but by what was written about him. If that ploy works, Canada will become the most mind-locked nation in history. If you can't be jailed for what you write, then you can be jailed for what your enemies write about what you write.

Malcolm Ross teaches math and English at Magnetic High School in Moncton, New Brunswick. Viewing that form of Jewish racism known as Zionism as a deliberate attack on his Catholic faith, he maintains a healthy skepticism in regard to the Holocaust.

As a result of his writings, he has been reprimanded by his school board and chastised by the New Brunswick Department of Education, which, beginning this fall, has made the Holocaust (Jewish version) a required course for eleventh-grade students. On July 30, 50 New Brunswick history teachers attended a five-day seminar, during which they were instructed how to teach the course.

A featured speaker on the Holocaust curriculum was 60-year-old Herman Newman, a survivor who claims he was a graduate of Auschwitz, where 4 million or 6 million or 11 million Jews were supposed to have been gassed, and Dachau, where the gas chambers turned out to be shower stalls. Newman was backed up by one of those blood-curdling, undocumented documentaries, the kind that Jews never make about events on the West Bank and Gaza.

Ross's reprimand from the school board contained the proviso (gag order) that he could be fired if he wrote any more books on his favorite subject. (Where is the Canadian Civil Liberties Union?) But Ross is not wilting. He filed a grievance against the board, and he is getting support from the newly organized New Brunswick Free Speech League, which plans a door-to-door leafletting campaign on behalf of Canada's latest victim of minority bigotry. The League is particularly interested in getting the school board's gag order rescinded.

Since it's still possible for residents of the U.S. to order books by Canadians which would be banned in Canada if sent from the U.S., Instaurationists who want to take a look at Ross's work should know that three are available at the present time. They may be ordered from Stronghold Publishing Co., Box 2545, Station A, Moncton, New Brunswick, Canada E1C 6Z5. The three books are Spectre of Power (164 pages), The Real Holocaust (49 pages) and Christianity versus Judeo-Christianity (31 pages). Cost for all three, plus postage, is $15.

Britain. As he recounts in his latest book, Return to Poland (Bodley Head, 1988), Denis Hills spent some time there before WWII and later served with Polish troops in Italy. After the war, he traveled in Turkey and farmed in Zimbabwe, where he wrote The Last Days of White Rhodesia.

He returned to Poland in an old camper, spent some time there, was expelled, went to East Germany, returned to Poland, and was again expelled after a few weeks.

Regarding the embarkation from Port Said to Taranto, Italy, in 1943 of the Polish Corps, which was recruited from Poles released by Russia in 1942, Hills writes, During embarkation it was discovered that hundreds of Polish Jewish soldiers were missing . . . Their loss was serious. They had been trained in special skills, ordnance and signals, sappers . . . and clerical staff -- and they vanished. Later it was understood they had deserted because for them the enemy had changed. They were under orders from their own leaders to lie low until the time came for them to turn their weapons upon the British who were seen to be the prime enemy now that Hitler was losing the war.

Later, in Warsaw, Hills dined with an English couple in their flat, which had been a Gestapo HQ during the war. He was informed that, at one time, Polish Jews who had been trained and rehearsed in Russia to take over political posts in postwar Poland occupied that block of flats. After the 1968 anti-Jewish scare, most of these Communist politicians fled Poland.

There are some other interesting historical tidbits in Byzantine Commonwealth by Dmitri Obolensky, which records the ethnocentrism of the Eastern Orthodox Church, whose clerics declared that only a subject of the Eastern Roman emperor could be a true Christian. The book brings to mind the remarkable passivity of the Slavs, who only moved into what is now East Germany and adjacent areas after the German tribes in the area migrated south to the Roman Empire. In most cases the Slavs accomplished their various folk wanderings as the subjects of other peoples.

For a long time, the Slavs were halted at the Danube, even at the times the main Byzantine army had been moved away to fight in Italy, North Africa and Spain. These Slavs were eventually conquered by a Turkish people, who crossed the Danube and pacified much of the Balkans, which they incorporated in their Moslem imperium. The empire's more numerous Slav subjects multiplied and settled far and wide while their much less numerous Moslem masters faded away.

Later, another Turkic tribe, the Bulgars, conquered the Slavs in what is known today as Bulgaria. In spite of being so near to the capital of the Byzantine Empire, these Moslems twice established their own Bulgarian Empire, and it was their ferocious resistance to the Byzantines which virtually wiped them out. Many present-day Bulgarians are the Slavic-speaking descendants of those bloody times.

Over the centuries, Slavs developed such a "subject mentality" it's not surprising that "Slav" became "slave" in English. The slave traders were usually Jews who had easy access to Islamic countries. Buried memories of Jewish slavers might help account for the almost endemic anti-Semitism of the Slavic peoples.

From a London subscriber. Hearing Red Ken Livingstone interviewed by Anthony Clark on the Radio 4 BBC program, "On the Psychiatrist's Couch," I was struck by the way the old anti-English Scots exile syndrome came up. Livingstone was most amusing about the House of Commons with its animal like "mutual grooming" and "mutual displays." He mentioned that his father was a Scots seaman who thought he belonged to the (Scots) Chosen race. "But he was very anti-racist." Red Ken added that he himself feels rather the same way and the greatest insult for him is to be called English, though he was born in London of an English mother.

The wife of the uppercrust Claude Cockburn, a notorious Stalinist of the 1930s and 40s, revealed her husband had similar feelings. In her autobiography, she points out that Cockburn was a "passionate Scot," though born outside Scotland. He hated "The Establishment" because it was English. Similar Scots left-wingers, whose socialism "was or is combined with militant Scottishness, are the Haldanes and the Murchisons. In fact, their politics seem to be a surrogate rationalism, though Scots realism or pessimism forbids them to be complete separatists."

Fifty of the 71 Scots MPs belong to the Labour Party. They have been dubbed "the futile fifty" by the Scottish National Party. Robin Cook, a leading Labourite, when in Scotland, always emphasizes the party's commitment to separation, though he never mentions it in England. Lately, he found himself in hot water for saying it is unlikely the Labourites will ever again get a Parliamentary majority.

Cook and other Scots Labour MPs are beginning to take the line that many well-known Scots historical figures came to grief because they weren't content with a successful career in Scotland, but tried to make a name for themselves in England as well. Their prime examples are Bonnie Prince Charles and Mary, Queen of Scots. If these two royals had renounced their English claims, they probably could have ruled long and successfully in Scotland. The conclusion for Scots Labourites is obvious. It will be interesting to see if they do anything about it.

Mother Teresa of India made her first visit to London in 1971 and was appalled by what she saw. "There are as many poor in London as there are in the slums of Calcutta," was the unscientific verdict of the Yugoslavian-born soup kitchen expert. It is certainly true that London is full of homeless families, as the private rented sector continues losing up to 100,000 homes a year (Mail on Sunday, May 17, 1987).

So the next time you're asked to "help feed the Indians," remember to say: "Mother Teresa says the London poor are just as bad off as Calcutta's. I'd rather help my own kind first." But don't just say it. Do it.

X Rabbi Immanuel Lord Jakobovits, Baron of Regent's Park, seems to be the correct way of saying the title of England's new life peer, named by the Queen (but chosen by the Thatcher administration) for the New Year's honors list. Lord Jakobovits, the nation's chief Orthodox rabbi and a "neoconservative," will be the first rabbi ever to sit in the House of Lords, and believes he is the first rabbi ennobled anywhere "since medieval times." There are now 45 Jews (of 1,100) in the House of Lords, and 28 (of 635) in the House of Commons.

The rabbi has been described in the Guardian as "the perfect Thatcherist peer." If so, Maggie has some explaining to do. Jakobovits, who left Germany in the thirties, and never speaks his native tongue in public, had this to say in a March 1987 interview: "I certainly exonerate the German language and it is not a hatred born out of the fact that it was the language used by millions of murderers." Nor, to this day, will he visit Germany and "walk on the soil soaked with the blood of millions of Jews."

If there were "millions of murderers" in Germany, then so must there have been tens of millions in Red Russia and China -- along with many thousands in Israel today. But the identity of these millions has no great interest for the rabbi.

At the end of 1985, British Cabinet documents for 1955 were released under the 30-year rule. They indicate that Prime Minister Winston Churchill and his Cabinet were "obsessed" at the time with the issue of colored immigration. There were only about 50,000 nonwhite citizens in those days (the deluge began shortly thereafter), yet Churchill, Lord Salisbury, Sir Alec Douglas-Home and others were frantic over the looming danger to the "racial character" of the English people.

That is rather remarkable in light of what one reads in volume one of David Irving's masterful new work, Churchill's War: The Struggle for Power (available for $29.95, postpaid, from the Historical Review Press, P.O. Box 2010, Decatur, GA 30031). Irving describes the correspondence of Hitler with the British mediocrat, Lord Rothermere, in which the latter told the former (April 29, 1935) that 70% of the people writing to his London Daily Mail were entirely sympathetic to Germany's claims. Hitler noted in response that nine-tenths of the blood that had flowed in Europe during the past 300 years had flowed in vain. He (Rothermere) should therefore ignore Churchill, the Parliamentary warmonger. Hitler went on:

[I]f today I urge an Anglo-German entente then this is not just something new since yesterday or the day-before-yesterday; in the last 16 years I have spoken to four or five thousand audiences in Germany, small, large and immense; but in not one speech or line that I have written have I ever uttered the slightest sentiment against an Anglo-German entente . . . .

An Anglo-German entente would form in Europe and thus in the world a force for peace and reason of 120 millions of the most superior people. Britain's sea power and unique colonial talent would be united with one of the world's first soldier-races. Were this entente extended to embrace the American nation, then it would, indeed, be hard to see who in the world could disturb the peace without wilfully and consciously neglecting the interests of the White race . . . . The Gods love and favour those who seem to demand the impossible!

It was not to be. For, as Irving tells us, "The London correspondent of the Nazi Völkischer Beobachter reported that whenever Churchill opened his mouth, it was a safe bet that an attack on Germany would emerge. Every major speech bore this out."

Thus, it was all amity on Hitler's side and all enmity on Churchill's. There were countless powerful Englishmen who agreed with Hitler, yet a higher power deemed that the whites must at all costs be kept divided.

Churchill was in fact a white racist, as the 1955 Cabinet documents, and so much else, makes plain. But first and last he was a ruthless egotist who rode the "Hitler threat" to power and thereby forced Hitler to become a threat -- as Irving makes plain.

Northern Ireland. Affirmative action and Kennedy quotas are casting discriminatory shadows overseas. At the behest of Senator Edward Kennedy and nephew Rep. Joseph Kennedy II, a Senate-House Conference Committee ordered a Northern Ireland defense contractor to the Pentagon to hire more Roman Catholics. Fat Face probably wanted, but didn't dare to, include IRA terrorists in his overseas quota.

France. Do 55 million Frenchmen hang on every word and every syllable spoken by Jean-Marie Le Pen? This seems to be the case. Not too long after he -- correctly -- called the Holocaust a "footnote" in the history of WWII (which inspired the media on both sides of the Atlantic to make him out to be a reincarnation of Julius Streicher), M. Le Pen sallied forth with a pun on the name of a political rival, Michel Durafour, France's Minister of Public Services.

After Durafour, who describes himself as a centrist, attacked Le Pen in a bristling speech and asked other centrists to vote against him in next year's municipal elections, the leader of the Front National exercised his right of reply. Among other items he covered, he stated -- again correctly -- that Durafour was willing to ally himself with Communists in order to keep members of the Front National out of political office.

In the course of his speech, Le Pen played on the last syllable of Durafour's name (four in French means oven) and called him M. Durafour-crématoire. This could mean that the Minister of Public Services had suffered a burn-out in the performance of his public duties or (shades of Auschwitz!) it could mean that Le Pen was making a joke out of the Holocaust.

The media, naturally, chose the anti-Le Pen alternative and exploded: "Le Pen commits a second offense . . . . These are words one does not make jokes about . . . . Le Pen is showing what he is at last; a racist and an anti-Semite . . . . Le Pen is carried away by his fantasies and does not hesitate to insult the victims of Nazism . . . . Le Pen continues to fuel the flames of anti-Semitism in our country." Durafour himself joined the attack, which was as intense and all-encompassing a piece of butchery as the media blitz on Dan Quayle after the Republican Convention. The minister commented, "I can see Le Pen misses the good old Nazi times and wants to see them again." Le Pen's rebuttal was short and sweet, "Durafour's an imbecile, but a bum (salaud)"

Le Pen's "footnote" remark didn't do him any lasting and serious harm. Seven months after he made it (September 1987), his party got 14% of the vote in the first round of the presidential election. It remains to be seen if his crematorium gaffe will bounce as easily off the electorate's memory. In a desperate effort to keep it on the front burner, the political opposition and Jewish mind-molders may try to prosecute him under France's hate laws.

Italy. A onetime mastermind of the terrorist Red Brigades, Alberto Franceschini, now in jail, has written in a prison publication that before his arrest he was approached by a Mossad agent who offered to reveal the names of stool-pigeons and of two policemen trying to infiltrate the movement. In return, the Israeli agent wanted an assurance that the Red Brigades would continue their armed struggle. Why? Because the Zionist state, Franceschini writes, "wanted to keep Italy permanently destabilized so the U.S. would see Israel as its only sure ally in the Mediterranean."

Russia. Instauration will forgo making any serious comment on what is transpiring on these days behind the shrouded Kremlin walls. Perhaps even Mikhail Gorbachev is slightly in the dark. We remember what happened to Khrushchev when all the world thought he was safely and permanently in the driver's seat. Gorbachev's recent coup (getting himself elected president) and purge (getting rid of some old party wheelhorses) could as easily be interpreted (1) as the desperate last-minute power grab of a frustrated reformer or (2) as a smart preemptive move to consolidate his position as the Soviet man on horseback. At the same time, it must not be forgotten that it's no easy task to throw out a politician who controls his country's media.

Instauration does know one thing, however. It knows that Russia will never become a democracy in the Western definition of the word. Neither will it become a Western-style consumerocracy. Slavs, politically, are a follow-the-leader race. In the past they have supinely bowed to czars and commissars, and their experiments with democracy have been chaotic and short-lived. If one set of leaders topples another set, the Slavs will slavishly go along. As a population, they will endure suffering and privation that would drive other whites up the wall. Their lack of individualism, the basic requirement for a democratic temperament, is unsuitable for market economies and bills of rights, but excellent for war economies and totalitarianism. What saves Russia from total second-ratedness are the flashes of supreme genius emitted by the small Nordic component (10-20%) of its population.

Our wild, uneducated guess is that after Gorbachev fails, as he is bound to fail in the end, the armed forces will step in and present the servile and beaten-down Russians with a Franco or Pinochet solution.

Gorbachev's loosening up of state controls over most aspects of civilian life has little to do with principle. It's basically a political ploy to win favor with the Russian masses, who have been kicked around so much over the years that even promises of a little more freedom -- and a little more food -- arouse some support for the promiser. Never mind that these same Russians know very well that there is little chance that the promises will ever be fulfilled.

One outcome of the relaxed censorship has been the rehabilitation of a mess of Old Bolshevik villains like Bukharin, Kamenev and Rykov. Only partially rehabilitated so far is the Great Satan himself, Leon Trotsky. Gorbachev even mentioned his name in a speech. A few years ago, anyone who wrote a kind word about Trotsky would have been shot before he had a chance to put down his pen.

Trotsky's works are now "unbanned" as part of a collection of 10,000 previously "restricted" books which have now been moved out of locked areas in public libraries and made available to the public. Only 500 books are still considered so dangerous that they must be kept from the eyes of ordinary Russian readers. They are mainly "of anti-Semitic or Zionist content," explained Vladimir Solodin of the State Library Censorship Commission.

In other words, Russian censorship of books has now ascended or descended to the U.S. level.

Israel. Almost half the Israelis want to expel every last Palestinian from the Gaza Strip and the West Bank, according to a Hebrew Institute poll conducted in August. The Israelis call it a transfer, though Jews employed a different term when the Germans moved Anne Frank from Holland to Poland in WWII.

It won't quite be genocide, a word Jews have used most loosely, but neither will it be a transfer. What it will be is a forced exodus, in which thousands of the 1.5 million will die in transit, just as many if not more than the numbers who died in that more excusable exodus that parted the waters of the Red Sea three millennia earlier. A huge death toll is certain because there will not be nearly enough facilities to receive and shelter the migrants after they have been driven into the Egyptian and Jordanian deserts or into the wasteland of Southern Lebanon.

Jews have milked the West for almost half a century for reparations for their losses during WWII. The U.S. and West Germany have shelled out billions, and are still shelling out. But have the Israelis ever compensated the Palestinians for the lands and property snatched away from them, or for the dog's life that hundreds of thousands of the refugees have lived in Middle Eastern concentration camps, which have all too often been the targets of repeated Israeli bombing attacks?

Palestinians have been the victims of what Instauration conceives to be one of the great crimes of the 20th century. Although this honest-to-god Holocaust is going on right under the world's eyes, American politicians continue to pander to the criminals and aggressors and treated and rewarded them as if they were some kind of modern crusaders -- as if Menahem Begin were a 20th-century Tancred and Yitzhak Shamir were a born-again Bohemund. If the Arab and Moslem countries ever manage to get hold of a stack of nuclear bombs, they may try to get revenge not only by dropping them on Israel, but also on the U.S. After all, America has become the arsenal, the treasury and the trencherman of Zionism. How idiotic and pathetic it is for a country to endanger the existence of tens of millions of its own citizens by supporting a cruel, anachronistic and neurotic racism that is not even its own!

What will the politicians in Washington do when the Israelis, who have wailed for half a century about Hitler's making his Third Reich Judenrein, make Gaza and the West Bank Arab-rein? The inveterate pats will probably boost the $3 billion a year payola to Israel to $4 billion to compensate for the strain the mass deportation will put on the Israeli economy.

In the Iran-Contra hearings, one of the prime duties of the joint Senate and House Committee was to hush up the Israeli connection. Now Ya'acov Nimrodi, the Zionist hustler, has written an article in the Jerusalem Post (Aug. 27, 1988) that explains in detail that Israel not only launched the operation of selling arms to the Ayatullah, but practically directed the Iran part of the wheeling and dealing from start to finish. In fact, Nimrodi wants to start it all over again. The only item he doesn't cover in his "confession" is how many millions he and other Israeli middlemen made out of the deal.

The Israelis also played an important role in another disreputable U.S. adventure in foreign policy -- the cozying up to Panamanian drug king Manuel Noriega. As the New York Post (July 11, 1988) reported, Mike Harari, the man from Mossad, is the "political confidante, senior adviser and financial protector" as well as the "brains and brawn" of Noriega. Aside from working hand in glove with Noriega in the latter's drug supermarket, Harari skims off 60% of the money from Israeli arms sales to Panama and splits half of this take with his strong-arm partner.

Thanks to Harari, Noriega has two palatial homes in Israel, where he can safely hole up and be protected from extradition, in case the U.S. and other Latin American nations ever screw up enough courage to throw him out of his Panama perch. They might start by throwing out Harari.

It's not only in the occupied territories that Palestinians are dying. Three of them were burned to death in Or Yehud, a town in Israel proper, in early September when someone (guess who?) bolted the door of the shack in which they were sleeping and set it on fire. In Tel Aviv no one cared. The café set was laughing at a new joke -- that the intifada was a new Mexican dish.

Israelis are applauding a new Dutch postcard that is not very kind to Yasser Arafat.

Africa. From an Afrikaner Subscriber. In September, the Pope arrived in Lesotho, to the accompaniment of much oohing and aahing from the world media. Earlier, he had taken his life in his hands, or entrusted it to the Lord's hands, by heading for Maseru, the capital of Lesotho, in an Air Zimbabwe Boeing, which never got there. The plane had a white pilot, to be sure, but it flew into a violent storm, bucking and bouncing in a most alarming manner as the pilot gunned the engines to lift it over the Maluti mountains surrounding the little airport. Then he found he couldn't land because the plane's landing-aid instruments were not functioning. Its fuel running out, the papal jet had to fly to Johannesburg, where the Holy Father had said he would not go. On the plane's arrival, a South African maintenance crew found that the plane's navigational instruments were out of order and it had been flying half-blind.

Lighting in South Africa, the Pope did not kiss the soil, as he customarily does the first time he visits every other country. After rest and refreshment he was driven to Maseru with a strong police escort, where another drama had developed. A bus from the Qacha Nek mission with 69 pilgrims, mostly school children and nuns, had been hijacked by four heavily armed men and driven to the gates of the British High Commission, where the hostages were kept for over a day without food or water or toilet facilities while the hijackers made various insane demands. Since Lesotho's splendidly uniformed generals were quite unable to deal with the situation, a special South African police formation had to be called in. Apparently unseen, they took up appropriate stations, and when the hijackers drove toward the closed gates of the Commission, they started shooting, killing three men and wounding the fourth, who died later. One hostage was killed and 11 were injured by the wild return fire of the hijackers.

One would have thought that the Pope would have been grateful to South Africans for providing a safe landing for his endangered plane and for freeing and saving the lives of Catholic pilgrims. Not at all. He later let it be known that he still firmly supports tough economic sanctions to bring down the white nation of South Africa and turn it over to the blacks.

One wonders, if a South African plane were running out of gas over Rome, whether Saint Peter's triple-crowned heir might not have demanded that Italian air controllers let it crash rather than permit it to land.

India. One way to stop the spread of AIDS is to make it a criminal offense for people infected with the virus to have sex with an uninfected partner. But this logical precaution is well beyond the reach of Western nations, which put individual rights ahead of public health. In India, however, with a paucity of blood testing facilities and where overblown altruism does not exert the same baleful influence it does in London and New York, Dr. Avtar Singh Paintal, director general of the Indian Council for Medical Research, has not gone so far as to propose legal strictures on the sexual activities of AIDSters. But he has endorsed the next best thing -- a government prohibition on intercourse between Indians and foreign visitors, whether or not the latter test positive for the virus. Indians who violate could be given a $800 fine and three months in prison.

The expected media outcry came from the Indian Express, India's most influential English-language newspaper, which advised Dr. Paintal not to waste time proposing "jurisprudential solutions that offend human dignity and violate individual liberties." To reasonable people (a category which excludes late-20th century liberals), nothing should threaten human dignity and individual liberty more than the spreading AIDS epidemic, unless there is dignity and individual liberty in a slow, fatal and wasting disease contracted by the most disgusting of all types of body contact.

Australia. From a subscriber. The immigration/multicultural issue has burst open in Australia like a festering boil. The political rancor within and without the parties has been building up for weeks as the hypocrisy and deceit of the last 20 years spills out. It all started with the Fitzgerald immigration inquiry initiated last year by Immigration Minister Mick Young. The report was issued in June 1988. While it can tend to mean all things to all men, it was obviously designed (choice of committee members, terms of reference, etc.) to be a "snow job," endorsing government policy. It didn't work out that way. It recently cost the latest immigration minister, Clyde Holding, his job after only six months in this now lethal portfolio. The new incumbent is Robert Ray, a senator from Victoria. This is the first time, to my recollection, that a minister has been appointed to that job from the Upper House. Maybe it's a tactic to ensure that the minister of immigration cannot in the future be picked off electorally by concerted campaigning within the boundaries of his geographical seat. Parliamentarians know that immigration appointments can spell the end of their parliamentary careers. It either becomes too much for them or they get voted out. Perhaps this sort of scenario can only work in a still fairly homogeneous society like Australia.

Shortly after Instauration received the above communication, John Howard, head of the Liberal Party, the main political opposition to Prime Minister Bob Hawke's ruling Labor Party, broke all the usual political rules and came out publicly for a change in Australia's immigration policy. He called it the One Australia program and wants fewer immigrants, especially fewer of the Asian species.

The media and the Labourites and the minorites set up a howl that could be heard on Discovery. There have been few, very few, politicians anywhere in the West who have dared to raise their voices against the immigration flood, which bids fair to be as destructive as Noah's, at least to the white world: Enoch Powell in England and Le Pen in France are two -- but until Howard spoke out, no leader of a major party in an English-speaking country had gone on record as favoring a reduction in the non-white immigrant influx.

Howard's sensational outspokenness set off a debate on immigration among the Liberal Party bigwigs. Some, like the half-Jewish Malcolm Fraser, the former Liberal prime minister, were bitterly opposed to any cut. Others backed Howard all the way. In the end, Howard made it plain he will make immigration and multiculturalism an issue in the next election. Previously, as in the U.S. and Britain, the topic was deliberately hushed up by the major parties, so the voters who were overwhelmingly against the immigrant influx would have no opportunity to register their opposition. Howard says his legislation will not discriminate, but will give the Australian government, which he hopes to head after the next election, the right to regulate the entry of foreigners in a way that will maintain a "socially, cohesive, harmonious and tolerant society."

Prime Minister Bob Hawke, a pathological advocate of the yellowing and browning of the Australian population, quickly accused Howard of racism. Various economic "experts" hogged the media with dire warnings that a drop in immigration might cost Australia "billions" from the loss of trade and possible boycotts instituted by Asian nations. The same economists carefully omitted to say that these same Asian nations refuse to welcome white immigrants in their countries.

Note: Demographer Charles Price of the Australian Institute of the Census calculates that the present Australian population is 74% Anglo-Celt, 19% Other European, 5% Asian and 2% Other. In 1987-88, according to official government figures, which in the case of immigration are not necessarily to be believed, 32.4% of Australia's immigrants came from Asia.

Nazi hunting has become a favorite hobby of Australian politicians groveling to the influential and ever vengeful Jewish slice of the continent's population. Ironically, the same people who favor multiculturalism are behind the new War Crimes Amendment Bill, which, if passed, will obviously stir up waves of hatred against citizens of Eastern European descent. As in Canada and the U.S., practically all of the alleged war criminals are dragnettted out of these ethnic groups.

John Bennett, head of the Australian Civil Liberties Union, continues to fight the good fight for true racial harmony in his country by asking Justice Marcus Einfeld, the Jewish boss of the Human Rights and Equal Opportunities Commission, to stop playing the sly racist game of sounding off routinely against the Soviet treatment of Jewish refuseniks, but uttering not a word about the atrocities committed by Israelis against Palestinians.

Bennett points out that the Israelis are holding more than 1,000 Palestinians without trial and more than 100 of them (as of June 1) have been killed without any condemnation or criticism from Einfeld. Bennett also charges Einfeld's HRECO has taken no action against the almost daily incitement to racial hatred against Australians of German and Arab descent by vast numbers of tendentious TV shows.

The Ordeal of Giovanni Pinto

The James Keegstra case in Canada is being replayed in the Montville High School in New Jersey. A tenured teacher, Giovanni Pinto, has been raked over the coals and may be fired for interjecting a few cons along with the usual multitude of pros in a classroom discussion of Jewry. David Rand, a hotshot lawyer hired by the school board, grilled students mercilessly in an effort to pin down Pinto's statements. As in the Keegstra case, some of the students defended him.

School gossip had it that Pinto had committed the great no-no; he had denied the Holocaust in his Spanish I class. Moreover, he had allegedly contradicted a student's assertion that her grandfather had been refused an education in Russia because he was Jewish. The Holocaust charge, a 16-year-old recalled, consisted of a suspicious nod of Pinto's head when someone made some controversial remarks about the Six Million. One student said there was nothing to it. "They were just trying to put words in his mouth . . . and he was just trying to get off the subject. He didn't take a contrary view at all."

Pinto did concede, however, Jews may feel discriminated against in the Soviet Union because, "their commercial instincts . . . are frustrated there."

Another charge brought against Pinto was that he had insisted that his pupils, Jews included, compose Christmas cards in Spanish. Not true, he answered. Even though Spain is an overwhelmingly Christian country and non-Christian greetings would be totally out of place there, he said he allowed his Jewish pupils to compose Hanukkah cards.

The trigger for the persecution of Pinto was squeezed by a Jewish mother, as confirmed by one student who was heard to say, "My Mom's going to get a lawyer and get Mr. Pinto fired."

The hounded and harassed teacher was suspended without pay on February 24. Although his suspension was still in effect, his salary was restored in September. His "trial" has not only been financially damaging to him, but to the New Jersey Education Association, which furnished him a lawyer, Nancy Oxfeld, whose relations "perished in the Holocaust" and who will charge $20,000 for her services. With a Jewish attorney defending him, they have poor Pinto coming and going.

Third Party Problems

The Populist Party scored a few last-minute successes in September and October when it managed to get its presidential candidate, David Duke, on the ballot in Minnesota and New Jersey. In Minnesota, the sorely needed 2,000 signatures were obtained just under the wire of the September 13 deadline. If the party can deliver 5,000 votes for Duke on November 8, it will automatically remain on the ballot in future elections, thereby eliminating the agony of gathering signatures all over again. It will also permit Minnesota's Populist Renaissance Party to run a slate of candidates in forthcoming statewide elections.

In New Jersey, only 800 signatures were required to get Duke on the ballot. Garden State Populists came up with over 1,500, many of them collected at a booth in a Farmer's Fair and at beach resorts.

In all, David Duke will be on the ballot in more than ten states -- the result of a lot of sweat and toil on the part of the Party faithful. Needless to say, if the U.S. was really a democracy, Duke's name would appear on the ballots of all 50 states. But the Republicans and Democrats have the voting process rigged to prevent any substantial competition from a third party.

Soviet Russia and China are one-party states. The U.S. and many First World nations are two-party states. Both political systems shut off any effective opposition. In the U.S., for example, the people have no way in the presidential election of voting on the all-important issues of immigration and affirmative action. If it had been allowed to get its candidates on the ballot of every state, and if the media had given these candidates a chance to speak instead of treating them with silence or scorn, the Populist Party would have been in a position to force Bush or Dukakis to respond to the people's wishes or watch a crucial element of their support drain away to the Populists.

No one ever expects a Populist Party or any other third party to win a presidential election, either in this century or far into the next. But this doesn't mean that the Populist or some other third party couldn't grow large enough to become a swing vote in elections.

A swing vote large enough to defeat one presidential nominee and ensure the victory of another, we need not remind our readers, would have a miraculous effect on the major party candidates and actually force them to stop deceiving and start truly representing the people who vote for them.

Belated Award

Dr. Arthur Rudolph, who helped put men on the moon, was awarded the Hermann Oberth Society gold medal in Feucht, West Germany, on June 24.

Although he was the engineering genius who had played a principal role in the development of the Saturn V rocket and had become an honored U.S. citizen, the Jewish vendetta team known as the Office of Special Investigations interrupted his well-deserved retirement in California and threatened him with a war-crimes deportation trial if he didn't leave the U.S. forthwith. Rather than face trumped-up charges and the endemic anti-German racism of the Semitic-saturated U.S. media, Rudolph returned to West Germany, where a thorough government investigation found no charges against him and allowed him to retrieve his German citizenship.

America's treatment of Rudolph, after his major part in putting the American astronauts on the moon was a monumental piece of ingratitude. The shabbiness of the affair was compounded by the refusal of many high-placed government and NASA officials to defend him, although they were quite aware of the gross injustice that had been done.

The U.S. will go down in history as the country that accomplished mankind's greatest feat to date. But, like so many other bright parts of the human record, the moon landing was deflated and debased by the cheap shots and noisome negativism of Jewish racists.

Rudolph, now 94, may at least have the comfort of knowing that after his death his name will be remembered as long as the Faustian spirit drives humans further and further into space, while the names of his persecutors and defamers will be confined to a small, lowly footnote in the book of foul play.

Holocaust Backlash

As Jewish terror boils in occupied Palestine, as Zionist leaders boast about their newly invented plastic bullets, which were designed only to wound, but occasionally kill, any American politician with an ounce of decency and a gram of dedication to human rights should take to the stump and denounce such barbarism. Instead, the pols baby their Jewish constituents by proposing new Holocaust memorials and Holocaust Remembrance Days. The latest state to engage in this sordid practice is New Jersey, whose legislators are now considering Assembly Joint Resolution 54, making the first Sunday in April Holocaust Victims Remembrance Day.

The resolution is almost certain to pass. But this time, perhaps for the first time, there has been some organized opposition to Holocaust memorial steamrolling. A group called the Topical Review Committee has mailed the following letter to all of New Jersey's 42 state senators and 82 assemblymen (we refuse to torture the English language by saying assemblypersons):

We are a group of New Jersey citizens who wish to express in no uncertain terms our opposition to AJR 74. Under no circumstances should New Jersey officially memorialize the alleged victims of "The Holocaust." This would be an affront to the known victims of the numerous other holocausts of this century, e.g., the Chinese (60 million victims), Cambodian (2.5 million), Ukrainian (7 million), Russian Kulak (15 million), Ethiopian (2.5 million), among many other genocidal atrocities.

As you may be aware, the facts of the best known holocaust are under intense re-examination right now. According to some sources it seems that there were more likely 200 thousand Jews among the millions of World War II casualties due to normal wartime attrition; not to a purported campaign of systematic extermination.

The time has come to put the events of recent world history in their proper perspective. Please vote against AJR 74 and focus your attention on matters of genuine urgency, such as our automobile insurance crisis.

Instaurationists who wish to congratulate the Topical Review Committee on its unusual courage, and who might wish to give these good people some financial support, can write them at 650 Somerset St., Room A-11, North Plainfield, NJ 07060.

A Question of Numbers

Although the 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act has come under severe criticism, that law has produced some beneficial results. Numerous businesses which have been deliberately employing illegal aliens have been fined, some heavily. It cost Ready-Men Inc., a Chicago temporary service company, $308,000 for hiring illegals, 88 of whom were arrested in the first four months of 1988. Ghulam Bombaywola, a Pakistani owner of a chain of Mexican restaurants, has been hit with a $10,000 fine. The INS claimed he was the largest employer of illegals in the Houston (TX) area.

Perhaps the most positive note in immigration control in recent times has been the publication in Science magazine (July 15, 1988) of a brilliant article on the problem by Constance Holden. After warning that half the world's immigrants who want to resettle permanently have their eyes on the U.S., the author states the number who arrived and will still arrive in the 1980s may well top the record 8.8 million who came in in the first decade of this century.

Holden tells us that immigrants are now responsible for one-third of the country's annual population growth. Legals are arriving at the rate of 600,000 a year, refugees at 70,000 and illegals in unknown quantities.

Family reunification is the basis for 90% of admissions -- a sort of "chain migration" because the more people arrive, the more relatives they can send for. Soon, the relatives are bringing in their relatives. Although the legal limit for immigrants is 270,000 a year, the family reunification program more than doubles this number.

With 27 million illiterate adults already inhabiting the country, it's obvious that the present-day 10% immigration component of skilled workers should be greatly increased and the 90% family reunification component severely cut. Relations of illiterates are not likely to reduce the analphabetism that is lowering the U.S. cultural level to ground zero.

One of the more deleterious effects of the immigrant flood is to slow up the technology and research that could stop U.S. dependence on Mexican fieldhands, the greatest single source of illegal immigration. In recent years, the easy availability of such labor has reduced the number of development projects for mechanical orange pickers from 50 to 1. Furthermore, illegal laborers continue to allow the government to "buy off" poor nonwhite citizens with welfare instead of jogging them into looking for job openings.

Holden lays special emphasis on the prediction of David Simcox and Leon Bouvier of the Center for Immigration Studies that half of Mexico's huge work force will be unemployed by the year 2000 and that the population of Caribbean Basin countries, including Colombia, Venezuela and Guyana, will be 320 million in A.D. 2010.

The question is (a question that Holden adumbrates but doesn't really address) will the American Majority sit back and continue to betray the immense work and sacrifices of its forefathers by allowing this once incomparable and unique creation, the United States of America, to go down the drain in front of their very eyes and become uninhabitable for their children and grandchildren?

Looking at the country's present rush to chaos, it's quite possible that this Majority do-nothingness will continue. But when comes the Great Crunch, when Majority members see that the very existence of their families is at stake, when minority members are running amuck in the big cities and turning California, Florida and much of the Southwest into Third World sinkholes -- at that crucial moment, will Majority members still sit back and twiddle their thumbs?

We shall see. But whatever happens, at least we, our children and our grandchildren will be living in very interesting times -- times of gigantic historic convulsions that will portend either a new life or a disreputable death for Americans of Northern European descent and perhaps for Northern Europeans everywhere.

Prof Won't Lie Down

Dr. Allen Towery, associate professor of English at Georgia Southwestern College, was suspended without pay after a female freshman, in a dispute about grades, had complained he had called her a "black bitch" -- not to her face, mind you, but to himself out loud after class. Normally, such a charge, whether true or not, would be enough to destroy Dr. Towery's career or the career of any other teacher or professor.

It makes no difference, of course, whether Towery did or did not utter these buzziest of buzzwords. In these times of minority ascendancy, the presumption of innocence is long gone. Just the accusation is sufficient to prove guilt.

Unlike most Majority members who fall afoul of minority racism, however, Dr. Towery did not slink away into the night, move to another city and spend the rest of his life pumping gas or flipping hamburgers. He actually had the guts and the hubris to fight back -- in the form of a $250,000 damage suit against Georgia Southwestern College President William H. Capitan and the Georgia Board of Regents. The basis of his suit, according to Towery's lawyer, is that his client's due process rights were violated, that although the faculty committee recommended Towery be reinstated for the fall quarter, Dr. Capitan unilaterally overrode its decision. Moreover, it is charged, he had kept certain evidence favorable to Towery out of sight and hearing of the faculty committee.

Chicago Law

Suppose you were a black Chicagoan and had applied for a job with the Chicago Miniature Lamp Works between 1970 and 1981. If you were turned down, it may have been the result of racial discrimination and you are due some compensation. So says a court ruling obtained by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. But that's only the half of it. Listen to this. The ruling went on to state that any black who would have applied for such a job had he known about it may also receive compensation.

If that isn't crazy enough, here's another news item from Chicago that would have given Adam Smith the jitters. As every realtor knows, when a black family, single- or double-headed, moves into a white neighborhood, the price of homes starts nosediving. Since blacks keep crowding into the big cities and proliferating therein and whites keep fleeing from same and not proliferating therein, Chicago pols decided to make it easier for white homeowners to sell and black home buyers to buy (and speed up the white efflux and the black influx) by passing a law that protected the value of homes in areas undergoing racial change. The city would guarantee the difference between the appraised value and the sales price of homes in the neighborhoods under attack.

Although blacks would have an easier time of moving into a white neighborhood because whites would be more eager to sell, Eugene Sawyer, Chicago's interim black mayor, vetoed the measure. It was "racist," he asserted, because it gave official recognition to the fact that the arrival of blacks in any white enclave lowered property values.

Black Chicagoans had varying reactions to Sawyer's veto, but they were united in their opposition to a U.S. Dept. of Transportation ruling that lumped female-run businesses into the cherished 10% minority set-asides. Previously, a special 3% set-aside had been put on top of the minority 10% for enterprises owned by women. Since females can be Majority members (even, perish the thought, WASPs!) blacks were up in arms. The comments of Gus Savage, the black Chicago congressman, were relatively restrained compared to what was being said in the smoke-filled rooms in the Chicago City Hall. Said Savage, "I say let white females eat out of their own plates or the plates of white males."

Chicago blacks also stewed over a caricature of the late Mayor Washington. Steve Nelson, an Art Institute graduate student tired of hearing Washington, an income tax dodger, being posthumously deified, drew him in ladies' underwear (the Mayor was rumored to have a penchant for same).

Washington compared to Christ

In skimpy drag

When nine black aldermen found out about it, they stormed into the hall where the picture was hung and carried it away. Instead of protesting, Marshall Field V, the gelatinous president of the Art Institute's Board of Trustees, paid for full-page ads in Chicago papers apologizing for "the distress and concern that the painting caused the community." As a further act of contrition, Field promised that the Art Institute would hire more black administrators and enroll more black students. Field tried to cover over his yellow streak by saying that the aldermen had threatened "attacks on the institute and bombings. . . It was frightening. . . When you introduce that racial element, it takes on a much meaner and ferocious tone."

Rapture Rescinded

The Rapture was scheduled to take place between September 11-13, 1988. That was the timetable devised by a former NASA engineer, Edgar Whisenant, in a book that sold 600,000 copies.

A few God-fearing Americans sold their possessions and waited patiently on the dates specified—and waited and waited. At the last minute Whisenant updated the great day to September 14—without avail.

There were other Whisenant predictions: nuclear war between Russia and the United States would begin at sunrise on October 4 of this year; Judgment Day would roll around in November 1995; and the millennium, the 1,000-year reign of Christ on Earth, would start on December 23, 1995.

Quite a busy calendar of world-shaking events! A truer prediction might be that mankind will die of stupidity by the turn of the century if people like Whisenant are not confined to a loony bin where they can be raptured to their heart's content, but not permitted to peddle their eschatological slop to the public at large.

Judicial Mania

In August the Eighth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Kansas City (MO) upheld a lower court's order nearly doubling the property taxes of some local residents in order to finance the costs of long delayed school desegregation. Whatever happened to "No taxation without representation"? It's obviously become just another of those once revered watchwords that the liberal-minority coalition has managed to erase from the national consciousness.

Freedom of association, though seldom touted as loudly as the other classic freedoms, is just as vital to the national well-being. Thanks to the judiciary (the double entendre is deliberate), it is now on the way out. When Judge Leonard B. Sand, a Jewish jurist who lives securely in an all-white suburban enclave miles away from multiracial Yonkers, couldn't persuade the city fathers to build 1,000 low-cost public housing units in nonblack neighborhoods, he cavalierly started bankrupting the city with fines that began at $100 a day and doubled each day thereafter. He also fined each of the recalcitrant city councilmen who opposed his ruling $500 a day and threatened them with jail if they didn't shape up.

An appeals court approved the levies against the councilmen, but put a cap of $1 million a day on the fines against the city. Meanwhile, New York State's Financial Control Board took over Yonkers' finances and started firing everyone in sight. Under these hammer blows it was impossible for the council to hold out.

Spotting low-cost public housing in a well-kept white neighborhood guarantees that it is only a question of time until the area is turned into a sinkhole of crime and drug trafficking. The value of the whites' homes will fall with a financial thud. One house in the future Yonkers "no-man's land," offered for sale at $200,000, was quickly reduced to $125,000 when the owner heard about the council's surrender.

Now that American judges have become so high and mighty they can choose a person's neighbors, how long will it be before they can choose a person's bedmate? But this last and final step in a nation's destruction would probably not give Judge Sand the faintest qualm. His entry in Who's Who omits all mention of a wife and family.

In regard to another freedom, freedom of education, 14,000 Yonkers' kids have to spend up to one hour a day being bused to schools outside their own neighborhoods for the purpose of racial balance. At present whites comprise 46% of the student population. Next year it will be less.

Jewish Spies

About 250 Israelis are assigned to their country's military purchasing office in New York City, where they spend their time buying weapons and other war materiel with the $1.8 billion they get every year free of charge from U.S. taxpayers. Recently the State Dept. has been asked by Yitzhak Shamir's government to grant diplomatic immunity to some 47 members of this mission. In other words, Israel wants to enlarge its spy network, already oversized and already hyperactive, as proved by the Jonathan Pollard case. With diplomatic immunity, a spy can steal secrets, blackmail officials and wiretap to his heart's content, knowing full well that if he gets caught he will escape punishment. The most harm that can come to him is an order to leave the country.

The Justice Dept. and the FBI are vehemently against complying with Israeli demands to augment its espionage network. But the decision is up to the State Dept., which often acts as if it was an Israeli government agency. Time after time the Zionists have violated U.S. export laws in transferring high-tech military equipment and devices to Israel, but little or nothing has been done. One case dates back to July 1986, when eight Israelis were accused of illegally shipping cluster bomb manufacturing tools to the Zionist state. An investigation was undertaken but soon quashed. Another equally serious case, which came to light in November 1987, had to do with smuggling equipment and technology for making chrome-plated cannons. The Connecticut company was fined $750,000, but the Israeli contrabandists went scot-free.

In May 1985, Richard K. Smyth, an aerospace engineer, was indicted for smuggling 800 krytons, nuclear trigger devices, into Israel. Rather than face trial, Smyth flew the coop, forfeiting $100,000 bail. Some say he has been murdered by the Mossad because he "knew too much." Others believe that he and his wife, who disappeared with him, are now honored guests of the Israeli government.

Meanwhile, Jonathan Pollard, the one Israeli spy who was nabbed—perhaps because he is a U.S. citizen—is the target of an ever noisier campaign to commute his life sentence and let him go to the land he loves, the land where he is considered a hero. At the same time his wife, Anne Henderson-Pollard, is being written up as a sort of Jewish Joan of Arc. She is in jail for five years for aiding and abetting the renegadish work of her husband. If the Rosenbergs, the atom bomb spies, can be rehabilitated by a continuous output of exculpatory books, articles and TV docudramas, why shouldn't the Pollards get the same kind of favorable treatment? Apparently they should. Jewish spies seem to be a special kind of spy, just as Jews seem to be a special kind of people.

Hate Movies

No sooner had The Last Temptation of Christ, which portrays Jesus as engaging in animal behavior and having animal thoughts, racked up big box office profits, than the film industry let go another racial blast at whites with Betrayed, a hyped-up tale of a gang of brutal Midwestern racists who blithely engage in a "nigger hunt." The story is loosely, most loosely, based on the now extinct Order, some of whose members had been accused of shooting down a viperous Denver talk show host, Alan Berg, a Jew like Larry King and so many other members of this sordid profession.

If this cinematic deluge of minority racism wasn't enough, another celluloid agit-propper, Running on Empty, showed up on September silver screens. This one actually had a lot of good things to say about a Marxist couple who blinded a janitor in an attack on a college laboratory at the height of the Vietnam War hoopla.

Kill a Negro and a Jew and its bad medicine. Whites get 150-year sentences for such a crime. Blind a janitor in the course of pushing world revolution and so what. About all you get is 17 years of wandering around the country without even being arrested, though every police officer is supposed to be looking for you. The man responsible for Betrayed is the Greek film director, Costa-Gavras, who lives in Paris with his French wife. The producer was Irwin Winkler. The film was distributed by United Artists, whose president is Tony Thomopoulos. Another Greek? The director of the film that glorifies the bombmaker is Sidney Lumet, not another Greek, whose most acclaimed work before Running on Empty was Daniel, a message movie that tear-jerked for the Rosenbergs, that loving atom spy couple.

Haters of whites and lovers of Jews do face a problem when they go whole hog in making monsters out of Majority members. It's just possible that if they carry their dehumanization too far, they may eventually succeed. And if they succeed, what then? Doesn't a monster make a more deadly and more cruel enemy than a cowed and confused Joe Sixpack?

The real betrayal in Betrayed is the betrayal of art by fact twisters like Constantin Costa-Gavras, who calls himself a Sartrean Communist, after the wall-eyed French philosophe. Art is subtlety. What Costa-Gavras does in his films is pile propaganda on propaganda. Art heightens and intensifies truth. Costa-Gavras concentrates on the untruth that emerges automatically from hyperbole. Art overcomes man's baser instincts by illuminating them with the brighter flashes of the human spirit. Costa-Gavras relies on the cheap trick of shocking the audience into attention by showing man at his worst—in living color and all-around sound on the giant screen. But evil to the fourth power is only as deep as the screen itself.

Slurs Galore

- Sergeant John Harkins, a Rockville (MD) police officer, while talking to two rookie cops, described local blacks as "niggers" and "coconut heads." These words cost him $700 in docked pay and 40 hours of indoctrination in "human relations."

- A black tenant complained to the Fairfax County (VA) Human Rights Commission that a white tenant had been yelling racial insults at her and threatening her with her dog. The Commission ordered the owners of the apartment complex to pay $10,000 to the offended woman for failure to "provide a housing environment free of racist harassment."

- National Geographic (July 1988) ran an article which used "redneck" as an adjective to describe the folks who live in the Georgia city of Smyrna. Erla Zwingle, not a Georgian, but a New Yorker, was the author. When the Smyrna Historical Association asked the National Geographic to apologize, it got nowhere.

- A high Department of Education official, Deputy Undersecretary Bruce Carnes, was asked to resign by black Democratic Congressman Augustus Hawkins after the Wall Street Journal quoted him as saying a crackdown on student loans would hurt black colleges most. "It's possible," Carnes explained, "their student bodies contain a high level of thieves."
