

Down With Nitpickers

N.B. Forrest and Vic Olvir being my Instauration writers of choice, it irritates me to read such nitpicking criticisms as those purveyed by Zips 660 and 368. I was glad to see Forrest's rebuttal in the July issue. No one with any knowledge of history could deny that Christianity, while originating in Asia, was greatly altered by Europeans and is the only extant "European" religion.

I go along with the critics of Christianity who are revolted and dismayed by liberation theology and the antiwhite attitude of the World Council of Churches. Christianity has undergone considerable change, for the worse, in this century. Popes and cardinals of the Counter-Reformation would not recognize Vatican II Catholicism. I very much doubt that Luther or Calvin would acknowledge contemporary Lutherans and Presbyterians to be their spiritual descendants.

Get Off Your Atheistic Kick

I have read Instauration for the past 8 or 10 years. During that time it has carried dozens of articles of extreme interest to me. I have enjoyed it immensely because of the intellectual content and the Majority stance of most of those articles and poems. N.B. Forrest, one of my favorite writers, writes like I think. None of his writing is disagreeable to me.

What is disagreeable about Instauration is the repugnant articles by atheists and their railings against Christians, Christianity and the Christian Scriptures. You publish those things because you evidently believe the same way. Consequently the alienation of a large segment of the Majority continues apace.

What you are really saying is that you wish to be free to believe and "push" your atheistic agenda, but want no part of a moral belief system such as Christianity. You are thus outside the "mainstream," but speak as if yours is the Majority belief in this country. You should know that with this intellectual stance you have sided with the most dangerous enemy of Christendom—International Jewry. Every article against Christians and their Scriptures that you print aids and abets the antiwhite cause. At least you could stop alienating that segment of your readership which stands with the Majority. I know that secular humanism seems to rule the day, but thanks to all the persecution by the ACLU, People for the American Way and similar organizations, Christianity is reviving, and once fully aroused it will be a mighty force. It will know, as it always has, how to take care of the Jews.

Religion, whether Islam, Buddhism or Christian, teaches morality to its adherents. That is the crux of the matter. Atheism does not teach morality, civility or anything essential to a high civilization. By removing the supernatural from any significant consideration and relativizing truth and morality, secularism has tried to dethrone God and exalt man. In the process human beings have lost their intrinsic worth and have allowed their values to rest almost exclusively on their functional and economic capabilities.

The decline of the U.S. cannot be stopped. There will probably be a confrontation of some sort in the near future. But that is not going to reverse the general trend. Our once high civilization is dying. Soon it will be completely dead. There is no hope for it.

Whatever future resistance there is to the decline will not come from secular humanist or atheistic sources. It will come from people like Randy Weaver. There are many, and you may be among them, who say that religion has been the cause of all the ills of Western Europe, Russia and the Americas. Not so! It is bad religion that has been the cause of most of the wars and religious schisms of the past 2,000 years.

Racial Roots of American Music

October's Canadian Subscriber may be a bit on the pessimistic side in claiming that keeping one's racial skirts clean in choosing musical entertainment is nigh impossible, minority influences being what they are. While it's true that blacks have, so to speak, heavily polluted the contemporary musical waters, there still exists tons of records and tapes from an earlier time when white tastes ruled. With these gems in his musical library the Instaurationist can look forward to endless hours of wonderful and racially honest listening. Though Jews came to dominate the production, presentation and promotion of popular music as early as WWI, the genre remained infused with the European idiom well into the 1940s. The "great" Jewish composers—Berlin, Gershwin, Youmans, Kern, Rodgers, et al—found they could make box-office fortunes by transforming what they encountered in the concert and music halls of Europe into "American" popular songs. In essence, they made Tin Pan Alley into a warehouse of stolen music. On their annual summer holiday swings throughout Europe in the interwar period, these Broadway titans lifted what they wanted from such musical luminaries as the brothers Strauss, "Waltz King" Robert Stolz and Franz Merry Widow Lehar. They "borrowed" the singing style of immortals like Herbert Ernst Groh and Zarah Leander and the musical orchestrations of the great popular bands of the day—Georges Boulanger, Robert Gaden, Bernhard Ette, Barnabas-von Geczy, Peter Igelhoff and (out at the UFA sound studios) Otto Dobrindt. What the Jews heard in Europe in the summer of 1930, for example, Americans would be humming, in somewhat adulterated form, the following winter. So fear not about the racial roots of America's "Golden Age" of popular music. They go straight back to the Viennese operetta, the Italian and Spanish ballad form and the Argentine tango.

A Brown-Eyed Reader Doth Protest

If Instauration's intention was to create a degree of excitement by publicizing my ethnic origin in the July issue, you have succeeded not admirably but mischievously. The question in my mind and in the mind of any honest and forthright reader of Instauration is: Would you have made the same prejudicial distinction if I were not an ethnic Armenian, but of Dutch, Irish, English, German or French ancestry? Please, don't respond! I know the answer and you know the answer. Let's keep it a secret.

What am I? I am an American of Armenian ancestry! But you and Zip 563 (Oct. 1993) both deny and begrudge me that privilege, and dare to denigrate my ancestors by alluding to prejudicial myths about the physical characteristics of my lineage. To Zip 563, I say I would prefer to be a Jew rather than an American like you who will deny his heritage at the flip of a coin. At least the Jews have given the world Christ and Einstein. What have you, you personally, given to this great country? Now, don't tell me that you belong to the Aryan race. The true Aryans are the Armenians and the pure Persians. Western civilization is no civilization without Greek civilization, upon whom you and your ilk look down. If it were not for the Armenian Byzantine emperors, too many to list, civilization too would have had a premature death like white America will have, if you and your kind keep nailing mythical wedges between white ethnic groups.

Today you and I are in the same boat. Our nation is in deep trouble. Does it really matter that you have blue eyes and I have brown?

The white man, you and I, has lost his guts and become a minority worshiper. I am on your side. Whether you like it or not, we are of the same stock. You can laugh all you want, but you and I and all the sultans of Turkey are not going to get rid of the Armenians.

The Editor Can't Stop Editing

I snarled slightly when I read Zip 983's letter (Oct. 1993) that says the editor's "intentions are honest." Every letter of mine that Instauration has printed has been bowdlerized. What also galls me is you must be doing this to everybody's letters. We are real people out here. When you edit my letters, I feel used and betrayed. I feel angry. I get the feeling that the magazine is just your ego trip. Everyone else doesn't exist, except to supply you with raw material, which you slant. You are like the L.A. Times! I have the feeling that this urge to edit crept in slowly and you gave in to it and now you feel compelled to alter everything just a little bit. I swear, if you bowdlerize the hell out of my Joe Six-pack article in this issue, I may never send you another thing. I just reread it, and I can see crucial sentences that you are going to cut out or twist. It twists my gut.

Deemphasize the Nordic Stuff

I'm writing both to praise and to offer a reasoned argument for my criticisms. First, you should be proud of the caliber of thought and expression in Hermann's piece on Ecology and O'Regan's on Economics (Sept. 1993). That both articles transcended the particularities of their topics and were structured upon overarching principles made them a joy to read. It strikes me that one of these basic principles is Newton's famous "Nature, to be commanded, must be obeyed."

I agree with some readers that you overemphasize the stature of the contributions and characteristics of Nordics. Though my ancestry is 100% Germanic, with an obviously heavy Nordic endowment, the way you harp on Nordicism makes it appear you are unaware that one of the great assets of whites is their genetic diversity. No other race has such diversity, which must account in part for the spirit of individuality and venturesomeness unique to whites.

Don't Douse the Debates

Far too much of Majority literature is either lowbrow tabloid enmity, apocalyptic head-banging kiddie punk or Scripture-chanting fundamentalism that sends parents stampeding into biology classes to demand equal time for Adam and Eve. Unfortunately, as the generally broadminded and astute N.B. Forrest very wisely noted, we can't afford to alienate Christians because their numbers offer us a lot of potential supporters. They are obeying healthy instincts when they try to defend our culture from the state! They're not all dummies either. Like the skinheads and Odinists, the Christians have their own publications!

But there's only one Instauration. It's a breath of fresh air, a very special animal. It's balanced when you take into account the competition. It's a steam-releasing forum for lively discussions among people in different race-conscious niches. Maybe you don't know your Good Book, but maybe you don't care. If you don't believe it is divinely inspired, don't let it bother you. Herds and herds of Christians bleat about being attacked by a handful of marauding Menckenites. Well, mutton to 'em! Let 'em read Chronicles or some other intelligent conservative Christian-focused journal. The point of this tirade, Mister Editor, is: Don't give in to Christian demands to douse the debates. Fire is a source of energy. This sword-clanging makes Instauration thought-provoking, excites new and high-quality readers and points up the diversity of movement, by expanding the range of people who might want to join us.

M.M.

More Appropriate Flag

The Backtalk essay by Zip 110 (Sept. 1993) was exciting. The white patriotic movement desperately needs a unifying banner and the Betsy Ross flag is on target. It stands for the glorious spirit and ideals of those who founded the American Republic and is unsullied by any connection with modern America and the New World Order.

Let's go back to our original flag, the one that Betsy supposedly made and Barbara Fritchie supposedly waved at.

Instantly recognizable and understood, it can be purchased at most any flag store. Our movement is growing, though the growth has been chaotic and disorganized. A unifying symbol is needed. The Betsy Ross flag is it. Hoist it high!

Gaseous Omission

I take issue with Revisionisticus, who, in his otherwise excellent article (Oct. 1993), seems to have neutralized the Revisionist ace in the hole when he writes "under normal conditions and at normal room temperature, it still takes about half an hour for most of the cyanide to leave [the inert carrier of an opened can of Zyklon B]." This statement, if true, would validate much of the eyewitness testimony! Even if we assume normal room temperature as high as 77°F, the statement is false. The "Luftl Report" (Journal of Historical Review, Vol. 12, No.4) demonstrates that after 30 minutes at that temperature no more than 8% of the cyanide would be released, and that it would take another 15½ hours for the remaining 92% to be released! It is this fact—the slow, relatively steady action (with resulting cyanide residue) of Zyklon B which renders all of the eyewitness testimonies obsolete. Revisionisticus seems to have abandoned the coup de grâce!

Murder Boosts Record Sales

Interscope Records, a rap label affiliated with Time Warner, is looking to cash in on the growing notoriety of its new star Calvin Broadus, a.k.a. Snoop Doggy Dogg. Mr. Dogg "emerged from nowhere to stardom" with his appearance last year on the disc, The Chronic, by ebony rapper Dr. Dre.

A 21-year old, 6-foot, 4-inch native of Long Beach (CA), Dogg was selling crack and hanging out with the Crips by his mid-teens. After participating in the MTV Music Awards in California last September, he was charged with murder, along with bodyguard McKinley Lee, and released on $1-million bail. Although his attorney claims that Dogg and his pals were acting in self-defense, that's not the way a spokesman for the Long Beach police saw it. He said the murder was gang-related and that the victim, Phillip Wolde-mariam, was unarmed and shot in the back by McKinley Lee, while Snoop Dogg was at the wheel of his black 1993 Jeep.

Far from making Mr. Dogg damaged goods, the murder charge is predicted to boost sales of his first solo album. Originally scheduled for release in early October, the distributor withheld it to whet the jaded appetites of the buying public. "If he actually gets sent to jail, this record's going to go through the roof," said one record store owner, already salivating over the expectation of fat profits.

"Gangsta Rappers" and Jews

During the first week of November, two more big-name black "gangsta rappers" were arrested: Tupac Shakur, is currently out on bail after being charged with shooting two off-duty cops in Atlanta. In New York, William Drayton, a.k.a. Flavor Flav of the group Public Enemy, was charged with attempted murder for taking a shot at a neighbor.

While an outfit called the National Political Congress of Black Women has launched a country-wide petition drive against "gangsta rap," other melanoids view the violence-provoking music as positive. Shakur's mother, Afeni, a one-time Black Panther, says she is glad the blackmoors "are expressing their anger."

Omar Bradley, the black mayor of Compton (CA), blames Jews for fostering "gangsta rap." At a meeting of the Compton City Council where rapper Erick Wright, a.k.a. Eazy-E, was denied police permission to produce a video in the city, Mayor Bradley openly berated Eazy-E and fellow songwriter Andre Wicker, a.k.a. Gangsta Dre, for betraying fellow Congoids through negative stereotypes. His Honor went on to say:

I won't name the specific racial group that's using you, brother, but they are destroying us and having a lunch and a bar mitzvah at the same time. And we know from history that the minute they get finished making enough money off you, you'll be sitting beside Mike Tyson in prison.

The ADL and Simon Wiesenthal Center wasted no time weighing in with sharp rebukes. ADL flack David Lehrer characterized Bradley's remarks as "anti-Semitic, inflammatory and tragically divisive." Rabbi Marvin Hier, "dean" of the Wiesenthal Center, vented his outrage at "the worst kind of stereotyping, typical of such Nazi leaders as Joseph Goebbels and Julius Streicher."

At a press conference held later, Mayor Bradley remarked,

While I apologize for the use of the word bar mitzvah, it is still true that the majority of these black exploitation films and music videos are controlled by non-African Americans, and are, in fact, controlled by people of the Jewish faith.

It will be interesting to track the political future of this unusually outspoken and verisimilitudinous pol.

Hollow Victory

In 1988, a Michigan anti-abortion coalition of Catholics and Christian Fundamentalists succeeded in limiting taxpayer-funded Medicaid abortions to those in which the mother's life is threatened. Approved by 57 to 43 by the state legislature, proponents said the measure would save taxpayers $6 to $7 million a year.

The limitation took effect on December 12, 1988. The results are now in. Since the abortion funding ban, the birthrate of Detroit's largely black teenage population has soared nearly 30%. Until the ban, the number of babies born in Detroit had declined steadily since 1954.

Anti-abortion fanatics, who often invoke images of Hitler to justify their opposition to programs restricting nonwhite births, witlessly asserted that eliminating free abortions for the poor would discourage them from engaging in sex, which in turn would reduce the number of unwanted pregnancies. What has happened is that after four years, blacks and Hispanics are breeding like blacks and Hispanics usually breed.

The explosion in the birthrate since 1988 has been almost entirely confined to the nonwhite enclaves of Metro Detroit and other large Michigan cities. In white rural areas, small towns and suburbs the abortion ban has had virtually no impact.

Before the ban some 18,000 Medicaid abortions were performed in Michigan annually, at a cost to taxpayers of approximately $6 million. While that money has been saved by the ban, Michigan taxpayers have paid a minimum of $63 million annually in welfare benefits for newborn babies, plus another $137 million for the health and welfare needs of these babies as they grow up. These estimates, included in a study published in Obstetrics & Gynecology (Oct. 1993), are extremely conservative. They do not include the costs of food stamps and education. Nor do they include the costs of law enforcement and jail time.

A King Deposed

Fulton County (greater Atlanta) voters dealt Martin Luther King III an unexpected defeat in his bid for chairman of the county commission. Shortly before the election, the 35-year-old son of the slain civil rights leader was leading in the polls by 18 points over his white opponent, lawyer and former state representative Mitch Skandalakis. But when all the votes were tallied, Skandalakis ended up with 57.4%, compared to King's 42.5%.

Public disclosures that the younger King had underpaid his federal taxes by at least $88,000, at a time when locals were hit with huge property-tax increases that King had voted for as a member of the county commission, hurt him badly. A sore loser, King complained that the number of black voters had been reduced after Fulton County purged the registration rolls in 1989. He also whined that blacks were confused by the color of ballots—green for the contest for Atlanta's mayor, which has now become a "black seat"; white for the county election.

Pan Am's Decline and Fall

The recent dismissal of Thomas A. Dines as head of all-powerful AIPAC for having claimed in print that the perception of Orthodox Jews as smelly and low-class tends to hurt the image of El Al, the Israel airline, set me to thinking about my own harrowing experiences aboard America's state-sponsored air carrier, the now defunct Pan American Airways. Back in its halcyon days Pan Am Clippers literally set the standard for luxurious intercontinental air travel. Only much later did it become the Mister Smelly of American flag carriers by coming up short on cleanliness, courtesy and convenience. Playing bush-league ball in a world of major-league competition throughout the 1970s, Pan Am dug its own grave. The whys of its demise were bound up in the financing of the 1970s—in an image not unlike that of “smelly” Orthodox Jews boarding El Al flights for Tel Aviv.

Finding itself the victim of financial blunders involving high-cost debt capitalization, Pan Am decided to trim its operating costs by hiring equal opportunity marginals as cabin stewards, while attempting to boost its operating revenues by contracting with the Defense Dept. to carry dependents of the U.S. military to their foreign destinations. At one fell swoop, Pan Am began filling its planes with minorityites, both in its crew and its passenger components. For the likes of us traveling out of Washington’s Dulles Airport to Frankfurt’s Rhine-Main, a Pan Am flight of the 1970s became a Noah’s Ark experience of racial polyglotism. Getting there, as the old United Airlines ad used to promise, was no longer half the fun.

Massive Fraud by Chosenites

Hearings before a Senate subcommittee on Investigations have revealed that two dozen Jewish schools in greater New York have bilked the federal education Pell grant program out of millions of dollars.

The investigation determined that Jewish educational institutions, many of them operated by Hasidic Jews, listed their tuition rates artificially high so that students could qualify for greater amounts of aid. Some students were paid stipends merely to attend classes. Pell grant money was disbursed to “pupils” who were no longer enrolled. “Brokers” were hired to provide schools with “students” eligible for aid. Documents required for federal funding were forged and falsified.

Senator Sam Nunn questioned whether federal money could be spent on purely religious education, such as that offered at non-vocational Jewish schools.

Bank and school records disclosed large sums transferred to Orthodox Jewish institutes and congregations, which are ineligible to receive federal aid. Apparently some of the money was used for mortgage payments on Brooklyn buildings. Hundreds of thousands of dollars were invested in mutual funds.

Moshe Zev Weisberg, president of a Yeshiva organization, accused the Senate committee of “witch-hunting.” Meanwhile, student grant broker Jacob Ginzburg has fled the country. Two rabbis, Simche Waldman and Michael Meisels, took the Fifth. Other Jewish religious leaders admonished students not to cooperate with Senate investigators. One who did, Sara Hoffman, admitted that in one year alone she had received four Pell grants to attend schools in the New York area.

Subcommittee counsel Alan Edelman admitted the senators had never encountered such resistance to their questions and subpoenas as they had during the Pell grant probe. Staff investigator David Buckley disclosed that many of the “students” who had obtained the grants were aged Jewish immigrants recently arrived from the former Soviet Union.

Refugee Quota Questioned

Seymour Reich, president of the American Zionist Movement, has angered a number of fellow Chosenites by publicly questioning whether the U.S. should continue to set aside a third of its annual refugee quota for Russian Jews. In light of Yeltsin’s victory over Russian hardliners, Reich affirmed in somewhat limping English, “The Jews of Russia can no longer claim to be victims of government persecution who automatically deserve the status of refugees for entry into the U.S.” Besides, he went on, if they still want to leave, they can always go to Israel.

Secretary of State Warren Christopher cautiously raised this issue last September when, during a Senate hearing on immigration and refugee affairs, he took note of the need to “bring the Soviet refugee admissions program into conformity with emerging realities in the former Soviet Union.”

In recent years, an average of 40,000 Jewish immigrants have been coming to the U.S. annually. “Refugee resettlement” is a big business. The Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society, Council of Jewish Federations and the National Council on Soviet Jewry are among the organizations that would be hurt financially were “refujew” admissions reduced.

Gary Rubin, outgoing director of national affairs for the American Jewish Committee, boasted that Chosenites have been instrumental in manipulating U.S. refugee policy:

Jewish support has been a vital part of a coalition that has succeeded in bringing Asian and African and other [non-white] refugees to the United States. Were the Jewish slice to drop out, there would be a weakening of the overall coalition.

In 1993, the U.S. admitted approximately 120,000 people officially designated as “refugees.” (A refugee is someone overseas who petitions for permission to move to the U.S., asserting that his life would be in danger if he returned to or continued to live in his homeland.) Pending are an undisclosed number of “asylum” cases. (An asylee is someone who enters the U.S. and then claims that he fears returning to his homeland.) Some 900,000 other aliens were legally admitted in 1992, as well as an undetermined number of illegals. Guestimates of the latter range from 1 to 4 million.

Big Brother Is Getting Bigger

Though not many people know it, the FBI has the mission of checking up on federal workers to see if they have ever engaged in discrimination of any kind, not just by act or deed but by words, even private comments. In one recent clearance review of a congressional staffer, the FBI agent asked his associates and friends if he had ever cracked racial jokes.

“Insensitivity” has now become a disqualifying factor for government jobs. What next? Will there be a purge of all federal workers who, since they first learned to talk, ever uttered a word against nonwhites, females and homosexuals? Maybe after being removed from their jobs hundreds of thousands of these “bigots” will be moved to a concentration camp for “sensitivity training.” Those who manage to graduate will probably be given a muzzle instead of a diploma.

Desanctifying Al

Two of the three most celebrated Jews of modern times, Freud and Marx, have now gone by the board. Freud, once all the Jewish-inspired hype had worn off, turned out to be little more than a witch doctor obsessed with interpreting dreams and penetrating the sexual fantasies of semi-hysterical bourgeois females. Marx’s Communism, based more on racial envy than economics, lasted only as long as Lenin and Stalin were able to kill off their critics.

This leaves Albert Einstein as the sole remaining divinity of the once holy tribal trinity. Although a few half-hearted attempts have been made from time to time to disprove Einstein’s physics, and a few articles have appeared showing what a heel he was, all was quickly forgotten. It was and still is totally out of line to criticize the 20th century’s greatest Jew, if not the greatest Jew of all time. Strangely enough, the glib-lib British journal, Economist, never known to write a bad word about Jews, came up with a surprisingly favorable review (Sept. 13, 1993) of a new iconoclastic biography, The Private Lives of Albert Einstein by Roger Highfield and Paul Carter, that cast a few stinging barbs at the great brain.

Before Einstein was married to his first wife, a Gentile, she bore him an illegitimate daughter who was quickly put up for adoption. Their second child, a son born after their marriage, was mentally disturbed and spent most of his life washing flower pots in a Swiss psychiatric home, which his father never visited.

Einstein, who had a fierce temper and arrogance bordering on hubris, once called his first wife, a "woman... of uncommon ugliness." The Economist wondered how such a philandering, wife-beating, monomaniacal rotter could be metamorphosed by the media into a "genial, unworldly philosopher king." If the Economist writer would like to shoot this question at Instauration, we'd be happy to provide an answer.

Selective Quoter

One of the great classic reference books of the English language, Bartlett's Familiar Quotations, which John Bartlett, a British scholar, first published in 1856, is now available in a new (16th) edition. Like so much of our cultural heritage, Bartlett's has fallen into the hands of people who move in after the work has been done and bank 100 to 1,000 times the money made by the man who started the enterprise.

The editor of the latest edition of Bartlett's is Justin Kaplan, a Jewish literary light whose habitat is Zoo City. As expected, Kaplan has "sanitized" this treasure trove of Western wisdom by eliminating quotes from people he dislikes and favoring disproportionately the words of those who share his racial and liberal lubrications. For a taste of Kaplan's political ideology, we refer to one of his own quotes, "I'm not going to disguise the fact that I despise Ronald Reagan."

In keeping with this line of thought, Kaplan has allowed only three Reagan quotes to be included in the latest Bartlett's, all more or less on the demeaning side. Ronnie's famous 1987 appeal to the former Soviet chief, "Mr. Gorbachev, tear down this Wall," is nowhere to be found. Alexander Solzhenitsyn has also been slighted. But Kaplan's version of Bartlett's did make room for 11 dim insights from the eggheaded Harvard professor, John K. Galbraith.

The Municipal Future

One interesting result of the recent elections is the replacement of so many black and Hispanic mayors by whites—in New York, Los Angeles, Philadelphia and elsewhere. Out of desperation and the worsening plight of America's largest metropolises, urban whites are forming a voting bloc almost as solid as that of blacks.

One reason for the political success of blacks in the big cities has been the split in the white vote, particularly the support of Jews and their massive media and financial clout for nonwhite candidates.

Dinkins, a done dealer

As crime reaches warlike proportions, the Little Jew, who can't escape the muggings and killing as easily as the Big Jew can, becomes more conservative, less liberal and votes Republican. In New York City, the Jewish establishment, led by the N.Y. Times, was preponderantly for Dinkins, who received lavish funding from key leaders of the United Jewish Appeal Federation, the Jewish Community Relations Council, and American Jewish Congress. The incumbent mayor's contributor list was littered with the names of such powerhouse Chosenites as Shorestein, Tishman, Bronfman and Tisch.

Nevertheless, thanks to a lot of votes from Little Jews, Rudolph Giuliani, the Italian-American Republican, squeaked through.

One commentator observed that the election "sharpened the distinction between Jews who can afford to be liberal and Jews who can't afford it."

In the long run, even if all Jews vote white, including the Big Jews who have always been dedicated to the shafting of "whitey," nonwhites are bound to come out ahead in the voting booth. White flight (and white fright), the arrival of ever more legal and illegal nonwhite immigrants, and the disproportionate nonwhite birthrate are certain to turn the big cities into permanent nonwhite fiefs.

When this happens, the Big and Little Jews will be gone—the latter to the suburbs and beyond, the former to safer havens abroad. A few white ethnics will be left to hold the fort and pick up the pieces. But by then King Mob will reign supreme.

NAFTA Not Nifty

There are too many unknowns in NAFTA for anyone to accurately predict the outcome. Economics, known as the dismal science, is really the abysmal science, which is the same as saying it is no science at all. If too many jobs go south and too many Hispanics keep influxing north, the pro-NAFTA congressmen will pay a heavy price at the polls come November. If NAFTA gives a boost to a lackadaisical economy on both sides of the border, Clinton can preen and boast, and stand a better chance for a second term.

Instauration is against NAFTA for reasons seldom discussed in all the debates, editorializing and pro and con oratory. Trade is a bridge; the more trade, the bigger and wider the bridge. Cultural and racial dilution follows trade. Since Instauration believes in separating races and cultures, it obviously doesn't believe in fusing them. We have no desire to Americanize Mexicans or anyone else, and we ourselves don't want to be Hispanicized. If any Americanization is called for, we want to Americanize ourselves, not others.

Unfortunately, no country in this age of globalization can be economically self-sufficient, but we should make a stab at it. We want ethnostates, not multicultural and multiracial states. We are not as interested in bottom lines and financial statements as we are in racial and cultural independence. If we lose a few bucks by putting a low priority on international trade, so be it. Better to lose dollars than lose genes.

Let's never forget that cultural protection flows from economic protection.

Black Censors at Work

The more blacks gain in influence and numbers, the more they keep sniping at Western culture. The latest example of this heavy handed censorship is the removal of Birth of a Nation from a list of 54 early motion pictures assembled by the Library of Congress for a year-long festival commemorating one hundred years of cinema.

D.W. Griffith's epic film was probably the most important of the 54 films, because of his innovative use of the camera, particularly in battle scenes. That Birth of a Nation focused on the Ku Klux Klan's efforts to save the South from a Negro takeover after the Civil War should have nothing to do with the film's importance in the history of motion pictures.

Nevertheless at the command of William Gibson, chairman of the national board of the NAACP, Pat Loughney, the truckler who heads the Library of Congress film division, caved in and ordered the reel to be put back in its can.

If the NAACP had demanded that the greatest of all silent films be burned, would Loughney have also obliged?

Zionist High Riders

Because American Jews are riding high these days, who would think they'd need any help from non-Jews? Willy-nilly, they are getting it by the bucketful. One organization, the Florida Christian Task Force Against Anti-Semitism, has published a vituperative pamphlet: "BIG-OTS BEWARE. Any act of hate against Jews will be considered an act of hate against Christians." Nothing was said about the Jewish bigots who ceaselessly rant, albeit more subtly, against Christianity. It becomes more evident every day that where Jews are concerned, turnabout is not fair play.

A case in point is the Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington which proudly presents a 12-minute film openly attacking Catholics for a variety of sins, including anti-Semitism. Only a few protesting voices have been raised against the propaganda flick that continues to be shown for all to see and swallow.

What happens to those who try to defend their Protestant or Catholic religion when public opinion is in the pocket of non-Christians? If the protestor protests too much, he is likely to go down in the mountainous file of the ADL as an active or putative anti-Semite, a notation that will do very little to advance his career.

Clinton's Confederate Grandpa

Clinton's great-great-grandfather, William Blythe, was one of thousands of Confederate soldiers captured during the Civil War and transported to Camp Morton, a P.O.W. holding area near Indianapolis. The prisoners were terribly ill-treated. In the winter of 1863-64 thousands died from diarrhea, malnutrition and exposure to sub-zero weather.

All but 1,616 of the Confederate dead were eventually recovered by family members. William Blythe and 24 blacks were among those whose bodies were not recovered. They were buried in a common grave in a local cemetery. From 1931 to 1933 the remains of the 1,616 were disinterred, placed in 25 wooden boxes and reburied at Crown Hill Cemetery in Indianapolis. On October 3, a dedication ceremony was held at a monument erected at the grave site. Soil from the 16 home states of the Confederate dead was sprinkled around the monument's base.

President Clinton, known as "Bubba" to many of his Southern friends, did not attend the ceremony.

Black Frat Out

The University of Maryland has blackballed the Negro fraternity Omega Psi Phi for five years in the wake of charges that 24 frat brothers had brutally hazed pledges. If the frat wants to be reinstated in 1998, it must first establish procedures to monitor members' behavior and grades. Jesse Jackson and Benjamin Hooks are among Omega Psi Phi's alumni.

The U. of Maryland chapter was banned following a criminal investigation of the fraternity that began last April. Campus police reported that seven pledges were kicked, punched, spat upon, burnt with hot wax and beaten with wooden paddles, belts, whips and brushes. Five pledges received serious injuries—a broken ankle, a ruptured spleen, a collapsed lung, a concussion and a ruptured eardrum. Seven other pledges were forced to eat vomit, drink from toilets and exercise to the point of exhaustion, not to mention doing the homework and buying the meals for the bros.

A hearing for two dozen frat members is scheduled in a Maryland Circuit Court. Fifteen who allegedly were involved in the hazing also face expulsion from the school. Police said others may be charged with perjury for denying any involvement with the fraternity's criminal acts.

It might be noted that Negroes, fraternity members or not, are playing a pretty strong-arm game at the U. of Maryland. A month after Omega Psi Phi's suspension, someone stole and trashed half of the 20,000 copies of the Diamondback, the student newspaper, which had been accused of racism for putting out a supplement that featured seven models, only one of whom was black. The thievery was probably inspired by events at the University of Pennsylvania where 14,000 copies of the campus newspaper disappeared and at Johns Hopkins where 1,400 copies of the student publication were stolen.

Did Blacks Write Dixie?

The attack on the white South's musical heritage never seems to stop. Two of the Chosen, Howard and Judith Sacks, have authored a book alleging that Dixie, often considered the South's national anthem, was not composed by Dan Emmett, a white entertainer in the 1850s, but by the Snowdens, a family of black musicians, who lived in Emmett's hometown in Mt. Vernon (OH). The Sacks insinuate that Emmett stole the song from his black neighbors.

As for the line, "I wish I was in the land of cotton," the Jewish couple have a ready, ad hoc explanation. They claim that since very few blacks lived in the area, there was a dearth of marital partners for a family as fecund as the Snowdens, who wished they were in the South because only there could they find enough mates for their numerous progeny.

"Help" Cries D.C.

A fire storm of political resentment cascaded down upon the pathetic, diminutive figure of D.C.'s Mayor Kelly—the Woman Completely Out of Her Element—for having sought Presidential permission to call out the National Guard to put a damper on the city's crime orgy. Illustrating the futility of dealing seriously with blacks as individuals or as a political entity, most blacks adjudged the Mayor's action as a slander on the city's "good name."

"Good name?" The tourism industry in Washington has dried up like a prune. Travelers skirt the city's outer reaches as though the center had been visited by a plague. Within the walls of an insane asylum any reference to D.C.'s "good name" would warrant a straitjacket. But the city hasn't got 500,000 straitjackets, so the racial loonies run loose.

At least 100,000 whites trapped within the city's political confines sweat out the nuttiness by doing the only thing possible: uttering inane liberal thoughts in public and muttering racial epithets in private. Mayor Kelly has become the ultimate, tragic example of a black promoted from the meaningless prominence of an "equal opportunity" sinecure with a local utility company to substantive responsibility. Her self-destruction is complete. Now bitter, she calls her racial cohorts "ungrateful."

Up to now, Kelly's cry for the National Guard has been turned down by Clinton. Perhaps he realizes that the D.C. Guard is largely composed of the same race against which Mayor Kelly wants to use it.

News Mags' Arrogance

Because it has a lot of "fact checkers," overpaid writers and splashy art directors, readers are led to believe that Time magazine is to be trusted. "If it's in Time, it must be true." So speaks—and so errs—the reading public's subconscious.

Well, Mr. and Mrs. Time Reader, try this on for size. In its feature article on politics (Oct. 11, 1993), the mag stated that Spotlight was affiliated with Lyndon LaRouche, the political chameleon now in jail for various financial sins. Not even remotely true! Spotlight has never had any connection whatsoever with LaRouche. Time then went on to say that Spotlight, which it called a "newsletter" (it's a weekly newspaper), had described Secretary of Commerce Ron Brown as "Clinton's little nigger homeboy." Never in its history has Spotlight resorted to such language.

Time snidely and briefly apologized for the egregious error in its November 1 issue, making it appear it was just a slip of the word processor. Trouble was, it wasn't a slip. It was the preordained product of a liberal mind-set. Time, like Caesar's wife, is above reproach. It knows it can say anything it likes about right-wing publications because, even if it is all a tissue of lies, its readers will believe a kernel of truth lurks somewhere in the story.

Time was a highly readable publication back in the 1920s and 30s when under the aegis of Henry Luce and Briton Hadden it spoke to and for the American Majority. Today, under the aegis of Gerald Levin, Jewish CEO of Time Warner, it speaks for everyone but the Majority, an editorial slant which gives the ragmag a license to print brazen untruths about the racial kin of its founders.

Perhaps because its boss, Katharine Graham, is only half-Jewish, Newsweek should be only half as bad as Time. It's more than half. Newsweek undistinguished itself by running an entire 64-page section (Oct./Nov. 1993) saluting basketball star Michael Jordan on his announced retirement. If God himself came down from the clouds and announced his retirement from heaven, Newsweek would think twice about giving him a special section, let alone 64 pages! While blacks in the inner cities are chipping off the edges of our parlous civilization, Newsweek would never devote one-tenth the amount of smooching given Jordan to a white sports figure or for that matter to any living white.

It almost appears as if Time and Newsweek and the rest of the big-time media have come down with an anti-white virus. Where and when will this sickness end? In a regression to the Pleistocene? Or the discovery of a cure that will persuade Majority mediocrats, the few who still remain, to stop thinking about blacks, yellows, Hispanics and Jews, and start thinking about us?

Geese and Ganders

Recently I received a flier for a new children's book entitled Father Gander which, the blurb assured me, will have a much stronger appeal to children than Mother Goose. Author Douglas Larche condemns one of Northern European literature's finest creations, for being riddled with "violence, sexism and discrimination." Larche then proceeds to ridicule the story for featuring children whose "hair is curly and golden" and for not giving equal time to women. He stresses that ol' Ma goose failed to provide her small readers with "equality, love, responsibility, an appreciation of life and all living things." Just the kind of wordy tripe you'd expect from a blathering liberal ideologue.

The flier also provides an example of the book's illustrations "by Carolyn" who, judging from her artwork, must be about ten years old. Instead of exquisite drawings by such masters as Blanche Fisher Wright, Arthur Rackham, L. Leslie Brooke or Kate Greenaway depicting British scenes and period costumes, we're burdened with garish, childish scrawls captioned with cheap doggerel:

Peter, Peter, pumpkin eater, had a wife and wished to keep her.
Treated her with fair respect, she stayed with him and hugged his neck.

The flier also informed us that "the colored illustrations, which are full of detail, are also full of people of many races and even people in wheelchairs." What the author seems to have forgotten—like any veteran race-mixer—is that Mother Goose was written by Northern Europeans for Northern European children, not for kiddies in Africa, Asia and Latin America. My guess is that very few of these nonwhites and off-whites read Mother Goose to their children anyway. Why should they? It's not their literary heritage. How on earth can they possibly cotton to scenes of rural England and Wales, feathered Robin Hood caps and 19th-century pinafores? How can the homogeneous beauty of old Britain possibly be enhanced by contaminating these memorable pages with Third World characters and scenes?

It seems that Mr. Larche spotted a chance to make a fast (race-mixing) buck, and a left-leaning publisher agreed.

Ignoble Nobelists

The degree to which middlebrow readers of popular journals have been brainwashed is made evident in a letter to Time (Oct. 4, 1993), written by a man from Frisco: "We live in interesting times. Just imagine—the former international terrorist Yasser Arafat may soon be a co-recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize." It apparently eluded the epistoler that Menahem Begin, who was responsible for the massacre of Brits in the King David Hotel and of Arab villagers at Deir Yassin, has already received the Nobel Peace Prize. So has the compulsive prevaricator Elie Wiesel. Why has General Sharon, who presided over the massacre of Palestinians in Lebanon, been overlooked? Was it because the press "blood-libeled" him by reporting the facts? So confused are the Scandinavians in their dealings with Jews that I fully expect the pudgy terrorist will get his Nobel Peace Prize in due course.

Wiley Brooks, a denizen of Seattle, is a self-nominated apostle of Breatharianism, an exotic dietetic or non-dietetic regime that teaches wind, air and sunlight are all a person needs in the way of nourishment. Brooks eschews water, food and sleep, the last named quite a sacrifice for a Negro. Brooks contradicts himself by occasionally munching a crumb or so of junk food, which he washes down with a sip of orange juice. For a two-day seminar ($150 up front), Brooks promises to turn most anyone into a Breatharian.

Waspishly Yours

Black writer Toni Morrison was awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature in October. Was ever an accolade more contingent upon the political correctness of the recipient of the award? Since Morrison's work is a rodomontade of reverse discrimination, I suppose it's okay. Anything which encourages racial pride and identity should be encouraged (unless it happens to be Caucasian pride and racial identity).

I remember a lecture given by Negro Ralph Ellison some years ago in which he expressed his opposition to black studies programs on the grounds that they "ghettoized" black literature. He then stunned his audience by contending that there really wasn't "all that much of it" worth "programmizing" anyway. No matter how much one may pity the poet manqué, the fact is that art is an uncompromising taskmaster. Maybe only time will tell. Art is long and life is short, as Seneca once said. So rather than generalize from my own bias based on the two novels of Morrison which I've read, let me make this observation. Black novelist Toni Morrison won the Nobel Prize for Literature, but Leo Tolstoy did not. Nor did Mark Twain—understandably, of course, since "Nigger Jim" figures so prominently as a hero of civility and common sense in Huckleberry Finn. Nor did Theodore Dreiser, who slapped his Jewish publisher's face in public because the author of An American Tragedy was convinced he was being cheated of his royalties. Nor did Joseph Conrad, author of Nigger of the Narcissus merit the award, in the judgment of the Swedish Academy trustees of the noble fortune based on the invention, use and promotion of dynamite. (Does the Swedish Academy beat the drums for "pacifism" because of a guilty conscience inherited from its founder?) Nor did H.G. Wells qualify for the award; nor did Somerset Maugham, D.H. Lawrence, Henrik Ibsen or Benedetto Croce, the last named one of the 20th century's greatest critics and philosophers. Robert Graves and Graham Greene never received it. But a literary giant like Toni Morrison did. Jean-Paul Sartre was awarded the prize in 1964, but then refused to accept either the money or the prize on the grounds it was "too political." I really cannot accept Sartre's criticism, however; otherwise author Ralph Ellison would have won the prize years ago. True, his lofty literary reputation is based largely on one novel, Invisible Man—a febrile, kindergarten derivation of Dostoyevsky. But does it matter? Does literary merit really matter, if your heart (if not your art) is in the right place? Maybe Ellison should not have been so critical of black studies programs, even if honesty is the best policy. Hilaire Belloc, Oswald Spengler, Arnold Toynbee, Ezra Pound and H.L. Mencken (all suspected or exposed anti-Semites) were beyond consideration for the prize, of course, But if Menaphlegm Begin and Henry (Strangelove) Kissinger could be awarded a Nobel Peace Prize, why not Ice-T and Sistah Souljah?

How can any Caucasian blame Michael Jackson for using surgical technology in trying to climb the evolutionary ladder? Why should the white man forget the bon mot of Oscar Wilde that imitation is the sincerest form of flattery? Or was it Mark Twain who said that imitation was the involuntary homage of the low? Blacks see Jackson as a race traitor, but that's the point, precisely put.

Speaking of points of view, remember the movie, The Young Lions, Jewish author Irwin Shaw's homage to Hebrew heroism, a pot-boiler brewed in the stews of the Nuremberg trials? It's a story that casts homosexual WASP Montgomery Clift as a wispy Jew who whips half the members of his red-neck platoon and finds nirvana for his raw nerves by being accepted by all those crackers who never cracked a book?

But that's not what I'm driving at. What I'm driving at is Swedish actress Mai Britt. If you remember nothing else of that AIPAC film propaganda called The Young Lions, you'd have had to remember her. She's unforgettable, unless Hollywood has bleached all of your red blood cells with images of Barbra Streisand and Roseanne Barr—both of whom are more than enough to make anyone blanch. They are the antitheses of Mai Britt, who might have resurrected Frankenstein without science and kept even a half-breed like Anthony Quinn fully faithful. Except that Britt married the mangiest member of the ratpack, the one-eyed jack called Sammy Davis Jr. One understands why a talented entertainer would want to climb over Mai Britt to step up the evolutionary ladder, but why would she want to step down? Eventually his alleged infidelities drove her to the divorce court and out of Hollywood. I would attribute Mai's behavior to nostalgie de la boue, i.e., an ineluctable longing to wallow in the mud. Mai's beauty was enough to tighten the stomach of any teenager; her marital behavior was enough to disgust all but the most libertine.

V.S. STINGER

There is something so disgustingly intestinal about the real or imaginary affair of Ted Danson and Whoopi Goldberg that it pains me to write a word about it. It pains me even more to waste my word processor's time on the minstrel show they put on at that Friars Club Roast. So all I will do is remark that Montel Williams, the Negro whose taste was so offended he left the dais in a huff and later resigned from the club, presides over one of the dirtiest talk shows on TV. On a recent airing he happily chit-chatted with a woman who stated that before she gets out of bed every morning she runs porn videotapes on her VCR.

Dateline NBC, one of the many new TV "magazine shows," devoted a segment on October 26 to Roy Bullock, the portly, porky pansy who snitches on Majority activists and assorted Muslim groups in return for a weekly check from the ADL. In his somewhat snotty answers to questions thrown at him by a Dateline NBC reporter, Bullock made out as if his snooping deserved a Presidential Citation.

Amid old file clips of Klansmen, ADL spymasters were given ample time to portray themselves as champions of human rights. Nevertheless, the message came through loud and clear, the message that Instaurationists have known since Day One, namely that the ADL is a huge espionage net for world Jewry and will stop at nothing to muzzle any attempt to get the Jewish question out in the open.

The ADL is a tax-exempt organization, which means that wealthy Jews (what other kind are there?) can deduct their lavish contributions and donations. If there was any justice in this land—and there is precious little—the ADL ought to lose this perk toot sweet. To deduct from your tax returns money given to a spy agency, an anti-American spy agency at that, is an outrageous perversion of IRS regulations.

The 1993 fall television season boasts 16 talk shows, or did when it started. The three newest feature a black female ex-college professor (The Bertice Berry Show), a black male ex-Ohio legislator (Les Brown Show) and a white female described by co-producer Gail Sternberg as a "touch off center" (Ricki Lake Show). On the subject of talk shows, a recent poll of 500 tube addicts dubbed Negro clown Arsenio Hall the "sexiest" late-night spieler.

From Zip 224. I heard an interview with Robert Novak in which he said his grandfather had been a Jewish officer in the Czar's army. The curmudgeonly permanent guest on the Capital Gang also revealed his mother wanted him to be a rabbi. All this info seems to fit well with what I had read a few years ago—that Novak admitted to having been brought up in a Jewish family and had once thought about converting to Catholicism.

Novak is one of the few media figures who is not afraid to take on Israel and criticize it for all the horrors it has inflicted on the land that was once Palestine. At the same time, he proclaims super-scammer Michael Milken is one of his heroes. In other words, Novak distinguishes between Israel Firsters and wheeling-dealing Jews in particular. Being Jewish, Novak knows he can't be attacked as an anti-Semite, which gives him an advantage not enjoyed by non-Jewish critics of Israel.

On a recent episode of CNN's Crossfire, the voice of persnicketyness stated that blacks are responsible for most crime. Rep. Charles Schumer (D-NY), upholding the Chosen party line, reacted with dismay and pretended that crime had nothing to do with race. Despite the weaving and dodging of Schumer and his fellow pols, the reality of black criminality is becoming so overwhelming that the taboo against calling a spade a spade is slowly, very slowly, eroding.

From Zip 800. The body language of liberaloid Phil Donahue is nauseating. Whenever someone in the studio audience poses a question or vents an opinion that Phil considers out of line, he proceeds to envelop the person with a "hug," all the while baring his teeth in a Cheshire Cat smile. "Oh, come on, you don't mean that," Phil will smirk. The hug telegraphs that he really wants to crush the offender; his bared teeth send the message that he wants to chew him or her up. A typical liberal response.

From Zip 070. Xuxa is the biggest television star in Latin America. The blue-eyed blonde from Brazil, who specializes in programs for children, is busy launching a syndicated show for tots in the U.S. Notwithstanding Xuxa's striking Nordicism, she's a poison pill for white kids. She got her start in showbiz by ministering to the sexual requirements of Pelé, the coal-black Brazilian soccer player.

From Zip. 345. I almost lost my supper (Sept. 15) when I tuned into Rush Limbaugh. For a moment I thought I was viewing an AIPAC commercial. Old Rush had a big map of Israel displayed on the wall and was informing his worshipful audience with the help of a pointer that the reason why poor li'l Israel couldn't give up the West Bank was 'cause "Israel would then only be nine miles wide." Heck, Ariel Sharon took him up on a hill in the Occupied Territories and Rush could see the Sea! O'migosh!

Rush treated us to some still shots: Fatso riding on an Israeli tank; Fatso being wine and dined by Sharon, the Butcher of Beirut; Fatso praying at the Wailing Wall. That was it! I hit the off-button so hard that I almost pushed it through the remote control. Ol' Rush is just another false prophet, another placebo to channel off Majority rage. Maybe Perot isn't all that bad, if Rush hates him so much!

Notes from the Sceptred Isle—John Nobull

Supporters of Instauration come from every social group in English-speaking countries and from many other countries as well. What they all have in common is a realisation that the white race is on the rocks, and that those of us who intend to survive must help one another. We are either an extended breeding group or we are nothing.

My concern today is with our people who are objectively associated with the very system that is devoted to our destruction. What should they be doing? Openly defying the system? All honour to those who do, provided they go down with their colours flying. But most of us, sad to say, will carry on, hoping that we can continue to draw our salaries as long as possible. It is not a glorious choice, but a natural and common one.

Our enemies know this and fervently hope that we shall continue, at every level, to provide honest props for their corrupt system which, as long as we cooperate with it, will continue to attract floods of parasitic aliens to prey upon us unmercifully.

But what if we decline to cooperate? By that I don't mean that we should defy city hall openly. What I am proposing is a nonviolent guerrilla campaign that may not speak its name but is all the more effective for its silence.

Judges should hand down sentences which reflect the gravity of the crime. They should not impose vicious penalties for token defiance by whites and slaps on the wrist to nonwhites for murder and armed robbery. To be sure, such judges are unlikely to be promoted beyond their present position, but in many English-speaking countries they have a job for life, provided they do nothing illegal. Similarly the duty of a doctor is to practise eugenics, even if this is only done negatively. Abortion should be made freely available to women likely to produce offspring dependent on the public. Lawyers should specialise in helping whites for a change, getting them legal aid where possible and lighter sentences for thought crimes. Policemen should take a siesta when members of one minority are being attacked by members of another. Teachers at every level should apply objective standards to their pupils, quietly informing right-wing publications about any scandals they come across.

Our duty is first and foremost to our own people, not to the system which pays us. Tax officials should try to ensure where possible that the burden of tax falls least heavily on the producer, most heavily on the parasite. Even a small change in emphasis can make a very big difference over time. At the lower levels, among secretaries and office staff and up through middle management, all sorts of opportunities occur to sabotage the system anonymously. They should be seized with both hands.

Remember, my friends, the cards are stacked against you, whether you resist or not. So why not resist? Of course, a few of us may be ferreted out and convicted for politically incorrect activities. In that event we might as well fight. Our enemies will be relentless. Their only concern will be to ruin and humiliate us as an example to others. But if we fight for our rights, we will come off better than if we crawl. It is like rape. If a woman gives in passively, she may end up being murdered. Her passivity may feed the rapist's power fantasy. If a woman resists—perhaps by going into a fit—she spoils it for him. She may get hurt, but her chances of remaining alive or even unraped are much greater.

Above all, we should boycott the liberals in our own ranks, both socially and in every other way. We must get the message across that we don't like them as people. No need to explain why. They'll catch on soon enough. We must also make sure to leave no money or property even to our offspring if they miscegenate. If we do all this on a big enough scale, a sea change will come over the whole of society. Take my word for it.

Oswald Mosley was of the opinion that, although the discoverers and conquerors of the Empire were essentially European (and called themselves by that name), the emigrants from Britain who peopled those lands were mostly anti-European, Bible-inspired and anti-aesthetic. This explains why the overseas territories, including the United States, despite their huge areas, have produced so little art and music worthy of the name. England, he felt, could be saved, because it still nourished an anti-moralistic, pro-aesthetic, traditionalist ethos.

A great statement of hostility to the moralism of Bible Protestantism is Samuel Butler's 1875 poem about the statue of the Discobolus in Montreal, which then had a strong Anglo-Saxon element. The Discobolus, a copy of the famous statue of a Greek discus thrower, was considered indecent and was accordingly removed from the public gaze.

*Stowed away in a Montreal lumber room,
The Discobolus standeth and turneth his face to the wall;
Dusty, cobweb-covered, maimed and set at naught,
Beauty crieth in an attic and no man regardeth.
O God! O Montreal!*

Canada. One aspect of NAFTA that the NAFTAists don't like to mention is the migration north of black pimps from Washington state to British Columbia. Already these "free traders" have corrupted some high-school girls in and around Vancouver, turned them into drug addicts, and sent them out in the streets. If they don't return with enough money for their black slavemasters, they are severely beaten.

The recent Canadian election resulted in a near wipeout of the Progressive Conservative Party (good), a big win for the Liberal Party (bad) and the emergence of the Reform Party, which won 52 out of the 295 seats in Parliament. The Reform Party wants to cut immigration and reduce the size of the huge government bureaucracy. Some members actually wish to separate Western Canada from the rest of the country and join American states in the Pacific Northwest in carving out an independent nation to be called Cascadia.

There are some 60,000-70,000 Somalis in Canada. Many apply for various types of welfare handouts under several different names. Part of the illegally obtained loot is then transmitted to one or more warlords in Somalia.

Britain. Nigerians here are up to the same tricks that Somalis are pulling off in Canada. They are collecting millions of pounds a year in fraudulent benefits and welfare scams. There are even schools in London and Lagos, where "students" are taught how to forge applications for government largesse.

A horrible crime of the type Brits thought could only be committed in the U.S. occurred last February in Liverpool. Two youngsters, both 11, having abducted a two-year-old toddler who had strayed from his mother at a mall, beat him to death with an iron bar and bricks. British law forbade identifying the killers, but the press reports contained some hints: "The murdered boy was blond with blue eyes and his murderers were pudgy with curly dark hair."

When a genuine disestablishmentarian wins an election in England, as Derek Beackon of the British National Party did when he won a seat on the Tower Hamlets Council, the powers that be call out the goons. In this instance the mob's object was to trash the BNP bookshop in Welling, Kent. The demonstration quickly developed into one of the biggest riots England had seen in years—31 arrests and 75 injured (including 19 police).

In September, British Home Secretary (read Minister of the Interior) Michael Howard in a speech at a B'nai B'rith banquet in London displeased the audience mightily when he announced the government did not intend to ban the British National Party and make its supporters "martyrs in the cause of free speech."

From a British subscriber. Bernie Grant, a black MP, reported that many colored folk in Britain might eagerly return to their "countries of origin" if they received traveling money from the British government. He said he had received over 100 requests from nonwhites "asking me to negotiate with the government for them to go home."

Predictably the media and liberals and conservatives of all colors decried Grant's remarks, dubbing them "the politics of despair" and charging that his suggestion played directly into the hands of racists. Grant replied he was only "responding to reality."

France. Marie Antoinette, one of the most maligned ladies in history, is being rehabilitated 200 years after her beheading. Nearly every performance of the play, My Name is Marie Antoinette, that opened in Paris in October was sold out. The drama hotly denies that the Queen was a lesbian, wore 160 dresses a year, committed incest with her son or participated in obscene orgies. The playwright refused to put in her mouth the cynical aphorism, "Let them eat cake," that she supposedly uttered when millions of French were without bread. The martyred queen died in the sordid period of French history known as the Reign of Terror when 40,000 French were executed in a period of less than a year—a humongous death toll, but only a fraction of the number killed in the murderous rampages of Lenin, Stalin and Chairman Mao.

After almost half a century of intense legal wrangling, Vichyite Paul Touvier will be brought to trial. An appeals court finally ordered him to be tried for failing to save six Jewish hostages from the Germans who had demanded 100 hostages in reprisal for the assassination of Philippe Henriot, a minister in the Pétain government. Touvier, now in his 80s, is suffering from terminal cancer. French Jews who, like most of their tribe, have a dominant gene for vengeance and unfor-giveness, want the trial expedited so the old man can be executed before he dies a natural death.

Germany. A special program designed to "re-educate" young neo-Nazis by showing them what grand folks Jews are has backfired. With encouragement from the directors of the Yad Vashem Holocaust Memorial in Jerusalem, and underwritten by the German Foreign Office, something called the Anti-Violence Project treated 19 young people from Dresden—some of whom were certified members of illegal neo-Nazi groups—to an all-expenses-paid trip to Israel and Auschwitz. Said one of the initiators of the program: "I thought that these people, who had never met Jews before, would understand Auschwitz if they met the beautiful people in Israel before being confronted by piles of skeletons in Poland."

To the chagrin of all concerned, the young Germans were not terribly impressed by the Chosenites they were introduced to in Israel. One of them, who couldn't repress his true feelings, told a Jewess she belonged in a gas chamber. Two said that the trip confirmed their need to "throw Molotov cocktails to further their cause." Other Germans on the trip, who had only lukewarm right-wing views before they visited the Promised Land, came back devout neo-Nazis.

The American media, stirring up the endemic Jewish hatred for Germans, has been pounding on the number of deaths committed by so-called neo-Nazis against minorities in Germany, especially Turks. According to the Turkish ambassador in Berlin, 13 of his countrymen were murdered in 1991-92 by Germans. The American press and TV, sticking closely to their usual one-sided reporting, carefully refrained from giving statistics on murder and other crimes committed by Turks against Germans. In 1991-92, the same period referred to by the Turkish ambassador, German police charged that Turks were suspects in at least 500 acts of murder and manslaughter, in more than 500 cases of arson and in thousands upon thousands of lesser crimes (See Deutsche-Woche Zeitung, April 9, 1993).

As far as is known, the ADL limits its spying against non-Jews to the 50 states. The Simon Wiesenthal Center in L.A., which takes up where the ADL leaves off and dabbles in international espionage, recently boasted it spent $200,000 infiltrating Israeli journalist Yaron Svoray into neo-Nazi circles in the Fourth Reich. After snooping around for a few months, Svoray, who pretended to be a right-wing Australian journalist, decided his cover was about to be blown and took to the lecture circuit in the U.S., where he is well paid for moaning and groaning in synagogues and public forums about the horrible doings of swastika-tattooed skinheads, who are working day and night to unleash a new Holocaust. A CBS crew worked with Svoray, invading the privacy of the radical rightists with hidden cameras.

Unfortunately, German rightists have yet to learn that when three or four of them get together, at least one or two will be spies in the pay of their government or world Jewry.

In late October, German police arrested Fred Leuchter, the American expert on execution procedures, in Frankfurt, a few moments before he was scheduled to appear on a TV show. His crime? He spoke at a right-wing meeting in Germany in 1991. His real crime? He brashly denies the Holocaust, a denial that carries a jail sentence, not just in Germany, but in many other Western countries that are all for "free speech." Leuchter, in prison at this writing, faces five years behind bars. It is doubtful that the State Dept. or the American ambassador to Germany will lose any sleep trying to spring an American citizen like Leuchter. If his name was Levy, he'd be out in a minute.

Boris Becker, the fading multimillionaire tennis champ who frolics about Europe's most expensive watering holes with his fiancée, the half-black daughter of an American-German couple, strongly opposed Berlin playing host to the Olympic Games in the year 2000. He feared the games might spark a resurgence of German nationalism.

Austria. It's a kick to see two prominent Jews who spend most of their time spreading raw hatred against non-Jews, launch hate campaigns against each other. In the jaundiced eyes of Eli Rosenbaum, a professional OSI Nazi hunter based in Washington, Simon Wiesenthal, the even more prominent Nazi hunter based in Vienna, deliberately tried to hush up the Nazi connections of Kurt Waldheim, the ex-Secretary of the U.N. and ex-President of Austria, who is not permitted to enter the United States. What's the problem here? Was Wiesenthal paid off? Bruno Kreisky, the post-WWII

Jewish Chancellor of Austria, once called Wiesenthal a "liar" and a "cheat." Few on this side of the Atlantic believed him—or were allowed to believe him. Come to think of it, if it takes one to know one, maybe Kreisky was right.

Russia. Representatives of various non-Russian ethnic minorities have formed their own political party which intends to represent the interests of some 10 to 15 minority communities, including Koreans, Tatars, Kurds, Belarussians, Ukrainians, Assyrians and the many Jews who have chosen to remain in Russia.

The International Party, as it is called, which did not register in time to participate in this month's parliamentary elections, will lobby the new Parliament to take note of minority issues. Valery Engel, a founder of the Party and chairman of the Association of Jewish Studies & Culture, expostulated:

The American model, the idea of a melting pot, is just not working in Russia. We have to invent something else....There is no platform of any political party...that addresses the need to fight anti-Semitism, chauvinism and fascism in Russia. And nobody is going to represent us in government unless we bring our issues to their attention.

International Party organizers have made it clear that their goal is to make the various non-Russians still residing within Russia members of "protected" groups. The Party hopes to compel the government to create a third chamber of parliament that will concern itself exclusively with interests of non-Russian nationality groups. Clearly, if the Party succeeds, it will have it both ways, since ethnic groups living in the autonomous republics have their own representatives in regional administrations. By giving, in effect, veto power to Jews and others within Russia proper, this would have the effect of disenfranchising the Great Russian people within their own country.

South Africa. From a subscriber. In conversations with foreign diplomats and politicians, I have always emphasized that in the final analysis there is no political power in South Africa that can force the nations or ethnic groups into an enduring unitary state. My viewpoint is supported quietly at this stage by unknown numbers of MPs and ministers in De Klerk's National Party.

Violence among black ethnic groups is escalating. The economy is bad and getting worse. De Klerk is clearly under great strain, and Mandela has even antagonized some of his white followers by declaring himself in favor of the vote for 14-year-olds and a "wealth tax," to redistribute white wealth among blacks to compensate them for the "misery" of apartheid.

De Klerk and Mandela are battling to keep up the appearance that, with the signing of the new Constitution, all is going well with the transition from white to black rule. On the contrary, all is not going well. A split in the ranks of the National Party, divided opinions among cabinet members and polls that show mounting white resentment, as well as municipal by-elections (the only white elections still taking place) indicate a big swing away from the anti-apartheid crowd. In the Free State town of Hennenman, for example, the Conservative Party recently beat the National Party candidate by 661 votes to 266 in a seat which the National Party had won two years ago by 2 to 1. According to a poll published by the Johannesburg Star, the National Party will not gain more than 16% of the vote in next year's one-man, one-vote election. Our former rulers therefore will have no chance to rule in the South Africa of the future.

The situation is tense. Many Jews, of whom there are still about 80,000 in South Africa, are planning to leave the country. They have even sent deputations to Israel to "negotiate" plans for their "repatriation."

Sudan: Though slavery has been outlawed in Western countries since the mid-19th century, it still flourishes in parts of Asia, the Mideast and Africa. According to the U.S. State Dept., International Labor Organization, Africa Watch and the British Anti-Slavery Society, black Sudanese from the southern Nuba Mountains are being enslaved by Arabs. The price of young slaves has fallen to under $100 a head.

Dominican Republic: Unimpressed by the entreaties of black Haitians claiming refugee status, Dominicans have continued to ship thousands of them back across the border. Immigration director Hector Viloria Caminero explained:

We are not persecuting the Haitians. We are simply continuing our program of repatriation of foreigners who live illegally in the country. . . We ought to be deporting 1,000 or more illegal Haitians daily, but we don't have the resources.

An estimated 500,000 to 1 million illegal Haitians live in the Dominican Republic. Many first entered as "temporary" contract workers who refused to leave after their contracts had expired.

Figures Don't Lie, But. . .

Viewers could hardly believe their eyes and ears. There was the bemedaled Marine Commandant Carl Mundy on camera on 60 Minutes, one of the most popular TV programs, speaking the following heresy:

In the military skills, we find that the minority officers do not shoot as well as the nonminorities. . . They don't swim as well. And when you give them a compass and send them across the terrain at night in a land navigation exercise, they don't do as well at that sort of thing.

It is unnecessary to mention that General Mundy was quickly brought to heel and "induced" to utter the ritualistic regrets and apologies, which added up to pretending that what he said wasn't what he meant, though a Marine press release issued later backed up his statements with numbers. In 1992-93 young black officers scored 83.2 in rifle qualification tests, compared to the class average of 87.43; pistol qualification, black average 85.41, class average 88.95; land navigation (use of compass), black average 81.41; class average 85.35; swimming qualification, black average 85.82, class average 93.36. Negroes did narrowly outperform the class average in physical fitness, drill and two types of obstacle courses.

Apparently General Mundy has a short memory. Some years ago much ado was made about Al Campanis, who lost his job as vice-president of the Los Angeles Dodgers for sounding off on the poor swimming ability of blacks (their high bone to body weight cuts down their buoyancy). He praised their fleet of footness, but dispraised the lack of intelligence responsible for so few of them acquiring baseball managerial slots.

Less than a year later Jimmy "the Greek" Snyder lost his $500,000 job as a CBS sports reporter for attributing Negro prowess in sports to their breeding "big black kids" in slavery days and to their "big, high thigh bones"—assertions which, though crudely put, are not wide of the mark.

Unlike Campanis and Jimmy the Greek, General Mundy was not fired, though he did have to crawl a little as he begged for forgiveness from John Dalton, Secretary of the Navy. The Marine Commandant is too much of a wheel to be sacked for the sin of telling the truth. But that doesn't mean that lesser lights who engage in amateur anthropology will not meet the same fate as Campanis and Jimmy the Greek.

Instaurationists must realize that when it comes to the budding science of comparative genetics, we are back in the days of Galileo, who, to save his neck, swore that the sun orbited the earth, though he knew very well the opposite was the case. (He was credited, however, with muttering under his breath, Eppur si muove, "Nevertheless it [the Earth] does move.")

20th-Century Martyr

John Demjanjuk, the sempiternal fall guy for Jewish racists, is home, but not at home. He can't move into his house because of long lines of jabbering Jewish pickets. After seven years of solitary confinement in an Israeli jail, after being condemned to death, after his case, lacking any real substance, was thrown out by the Israeli Supreme Court, after the recent U.S. Court of Appeals ruling that evidence supporting his deportation was "fraudulently" withheld by the OSI (Office of Special Investigations), the American clone of the old Soviet KGB. . . after all these excruciating experiences one would think that John finally deserved a little peace and quiet.

He's going to get precious little. Janet Reno, the freakish Attorney General, has promised Jewish organizations that she will press hard for Demjanjuk's deportation. To where? To Ukraine or some other Eastern European country which might jail him again or even execute him, as happened to a few other alleged "war criminals" rounded up by the OSI's super Chosenites. One sacrificial victim who barely escaped the hangman's noose was Frank Walus of Chicago. He was stripped of his U.S. citizenship by Jewish Judge Julius Hoffman and ordered deported only to be saved at the last minute by an Appeals Court ruling that reversed Hoffman's vengeful decision.

What it all amounts to is that a monumental injustice has been done and continues to be done to an innocent man. The government lawyers, who framed him, not Demjanjuk, should be the ones who went to jail. Right now Reno and her OSI goons are piecing together "evidence" on other Eastern Europeans who may or may not have been caught up against their will in one phase or another of WWII.

A new Byron is needed to poetize about today's Prisoner of Chillon. The body of John Demjanjuk, the 20th-century martyr has also been "rusted with vile repose." Compared to the one-time Cleveland auto worker, the Prisoner of Chillon was lucky. His oppressor was a second-rate duke. Demjanjuk's enemies are an international cabal.

Ugly people have done ugly things and are continuing to do ugly things to Demjanjuk and his family. His wife, Vera, who for years has been on the receiving end of death threats and worse, simply cannot understand why the world won't leave her and her husband alone. Neither she nor any decent human being can comprehend why, as one Israeli put it, her husband should be killed, guilty or not.

Ironically a New Jersey Jew, Hugo Princz, is suing Germany for $7 million, the monetary equivalent of what he claims that he, an American citizen, suffered after Germans picked him up in Slovakia in 1942 and threw him in a concentration camp until war's end. That Stanley Sporkin, a Jewish judge, is taking a curious interest in this case is not hurting Princz's chances. If he should get his $7 million, it will be added to the $50 million in reparations Germany has already given to Jews and Israel (on top of America's $100 million). If Princz is due that outrageous sum, how much should Demjanjuk get? And how much should the Palestinians get for losing their whole country, their possessions and thousands of lives to the Zionist conquerors and squatters?

The answer is, Demjanjuk and the Palestinians won't get a red cent. Reparations these days is a one-way street that runs straight to Tel Aviv.

Greatest Living Eugenicist Speaks Out ✕

Robert Graham's Repository for Germinal Choice, also known as the Genius Sperm Bank, has been responsible for bringing 182 spankably bright children into the world. Because of the conservative, liberal, minority, religious vendetta against any manifestation of eugenics, Graham has had difficulty finding new "depositors." Nevertheless, at the age of 88, he still carries the torch. An informative 38-minute interview with Graham is available on videotape. Send $20 to S.C. Books, P.O. Box 1562, Friendswood, TX 77546. Included will be a complimentary copy of Graham's book, The Future of Man.
